READ THE DOOM OF PROHIBITION IN G. O. P. VOTE

73d Congress Is Likely to Be Wet.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

What with the Republicans having declared for modification of the eighteenth amendment and the Democrats being certain to go at least that far, the "noble experiment" appears to be doomed. It would seem to be only a question of time before national prohibition will be either modified or repealed.

In the Democratic national convention, which will meet in the Stadium June 27, there will be the same struggle as in the Republican convention between the advocates of modification and of repeal. And just as the Republicans wrote their prohibition plank with an eye cocked to the placating of the drys, who in the north and west are overwhelmingly Republican, so the Democrats may be expected to go no farther than is deemed safe from the risk of alienating their drys, who are chiefly in the solid south.

May Try to Lure G. O. P. Wets.

Considerations of expediency will constitute a strong temptation to the Democrats to declare for repeal or something sounding like repeal, with a view to attracting the support of Republican repealists, who are so numerous that but for the votes of the southern "rotten boroughs," in which the Republican party exists on paper only, a repeal plank would have been adopted by the Republican national convention.

The vote preponderantly for repeal by the Republican delegations from Illinois, New York, New Jersey, Indiana and other states with an enormous vote in the electoral college opens up attractive November vistas of Republican states that might be captured with a repeal plank.

South May Be Ripe.

Such incidents as a repeal candidate worsting Senator Cameron Morrison in the recent North Carolina primary convince some Democratic leaders that the south is already ripe for repeal and that it would be safe to go the whole way in their platform toward repudiation of national prohibition. Other counsels may prevail, in which event, however, it is not doubted that the Democrats will write a plank that at least sounds wetter than the Republican plank, still with a view to annexing the support in the election of dissatisfied Republican wets.

Mayor Cermak predicted yesterday there will be no pussyfooting by the Democrats on prohibition.

"Undoubtedly," he said, "the Democratic convention will recommend repeal of the eighteenth amendment."

On the assumption, therefore, that by the first week of July both the major political parties will have declared for at least some sort of modification of national prohibition people will be asking how long it will be before they can get a legal drink of a decent beverage with a kick in it at a fair price.

Well, the answer will be that it takes a long time to do anything under our form of government, the institutions of which favor those who would palter and delay.

Unable to Understand.

The man in the street will be unable to understand why, with both parties favoring a change, the President should not call congress, which probably by July will have adjourned, into extraordinary session to submit a modification or repeal amendment to the conventions to ratify which members could be chosen by the states in the November election.

There is not much likelihood of President Hoover taking that step, which would be vigorously opposed by the drys, nor for the same reason would there be much likelihood of the present congress, even if called in extraordinary session, submitting an amendment. That brings up the value of the platform promise contained in the Republican prohibition plank.

What the Platform Says.

The Republican plank says that the modification amendment "should be promptly submitted to the states by congress," but it also says that "no public official or member of the party should be pledged or forced to choose between his party affiliations and his honest convictions upon this question."

The dry leaders dictated the incorporation of this provision that the party does not pledge any Republican in office or seeking office to support the modification proposed. Thus Mr. Hoover would not be obligated by the platform of his party to take any step to forward the submission of the modification his party proposes, nor would any Republican congressman or senator be obligated to vote for it.

Incidentally it would surprise none

SEEK CONGRESS AID IN GETTING TEACHERS' PAY

Delegation to Ask New Loan Power.

Chicago will send a delegation to Washington next Tuesday to urge congress to amend the laws governing Reconstruction Finance corporation lending in such a manner that municipalities may borrow to pay their employés.

This course was decided on last night at a meeting held in the office of Mayor Cermak and attended by bankers, members of the school board, civic leaders and representatives of the teachers' organizations. The action was taken, although Congressman Henry T. Rainey of Illinois had stated in Washington yesterday that such an amendment is impossible.

2,000 Attend Massmeeting.

Earlier in the day there had been a massmeeting of 2,000 teachers in Grant park and a march of several hundred of these crying: "We want cash now!" to the office of the mayor. By the mayor's order they were admitted. The situation was explained to them by Mr. Cermak and their complaints turned to cheers as he laid the blame for payless pay days on the school board. The assembling of the teachers followed the annual closing of the school year yesterday noon.

In the meeting last night Melvin A. Traylor, president of the First National bank, declared that the bankers could go no further in lending on city or school board tax antic/pation warrants.

"As long as I have anything to do with the institutions with which I am connected," he said, "we will not put our names to a note to be secured by warrants that taxpayers are attacking. When taxpayers do their duty, credit will be reëstablished. We will then be glad to continue buying tax warrants.

Taxpayers Hold Fate.

"But you can't borrow your way out of this difficulty. The way out is to pay out and the teachers should turn their attention to the taxpayers to get their salaries."

There was some discussion of the possibility of setting up a dummy corporation to borrow the federal fund and turn them over to the spending bodies. It was pointed out by the bankers present, however, that the law required loans to be made to going concerns and that these were unwilling to take the position of endorsing for the city or school board.

Fred W. Sargent, chairman of the citizens' committee on public expenditures, addressing the teachers' representatives, said that if the school board would economize as other governments had, his body would put on a campaign to get the taxpayers who could afford to pay up at once. Without such coöperation from the schools, it was useless to go ahead, he added.

Trustee Savage Replies.

School Trustee Joseph P. Savage retorted that the board had economized more than any other body and that he could prove it.

The committee which is to meet in Washington, appointed at the end of the meeting, is composed of D. F. Kelly, Ernest R. Graham, Mr. Sargent, Senators Glenn and Lewis, President Lewis E. Myers of the school board, representatives of the banks and of city employés as well as of the teachers, City Controller M. S. Szymczak, City Treasurer James A. Kearns, and members of local governments which desire to be represented. Illinois congressmen also are invited.

It was announced that the committee would leave it in the hands of Senators Lewis and Glenn and Representative Britten to arrange the program in Washington.

Plight of Teachers Told.

Last night's meeting was called by Mayor Cermak at the suggestion of Miss Agnes Clohesy, president of the elementary teachers' union. In a telegram to the mayor she stated:

"Fourteen thousand teachers are on the streets. Fourteen thousand teachers unpaid and desperate face twelve blacks weeks in a city bedecked with flags and festively welcoming visitors from 48 states to view its wonders and accept its hospitality while its own employés go unpaid and unfed.

"A school principal too impoverished to obtain medical care gave his life this week while serving the children of this hospitable community. This is the time to face unpleasant facts, to take courageous action. We appeal to you as chief executive of this great convention city to take immediate

Wise Men Use Magic on Goat; It's Still a Goat

WERNIGERODE, Saxony, Germany, June 17.—(AP)—A group of eminent German and British investigators into psychic phenomenon ascended tonight to the top of "the Brocken," Germany's magic mountain, and, in accordance with the ancient rite, attempted to change a billy goat into a young man. Somehow or other it didn't come off.

The failure of the experiment can not be laid to any error in method, for the investigators observed every requirement set forth in the "high German black book," in which are listed the processes by which the very best medieval witches accomplished whatever they happened to be up to.

"Maiden Pure in Heart" Used.

As demanded by the formula, the experimenters had the assistance of Miss Gloria Gordon of England, "a maiden pure in heart." They anointed the billygoat with blood and honey and the scrapings of church bells, they used the proper pine fire, they described a circle of the prescribed size, and they uttered every one of the Latin incantations stipulated for such goings on.

Now, bear in mind that witches have frequented "the Brocken" in the Harz mountains ever since man can remember. The smallest boy hereabouts can tell you that.

Bear in mind also that even the great Goethe, in his Faust, recognized that this was a place where no ordinary things happened. He wrote:

"The witches on the Brocken sail,
The shoot is green,
The stubble's pale,
And high above them thrones Old Nick."

Proper Abracadabra Intoned.

As prescribed by the old rite, the goat was led into the magic circle by a silver cord. After he had been anointed a white sheet was thrown over him. All the proper abracadabra was intoned. Then, in a weird monotone, Harry Price, director of the National Laboratory of Psychical Research, London, boomed "one."

With just the proper pauses he counted to ten.

One hundred or so spectators, huddled in overcoats to protect them from the swirling mists, looked on in breathless silence.

The maiden pure in heart whisked off the white sheet.

And there stood a billygoat, somewhat the worse for blood and honey and the scraping of church bells, shivering in the cold.

The spectators applauded heartily and the investigators said they were satisfied. They hadn't expected the hocus pocus to work anyway. It was all a matter of proving, by painstaking experiment, that there wasn't anything in all this witchcraft business.

SALOONKEEPER SLAIN AT BAR BY MACHINE GUNNER

A machine gunner appeared at the door of Johnny Nyhan's beer resort at Crooked lake, in Lake county, last night, motioned two patrons away from the bar, and shouted: "Now I've got you."

Nyhan started to run. A stream of bullets dropped him in his tracks. He was killed instantly, thirty bullets in his chest and back.

Mrs. Hazel Nyhan, wife of Nyhan, was on the front porch. She saw the machine gunner and two confederates drive up to the place shortly after 9 o'clock. Two alighted and walked past her. One paused at the door; the other stepped inside. Two patrons were at the bar. Nyhan was behind it.

"You fellows get out," ordered the second man, as he unlimbered a submachine gun from beneath his coat. After the shooting the assassin rejoined his companion at the door and walked quickly past Mrs. Nyhan. They escaped with the third man.

Crooked lake is about two miles east of Lake Villa and fourteen miles west of Waukegan. Nyhan was known as an independent beer dealer. Police believe that he refused to buy his beer from the syndicate.

U. S. Raiders Halt Revels at Colosimo's

Sixty merrymakers in Colosimo's restaurant at 2126-28 South Wabash avenue, for 20 years one of the brighter night life centers on the south side, suddenly ceased their revelry early this morning when a squad of dry agents raided the place.

Several of the patrons bolted for the doors, but were halted. Several others, wearing roses in their coat lapels as identifying insignia, stood up and joined the raiders. They were agents in disguise. As Deputy Administrator A. E. Aman paused to read the warrant the members of the Jaysee orchestra, conducted by Peter De Quarto, set down their instruments.

Seize Liquor in Bottles.

It was all over but the search. This started immediately. In the bar adjoining, at 2123 Wabash avenue, the raiders seized a Negro porter trying to lug out 12 bottles of bourbon. Behind the bar they found 25 bottles of assorted liqueurs. The guests were allowed to leave after being questioned. Ten girl entertainers were detained, however.

Within an hour the raiders started to strip the café of its green and red trimmings, its low chandelier, its thirty tables and chairs, and its bar. Outside a crowd of 400 men and women gathered, attracted by a grapevine report that "Colosimo's is raided."

Hollywood Club Raided.

While Colosimo's was host to the dry agents another group of eight prohibition men raided the Hollywood club on the first floor at 222 North Dearborn street. This raid was also directed by Aman. Ten couples were in the place at the time. Pete Beatty, the manager; William Thompson, the bartender, and John Meletis, a waiter, were arrested. Cordials, whiskies, and beer were seized.

DES PLAINES ASKS ITS POLICE CHIEF TO BE REAL BOSS

Police Chief Christ Wegner of Des Plaines, pledged himself last night to be boss of the police department.

The pledge was occasioned by the complaint of his men that he was a "weak chief." The men, ten in number, declared in a petition for his removal two weeks ago that their boss should be more vigorous and less easy going. Chief Wegner responded by handing in his resignation to Mayor Charles Hammerl.

The resignation was not accepted, but was presented to the Des Plaines city council last night for its consideration. The council voted to retain him; it also reprimanded the rebellious subordinates.

Europe Agrees on Extension of Moratorium

BY JAY ALLEN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LAUSANNE, June 17.—In a burst of speed unprecedented since conferences became the fashion in post-war Europe, the Lausanne conference today adopted an agreement to extend the Hoover moratorium for the duration of the conference. The agreement is to apply to Europe and Japan only, the United States not being represented at this conference.

The declaration was signed by the inviting powers, Great Britain, France, Italy, Belgium, and Japan, less than 24 hours after the conference convened. The speed with which this was done does not mean that all the old conference traditions were broken, because tonight the French and British were not at all agreed as to what they meant by the declaration.

Have Two Interpretations.

The British think of the declaration, which they inspired, as meaning that the all European moratorium is to relieve the powers from fear of the threat of impending payments while they are evolving a definite reparations and debts settlement here.

The French have another idea, which is that today's settlement will stand for debts and reparations while the conference goes on with the task of reconstructing Europe economically, and particularly rehabilitating the Danubian states. The declaration as worded is open to both interpretations.

Text of Agreement.

"The undersigned governments, deeply impressed by the increasing severity of the economic and financial perils which overhang the world and with the urgency of the problems which the Lausanne conference has met to consider; firmly convinced that these problems require a final and definite solution directed to the improvement of the European conditions and that this solution must be pursued henceforward without delay or interruption with a view to its realization in the framework of a general settlement;

"Noting that certain payments of reparations and war debts fall due as from July 1, we are of the opinion that in order to permit the work of the conference to proceed undisturbed and that without prejudice to the solution which may ultimately be reached, the execution of payments due to the powers participating in the conference in respect to reparations and war debts should be reserved during the period of the conference, which the undersigned governments intend should have completed its work in the shortest possible time.

Invite Others to Join.

"It is understood that the service of market loans will not be affected by these decisions. The undersigned governments declare that they for their own part are prepared to act on this understanding and they invite their creditor governments taking part in the conference to take the same course."

Under various interpretations here, it is estimated that this all European moratorium will halt the transfer of between $33,500,000 and $48,000,000 which was to have been paid early in July.

Having approved this step, the big four, Prime Minister MacDonald of Great Britain, Premier Herriot of France, Chancellor Franz von Papen of Germany, and Foreign Minister Grandi of Italy, have cleared the way for a lot of fancy bargaining.

There are even rumors that Herriot and MacDonald are nurturing a project for a 15 year European truce, political, economic, and otherwise.

At today's session Great Britain, through Neville Chamberlain, her chancellor of exchequer, reiterated her willingness to cancel all war obligations due her provided the other nations did likewise.

Papen and Herriot Subdued.

Both Von Papen and Herriot spoke in a subdued manner. Von Papen made no attempt to contest the legality of reparations.

This crisis, he said, is not one of discrepancy of production and consumption, but a credit crisis without parallel, of which the trade depression is the result.

Herriot spoke with quiet solemnity. France is certain, he said, that cancellation of reparations would not constitute an effective and just solution of the problem. More important than debts, he said, is the modification of tariffs, quotas, and other trade restrictions.

ARMY OF 12,000 VETERANS SING AFTER SETBACK

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 17.—[Special.]—Defying an army of 12,000 veterans milling around the capitol, the senate tonight killed the Patman bonus bill providing for the payment of two billion four million dollars to world war veterans. The vote was 62 to 18.

A motion to reconsider was defeated, 44 to 26, and possibility of action at this session was ended.

The overwhelming defeat of the measure climaxed a bitter fight waged by the former service men in an attempt to force the government to cash their adjusted compensation certificates [bonus] at once. The house passed the bill earlier this week.

Roll Call on Measure.

It was the radical Republicans who furnished the majority of the seven Republicans who combined with the ten Democrats and one Farmer-Laborite to vote for the bonus bill. Against the bonus were thirty-five Republicans and twenty-seven Democrats. The conservative leadership of both parties opposed the bill.

Veterans Roar at Vote.

The massed veterans milling outside the senate chamber set up such a roar when the senate action was announced that the noise penetrated the room where the senators were voting. It was immediately followed by an exodus of veterans and other occupants of the galleries who hurried outside to see what was happening.

For a few minutes it was feared that trouble would develop and police reinforcements were called for. But they were not needed. Cooler heads among the veterans forestalled a demonstration.

This is the way trouble was averted: A few seconds before the vote was completed some one hurried outside and advised W. W. Waters, leader of the bonus expeditionary forces gathered in front of the senate, that they had been defeated. Waters ran to the top steps of the senate overlooking the crowded plaza.

Veterans Sing "America."

"Boys," he said, "we have met with a temporary setback. I ask you to take it on the chin like real Americans and go quietly back to your camps."

As Waters uttered the last word the roar that went up was drowned as the 12,000 veterans began to sing:

"My country, 'tis of thee, sweet land of liberty——"

A second later spectators who had rushed to the capitol by the thousands in the expectation of trouble joined in singing of "America" and sang through to the end.

"Three cheers for Waters," some one shouted as the strains of the song died out.

They were given with a will.

"Are we downhearted?" some one shouted.

A mighty "No" was the answer.

But They Boo Hoover.

Then some one shouted President Hoover's name.

Three mighty "boos" propelled by 12,000 pairs of lungs greeted the mention of the President's name.

Waters and other leaders then urged the men to break up and go home. There were some grumblings—a few hoots and catcalls—and then the bugle blew "Fall in."

Many of the veterans were reluctant to go, but in a few moments several of the companies of bonus marchers had assembled and marched away. A few elected to stick around to see the outcome of a move on the part of Senator John H. Bankhead [Dem., Ala.] to reconsider the vote, so the measure could be voted on again when congress meets in December.

Veterans Arrive Early.

The army of veterans, all members of the bonus expeditionary forces which have been mobilizing in the capital for several weeks, began to gather in around the massive white steps leading up to the senate chamber long before the senators arrived this morning. Bearing in mind the success with which they had intimidated the house last Wednesday, the veterans came out in droves as the day wore on.

At 8 o'clock more than 7,000 veterans were massed on the plaza in front of the senate. Shortly after this another 5,000 veterans temporarily delayed when the Washington police ordered the Anacostia bridge across the east branch of the Potomac raised, arrived to swell the earlier forces. Later the police announced they had ordered the bridge raised to prevent the veterans from staging a parade.

As the numbers of veterans increased police reserves were rushed to the capitol plaza as a precautionary move.

Can't Eat on Capitol Grounds.

At noon the doughboys' familiar chow call was sounded by a bugle and the men began a rush on several field kitchens that had been rolled into the capitol grounds. The police ordered the kitchens removed and the men rolled them over to 1st street, reformed the mess line and had their meal.

On several occasions touches of humor enlivened the long wait for the assembled veterans. Prolonged applause greeted the arrival of a donkey on the senate plaza early in the afternoon. As the clapping and shouting died down a voice piped up:

"It's Hoover."

The laughter was general. Shouts of "Bring the mule up here" came from a group of veterans standing on the top of the senate wing steps. Capitol police demurred and the donkey was marched away in the direction of the senate office building.

Plead for Restraint.

Just before the vote was taken some one called out to the assembled veterans waiting outside for silence. All eyes turned to the top of the senate steps. A moment later four men appeared. They were Senator Elmer Thomas [Dem., Okla.] and Representatives William P. Connery [Dem., Mass.], a leader in the bonus campaign; Wright Patman [Dem., Tex.], author of the bill acted upon tonight, and John E. Rankin [Dem., Miss.], pioneer in the "pay the bonus now" movement.

Obviously fearful that their campaign for the bonus—which had brought the veterans to Washington in a move to force the legislation through congress—would result in trouble, the quartet nervously stood before the soldiers.

"I want to congratulate you upon your record of conduct," Senator Thomas said. "It has been 100 per cent. No matter what happens, don't do anything to disturb that record. The vote about to be taken may go against us. If it does, I shall change my vote from aye to nay so I can move to reconsider the bill and keep it alive."

Waters held up his hand and said, "Please do not cheer." There were no cheers. The four silently walked back to the senate chamber.

Robinson Opens Debate.

Senator Arthur R. Robinson [Rep., Ind.] was the first speaker to arise as the debate on the bill began. He addressed an ardent plea for the passage of the bill based on the major promise that the "debt due these men was due in 1918 when the armistice was signed—not in 1945."

As he was talking Superintendent of Police Glassford entered one of the galleries and stood for about five minutes sizing up the situation. The veterans, however, remained orderly and quiet.

Senator Harry B. Hawes [Dem., Mo.] arose after Senator Robinson to ask that the veterans "wait a while" and to "display in this present emergency which confronts our nation a courage equal to that which you were willing to sacrifice your lives in war."

Norris Opposes Payment.

Senator George W. Norris [rad. Rep., Neb.] recalled that six senators had voted against the declaration of war in 1917.

"I was one of them," he told his colleagues, "but I can not vote for this measure. I feel that payment at this time would endanger the government of this country."

Senator Samuel M. Shortridge [Rep., Cal.] said that he had voted consistently for veterans' legislation, but in the present condition of the country found himself unable to stand for a bill which would imperil the credit of the country. He called on the veterans in the galleries to stand by the country as they had in 1917.

"I have waited," said Senator Burton K. Wheeler [Dem., Mont.], "for some word to come that would give hope to the unemployed. No such word has come from this congress, the White House, or the Republican convention in Chicago. Therefore I shall vote for this bill."

Gold Prospectors Rush to Yukon Field in Planes

JUNEAU, Alaska, June 17.—(AP)—A movement of gold prospectors into the isolated Liard river district of the southern Yukon territory was described as a "stampede" in reports received today. Parties from Dawson and Mayo, reports said, in addition to two expeditions from here, were rushing into the region or planning to leave shortly. All airplanes in the vicinity were reported chartered for weeks ahead. A Detroit expedition, headed by Thomas Mitchell, and a group of Juneau business men are racing to the area.

HOOVER MAKES NEW PLEA FOR FURLOUGH PLAN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 17.—[Special.]—A new demand that congress accept the White House economy program calling for reduction of the huge federal pay roll through the so-called furlough plan rather than a flat pay cut was made by President Hoover today.

JOHN M'DUFFIE. [Acme Photo.]

The White House appeal was made within a few minutes after the senate and house conferees on the economy bill had broken up, deadlocked on the major items in the measure. According to Representative John McDuffie [Dem., Ala.] the house had flatly refused to accept the furlough plan for federal personnel as passed by the senate. The house conferees, he said, had held out for a straight pay cut.

As a result of the failure of the conferees to get together it is probable the economy bills will have to be sent back to the senate and house for new instructions. It is possible new conferees will be appointed by both houses.

Furlough Plan Is Issue.

The furlough provision of the senate economy bill proved the major stumbling block during the attempts to work out a compromise bill. Sponsors of this plan, backed by President Hoover, have refused to accept a straight pay cut, while the Democratic house has refused to accept the administration furlough plan. The furlough plan would save $80,000,000 and a straight pay cut 120 millions.

In his statement President Hoover assailed the senate bill because it did not provide for immediate reorganization of the government departments and bureaus. He asserted that the economies such a reorganization as he favored would bring about were needed now rather than next year.

In conclusion the President said that the emergency powers left in the bill by the senate reduced the bureaus and commissions which can be immediately dealt with to those expending only $25,000,000 a year and did not include bureaus spending 500 millions to 600 millions.

Wants Furlough Plan Accepted.

"I am in hopes that the conferees and the congress will find it possible to accept the so-called furlough plan for dealing with federal employés," the President said. "It is in reality the five day week applied to the government. It will produce a larger saving in expenditures in federal employment than any other plan which is likely to pass congress.

"The objection that it permits of discrimination has been met by the proposal that the few employés receiving over $1,200 a year to whom it might not be applied shall take an 8 1-3 per cent reduction in pay, thus giving the equivalent reduction in government expenses.

"It avoids discharges and enables some increases in the number of people employed by the government through the necessity of some substitutions. In the large sense it maintains the standards of pay in the government. It must be borne in mind that government pay has never been on such high standards as that of private enterprise.

"It has a wider spread of importance than these immediate questions. It shows a willingness of the government itself to coöperate with the country in a movement for shortening the hours of labor with a view to increasing the number of people employed. It is an adoption by the government of what has been done to a large extent in private employment.

"I am also in hopes that the emergency powers to the President proposed by the senate economy committee for immediate reorganization of government departments with view to immediate reduction of expenditures will be restored by the conference.

"Under the terms of the bill as it left the senate no reorganization of any great consequence could be made effective until next March.

"The economies are needed now more than a year hence. The emergency powers left in the bill by the senate reduced the bureaus and commissions which can be immediately dealt with to those expending only 25 million dollars a year and eliminated bureaus spending 500 million to 600 million dollars."

MEXICO EXPELS DEPUTY WANTED FOR KILLING BOY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MEXICO CITY, June 17.—Mexico's congress, which always has been jealous of the constitutional rights protecting its deputies from arrest, last night expelled Deputy Delfino Najera to deprive him of that privilege. Today he is being hunted by police for the murder six weeks ago of Rigoberto Samoano Lopez, 15 years old, student.

Although closely watched since the murder, Najera slipped through the hands of police who were waiting for the moment when he would no longer be exempt from arrest.

The murder occurred when the boy presented Najera with a bill for board at his mother's restaurant near the parliamentary building. Najera shot the boy.

BRITTEN BOOSTS FEDERAL LOANS TO PAY TEACHERS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 17.—[Special.]—A call for a meeting of the Illinois delegation tomorrow morning for the purpose of working out the "most efficacious method" of amending the Wagner 300 million dollar relief bill so it would provide specifically for separate loans to cities to pay back salaries of school teachers was issued today by Representative Fred A. Britten [Rep., Ill.], delegation chairman.

In sending out the call Mr. Britten asserted that the 14,000 teachers of Chicago will get no relief from either the Garner or the Wagner bills unless they are amended to authorize direct communication and exchange of collateral for money between the mayor of Chicago and the Reconstruction Finance corporation. He said he purposed offering an amendment adding $50,000,000 to the Wagner bill. This fund, he said, would be used solely for loans to cities who would guarantee to use it for teachers' salaries.

"Can't Pass It," Says Rainey.

A few moments after the call was issued Majority Leader Henry T. Rainey [Dem., Ill.] stated flatly that such an amendment never could be pushed through the house. He asserted that Chicago would have to depend on relief provisions such as are now carried by the Wagner 300 million dollar bill and the Garner two billion three hundred million dollar bill for relief funds.

"As much as I would like to see the teachers get the money," said Mr. Rainey, in commenting on the proposed Britten amendment, "I know that it will not be possible to enact legislation segregating a part of the relief legislation fund for the sole purpose of paying teachers' salaries. If such an amendment were offered it would open the door for a flood of amendments providing for separate funds for paying firemen, policemen, and for other specific purposes."

Britten Explains Stand.

In a statement Mr. Britten said:

"Speaker Garner and the leaders of the house have seen to it that the Reconstruction Finance corporation could help the railroads rehabilitate themselves. He has seen to it that tottering banks throughout the nation have been bolstered by the corporation's finances. He has seen to it that corporations in need of financial assistance have been helped out of their difficulty by the federal treasury.

"I am now calling upon him to see to it that the public school teachers of the nation whose salaries are in arrears on July 1 of this year shall be paid in full. Not as a gift out of the federal treasury, nor out of the coffers of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, but through a straight, businesslike loan to cities (if there are any) which are in the same position as Chicago is, to offer sound security for the repayment of every dollar with interest."

Highland Park Hospital Seeks to Avoid Closing

A drive for funds to insure the continuance of the Highland Park hospital will be opened Tuesday night at a meeting of the organization committee and north shore and Chicago friends of the institution. Letters have already been sent out. Unless the funds, $12,000 for one year, are raised, the hospital will be closed, Sellar Bullard, president of the hospital association, announced last night.

Mr. Traylor and George M. Reynolds, chairman of the board of the Continental Illinois bank, stated earlier in the day that the banks have just assumed another $6,500,000 obligation to prevent the city and school board defaulting on their funded debt, an added reason why they would be unable to buy tax warrants for pay roll purposes.

While hope of getting money from the R. F. C. under its present rules was practically abandoned in informed circles, due to the attitude of the banks, Illinois' representatives in congress were active during the day seeking a change in those rules. Representative Britten called a meeting in Washington of all the Illinois representatives.

His letter asked them to meet "to determine upon the most efficacious manner of amending the Wagner $300,000,000 relief bill so as to provide definitely for authority to the Reconstruction Finance corporation to deal directly with states and cities for a loan of such funds as are necessary to pay public school teachers, whose salaries are in arrears up to June 30, 1932."

Resolutions Demand Pay.

The names of President Hoover, Gov. Emmerson, Mayor Cermak, and other public officials were jeered by the 2,000 teachers who attended the massmeeting at the bandshell in Grant park in the afternoon. The crowd adopted some 35 resolutions, the tenor of all being a demand for immediate payment.

The teachers had been refused a police permit to parade into the loop, but Harry Tate, principal of the Whitney school, who was chairman of the meeting, announced that he saw no reason why the teachers should not walk to the city hall in groups.

Several hundred of them did so. Mayor Cermak, apprised of their coming, refused advice that the doors of the building be locked against them and ordered that as many as could enter his office be admitted. The teachers paraded through the corridors of the hall, chanting "We want cash."

Tells Troubles of Teachers.

"The teachers are in dire straits," Tate told the mayor when the crowd had jammed his office. "We know you've done a lot for us. We don't know what more you can do, but something's got to be done."

"You're in the wrong church," Mayor Cermak replied. "Where this gathering belongs is over at the school board offices."

This statement brought a chorus of boos from the teachers. They were quieted by less radical members of the group, and as the mayor continued his remarks he was interrupted several times, first by applause and then by cheers.

"The mayor has nothing to do with your salaries," continued Mayor Cermak. "I have only a minority in the board of education, and the board has told me to mind my own business. Isn't that true?"

"Yes," chorused the teachers.

Refused Pay for Others.

"In spite of that, when the bankers came to me some months ago and offered to advance money for police and firemen's salaries, but refused to give the school board any money because it has not reduced its expenditures, I refused their proposal and told them it must be a case of taking care of all or none.

"Since that time the city has loaned the school board $28,000,000, obtained on city credit, to pay school employés. The last time we gave them money they had no tax warrants to give us as security and we advanced the money illegally on the board's note."

He was interrupted by the teachers' cheers. When they had stopped he went on to tell them of the meeting which he had called later in the day to seek the R. F. C. funds.

"I have communicated with congress, with the President and his secretaries, and with every one else who I thought might help us to get money. If we get any we will loan you some."

NEW YORK SELLS U. S. COURT SITE FOR 2½ MILLIONS

New York, June 17.—[Special.]—The city received today from the United States government a check for $2,440,640 in payment for the site formerly occupied by the department of health building, on which the new United States courthouse will be erected.

The check was handed to a deputy of Controller Charles W. Berry by United States Attorney George Z. Medalie. The land is bounded by Park row, Duane, Pearl and Park streets.

The courthouse will cost $8,250,000. It is being designed by Cass Gilbert, New York architect, and its design will harmonize with that of the city buildings adjoining in the civic center.

OPPOSE GARNER BILL POSTOFFICE FOR LA GRANGE

La Grange doesn't want the $120,000 postoffice which the Garner "pork barrel" bill now pending in the senate would give it, it was announced yesterday by H. M. Hayward, managing director of the La Grange chamber of commerce.

The directors of the chamber of commerce have gone on record against the proposed postoffice, and have written letters to Illinois senators urging defeat of the bill, Mr. Hayward said.

"We had a new postoffice building five years ago," Mr. Hayward said, "and the lease has five more years to run. Our present building is not large enough, but we feel that we can get along with present equipment for the time being. We are very much more in favor of a reduction of governmental expenditures at the present time."

INQUEST LEAVES BARKER MURDER A GANG MYSTERY

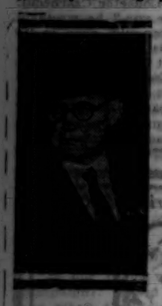
An inquest was held yesterday over the body of George [Red] Barker, who fell dead with eighteen machine gun bullets in his body in front of 1502 North Crawford avenue at 12:10 a. m. yesterday. To all important questions asked of the witnesses the reply was, "I don't know."



CHIEF SCHOEMAKER.

Everybody present, however, knew that Barker had set himself up as the successor of Al Capone, and police, prosecutors, and other officials said they had expected Barker's life to be taken just as it was.

Chief of Detectives Schoemaker said it was not a question of deciding who would want to kill Barker, but to single out any one individual or group from the many who wanted the labor racketeer put out of the way. Admittedly Barker was a hoodlum, a killer, and the bootleg and gambling boss of one group of gangsters, and he had muscled his way into control of forty or fifty labor unions.

Seeking Union Dictatorship.

"Barker was seeking to gain supreme control of every branch of the teamsters' and chauffeurs' unions in the city and county," Chief Schoemaker said. "If he gained his objective he would have complete power over all delivery services in the city. He would have been a dictator with the tremendous power of being able to manipulate the supply service of four million people—tell them from whom they must buy any article delivered by automobile truck or wagon. He would have had Chicago at his mercy for foodstuffs, milk, ice, household goods, and would have had industry submitting to his terms.

"On top of that he would have had the mastery over 90,000 teamsters and chauffeurs who would pay dues of $10 a month, a total of nearly a million dollars a month, into Barker's treasury. He would have been able to control elections and particularly to set up his will for the law in the county. Barker died of too much ambition."

Watched by Business Groups.

The Employers' association, the crime commission, the Association of Commerce, and the Secret Six had been watching Barker with apprehension, it was admitted by their representatives yesterday, and while they were seeking to protect their interests against his inroads, Barker, according to the police, was planning a war against all rival gang elements in the city. He wanted their recognition as the ruler of illegitimate enterprises as well as legitimate unions and business.

The bootleggers, however, had wolves at one of their doors and Barker at the other. Under Barker's rule they would starve. Opposed to it they would undoubtedly eat bullets. The bootleggers decided that closed territories no longer existed and all beer and gambling districts were open for competition and would be the spoils of the victors in the war that must follow. For weeks there were reports that gangland was armed and waiting only for the overt act that would set them all against each other or all against Barker.

The story of the killing as it was brought out at the inquest yesterday was as follows:

Barker stepped from an automobile in front of 1502 North Crawford avenue and was slain. Two young men and a woman had rented a second floor flat in that building and moved into it on June 6, having a machine gun set up and automatic rifles and pistols handy. Yesterday morning the guns blazed.

Barker's companions—it was said there were two men and a woman with him—dragged him into the lobby of the Norford hotel, 1512 North Crawford avenue, the headquarters of Marty Guilfoyle, head gangster of that territory, whom Barker was about to visit. Then he was taken to a hospital by a bartender, who said Barker was a frequent visitor at the speakeasy. The waiter, Lawrence Evans, said he didn't know any of the men with Barker. He helped take Barker to the Keystone hospital and he was the only one there when a policeman arrived. The others had fled. So had the occupants of the machine gun flat.

Barker's brother, Dr. J. Gould Barker, said he didn't know any one who would want to kill Barker. He didn't know what union had his brother for a business agent. Neither did the widow, Mrs. Josephine Barker, 426 North Austin avenue, according to her answers to Coroner Frank J. Walsh. After a few more "I don't know's" to Walsh's questions she was excused and the inquest was continued to July 1 to "allow the police time to investigate."

TEN MEN KILLED, 16 MISSING AFTER BLASTS ON SHIP

Forty Hurt in Mysterious Explosions on Tanker.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTREAL, Que., June 17.—Ten persons are known to be dead, while sixteen others are still missing this evening, following a series of explosions on the British oil tanker Cymbeline. The explosions began shortly after 3 a. m. today in the Canadian Vickers dry docks in the east end of the city. Forty persons were seriously injured.

Raoul Gauthier, director of the Montreal fire department, died while leading his men into the ship to rescue trapped workers. About seventy men were aboard the tanker. Some were sleeping in their bunks, while a relay was at work on a special night shift.

Three Blasts Wreck Ship.

Three blasts ripped the steel girders apart and wrecked the entire ship. The first occurred at 3:15 a. m. At 4:20 a. m., while firemen and workmen were fighting the flames, the second and third blasts set the 5 million dollar dry dock afire. Today it is a battered wreck. The ship sank after the first explosion.

The causes of the explosions still remained a mystery tonight.

The known dead are: Fire Chief Raoul Gauthier, Fireman Paul Henrichon, Fireman Debrienne, Fireman Hamelin, John Ewen, James Wilson, John Riddell, James Corbett, Donald Gunn, and William Atherton.

Buildings in Montreal today flew flags at half-staff. The city hall announced a civic funeral will be held for the victims. Fire Chief Gauthier, who has a dominion-wide reputation, leaves a widow and five children.

Relatives Crowd Shipyards.

Thousands of residents swarmed about the shipyard today. Many of them were relatives of the missing or injured. Some were attempting to learn whether their kin were dead or alive. They fought police lines as volunteers carried away the dead and injured in an effort to peer into the faces of the victims.

After the second and third explosions several were burned to death in sight of their comrades, whose attempts to reach them were thwarted by the flames. The ripped steel plates of the tanker were still so hot this afternoon that rescuers could not penetrate the wreckage to remove the bodies of the victims.

ASKS VOLSTEAD TO NAME ONE DRY LAW REFORMED

St. Paul, Minn., June 17.—(AP)—Five young men conducting a nation-wide search for an "honest, reformed drunkard" called on Andrew J. Volstead today, asked him if he could furnish names of any such, and were turned down by the author of the prohibition enforcement law.

That was the story of Paul Morris, New York, one of the young men. Mr. Volstead declined to confirm or deny Morris' statements.

"I asked him if he knew any men or women who had been drunkards before 1920 and had been reformed by prohibition," Morris said in an interview.

"'I know two or three up in my home district,'" Morris quoted Mr. Volstead as replying. "Mr. Volstead refused to give them to me. He thought I was silly for asking for the names."

Morris said Mr. Volstead advised him to "go out on the street and find them. There are plenty of them there."

"Mr. Volstead banged the table with his fist," said the New Yorker. "He said we were taking unfair advantage of the drys. He said, 'The drys don't keep books on the number of persons who have been reformed from drunkenness by prohibition. You are just after publicity.'"

BRYAN'S SON FINED IN LOS ANGELES ON SPEEDING CHARGE

Los Angeles, Cal., June 17.—(AP)—A case of speeding in traffic court today was the basis for a prediction on how long it will take Democrats to put their political machine into shape at Chicago.

The guess is about one day. It came about this way:

Through counsel, William Jennings Bryan Jr., son of the late Commoner, pleaded guilty to speeding. The sentence was $7 fine or two days in jail.

Upon the plea of counsel that Bryan was en route to the Democratic national convention, which opens June 27, the court suspended the sentence until his return. And the return was fixed for June 30, which, allowing for train schedules, leaves it up to the Democrats to put on a whirlwind convention if Bryan is to get back to traffic court on time.

John D. Booth, 29 years old, assistant cashier of the First National bank of La Grange, was arrested yesterday by government agents following his confession to the embezzlement of $22,500 of the bank funds. Arraigned immediately before United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker, he waived examination and was held to the grand jury in bond of $10,000 on charge of embezzling money from a national bank.

In his confession Booth said he had lost the entire sum in betting on horse races. The bets, he said, were laid with Eddy Myer, La Grange bookmaker. Myer was arrested and held in $5,000 bond on the charge of aiding in the embezzlement. Myer's hearing was set for June 24.

Facing Exposure, Confesses.

Booth had been taking the money for the past year in ever increasing amounts, Assistant United States District Attorney Owen West said. Early this week directors of the bank decided to conduct an audit of the bank books. Realizing that his defalcations would be discovered, Booth last night went to President W. J. Tewksbury and confessed.

He told President Tewksbury that he had taken the money from a large cash fund which the bank had on hand to pay depositors in case of a run on the bank. Every cent of the money went to the bookmaker for losing horses, Booth said.

Insurance Covers Loss.

President Tewksbury said that the bank would suffer no loss, as the entire amount is covered by insurance. Booth, a Canadian, lived in the home of Mrs. B. T. Lewis, 424 Madison avenue, La Grange.

Mrs. Lewis said that Booths' one interest was race horses. He often told her of his plans to own a stable of his own, she said.

Booth came to the United States eight years ago from Toronto, where he had lived with a widowed mother and worked in a Toronto bank. He had returned last week from a visit he made to Toronto in order to be with his mother on his birthday.

Hooray!

The annual cry of joy—"School's out!"—echoed throughout the city yesterday afternoon as the city's scores of public schools discharged their respective populations for the summer vacation.

Officials estimated that 500,000 boys and girls, including 34,000 young graduates, had formally completed the season's work. Many of these will, however, occupy part of the summer months with extra class work.

Scenes at all the schools were similar as the happy pupils poured out of the doors, carrying books and other classroom equipment under their arms. They betokened the start of one grand and extended holiday.

DRY EXPERIMENT CALLED DOOMED; CHANGE CERTAIN

G. O. P. for Modification, and Democrats Will Be.

of the Republican politicians if Mr. Hoover in his acceptance speech were to take a position drier than the platform, just as Al Smith took a position wetter than the Houston platform in 1928.

Submission of a new amendment is, therefore, not within the range of possibilities before the election nor for that matter afterward within the life of this congress, which will end March 4 next. The present congress is dry and amenable to all the arguments for delay that will emanate from the dry organizations. The drys contend that even if the Republican plank were binding upon anybody it would not be binding on the members of the present congress. The platform, they argue, applies only to the November election in which the next President and the next congress will be chosen.

The drys think they have reason to believe that delay will save prohibition as is. They are convinced that the tidal wave of public sentiment against national prohibition that swept the Republican party into a declaration for modification has been caused by economic considerations. They regard it a manifestation of hard times. The people dissatisfied with everything and strong for a change have turned against prohibition. Overburdened with taxes, they are thinking of that billion and a quarter dollars of revenue that but for prohibition the federal government and local governments would receive annually from taxes on liquor.

Hope to Beat Modification.

With the return of prosperity, however, the economic factor would disappear and with it, the drys think, the popular reaction against prohibition. If times improve materially before the next congress assembles next year there will be a good chance, according to the dry leaders, of beating a modification, not to mention a repeal, amendment in congress.

It may be taken for granted, therefore, that not till the next congress meets will there be a chance of getting any amendment submitted. The next congress will not meet automatically until December, 1933. If the Democrats win the presidential election the new President undoubtedly will call the new congress into extraordinary session immediately after March 4, 1933. If President Hoover wins and the drys have their way with him there will be no extraordinary session.

Submission of a new amendment in 1933 or 1934 is about the most the anti-prohibitionists can hope for. After that it would take not less than two years to obtain ratification by the required three-fourths of the states.

Measure of Public Sentiment.

It may be asked why under such circumstances any one should hazard the prediction that national prohibition is doomed. Such prediction is based not upon the value of the Republican and the prospective Democratic platform declarations as a pledge of action by the parties but upon their value as a measure of public sentiment. Only an overwhelming volume of public sentiment for repeal or modification of the eighteenth amendment could have forced Mr. Hoover and his fellow Republicans to write the plank they did, straddle though it be.

Candidates for the next congress may not consider themselves bound by the platform, but they will be compelled to pledge themselves for or against repeal or modification by the demands of their constituents and it may be taken for granted that wet constituencies will return wet senators and representatives in most cases. Therefore, the volume of wet sentiment that forced the adoption of a modification plank by the Republicans may reasonably be expected to be reflected in the election of a wet Seventy-third congress.

Written With Drys.

It transpires that the Republican plank was written in collaboration with the drys group of which Daniel A. Poling of New York and Raymond Robins of Chicago are identified. Mr. Hoover did not accept it until it had been pronounced satisfactory by the drys. By this means precautions were taken against a fiery bolt of the ticket. The plank was formally indorsed yesterday by Alonzo E. Wilson, executive director of the American Business Men's Prohibition Foundation and director of the Allied Dry Groups in Illinois.

"The plank," he said, "is [1] for enforcement of law; [2] commits the President; [3] pledges all Republican nominees, federal, state, and county, to enforcement; [4] denounces nullification; [5] warns against nonobservance; [6] warns against use of liquor; [7] lodges in the federal government permanent control of manufacture, sale, and distribution of liquor even in wet states; [8] discourages referendums and denounces those who propose them; [9] permits candidates for congress to follow their convictions and the wishes of their constituents; [10] does not favor resubmission limited to repeal; [11] acknowledges benefits and gain of prohibition and demands they be preserved; [12] declares the evils from violation of the liquor law must be eliminated; [13] opposed return of saloon and its attendant abuses, and [14] favors allowing the people to vote on the question only in the constitutional way."

DEMOCRATS EDGE INTO LIMELIGHT

G. O. P. BATTLE TO BE WAGED FROM CHICAGO

Democrats Also May Choose City.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 17.—[Special.]—Tentative plans drawn up at the White House in advance of the arrival of Everett Sanders, the new chairman of the Republican national committee, call for the establishment of the main headquarters at Chicago during the campaign to reelect President Hoover and Vice President Curtis.

EVERETT SANDERS

Although many of the major decisions will be made in Washington, where the President will remain during the summer and fall, Chicago will be the center of activities from which the battle to keep the Republicans in power will be waged.

From all indications the Democratic party, when their candidates have been nominated, also will establish its major headquarters in Chicago in the belief that the party which can win the great agrarian west and the big wet urban centers of that area will win the election.

Dickinson Slated for Job.

It was stated in a high quarter today that Senator L. J. Dickinson [Rep., Ia.], keynoter at the Republican national convention, probably will be selected as western campaign manager for the Hoover-Curtis ticket.

To the delight of photographers as well as officeholders desirous of gaining the ear of the White House, Herbert Hoover, the President, became Herbert Hoover, the nominee, today. No one could have been more obliging than was the President when the photographers descended upon the White House today to take pictures.

Accompanied by Vice President Curtis, who had called at the White House to exchange congratulatory messages, President Hoover walked to the south lawn of the White House to face smilingly the clicking cameras.

In Hands of Cameramen.

Placing themselves almost entirely in the hands of the cameramen, the President and the Vice President walked from one spot to another at the dictation of a surprised group of still cameramen who in recent weeks have been resentful over the partiality shown the operators of the sound motion picture machines by Mr. Hoover. In the end the President posed with the photographers while one of their number snapped a picture.

Returning cabinet officers were the center of congratulating administration officials when they reached the White House for the regular semi-weekly meeting of the Hoover official family. Secretary of the Treasury Ogden L. Mills was one of the first to arrive. All commended him on his success in pushing the President's prohibition program through the committee and convention.

"Congratulations on a fine job, Mr. Secretary," called out Secretary of Commerce Lamont when he caught sight of Mills. "It was just about a 99 and 9-10 per cent perfect job," chimed in dry Secretary of the Interior Wilbur.

SENATE TO GET COUNCIL'S 'PORK' BILL PROTEST

City Clerk Peter J. Brady has prepared copies of the city council resolution calling for defeat of the Garner "pork barrel" postoffice bill, and will transmit them to Senators Glenn and Lewis of Illinois, and to the clerk of the United States senate.

The resolution, introduced by Ald. B. A. Cronson [4th], was passed unanimously by the council Monday. After terming the Garner proposal, already passed by the house, one for "enormous expenditures on unnecessary and unproductive public buildings," and declaring that passage of the bill would have an insignificant effect in relief of unemployment, the resolution states:

"The city council urges the senate to defeat the Garner postoffice bill in the interests of American taxpayers, as providing for unjustifiable and wasteful expenditures of public money."

Calls Police to Report Robbery; Arrested Himself

Harry Sintovisky, manager of the Harris Coffee shop at 316 South Market street, called the police yesterday to report a robbery. Two detectives were sent to get his story. He related that an armed man had come in, forced him and a girl employe into the basement and had then taken $400. Having taken it all down in longhand, the policeman arrested Sintovisky for possession of a slot machine, which they seized.

THREE WOMEN DIE OF FALLS.

Three elderly women died yesterday in the county hospital of injuries suffered in falls. The victims were Mrs. Mary Kimbart, 74 years old, 2224 Homan avenue; Mrs. Mary England, 69, 648 Buckingham place, and Mrs. Mary Dyer, 67, 6106 Ellis avenue.

HELD ON 8 ROBBERY CHARGES.

Hurk Holston, Negro, 847 East 43d street, was held to the grand jury yesterday in bond of $80,000 by Judge Francis B. Allegretti on eight charges of robbery.

SOME DRYS ARE GLAD, BUT OTHERS ARE SAD OVER G. O. P. PLANK

A sharp divergence of opinion developed yesterday among the organized drys with reference to the Hoover prohibition plank adopted by the Republican national convention.

Alonzo E. Wilson, executive director of the American Business Men's Prohibition foundation and leader of Illinois allied dry groups, declared the adoption of the plank a "dry victory" and characterized the rejection of the minority plank as "another flop" for the wets.

Mrs. Henry W. Peabody, general chairman of the Woman's National Committee for Law Enforcement, issued a statement saying the adoption of the plank "is by no means a dry victory."

Mrs. Peabody is calling a conference in Indianapolis July 4 for discussion of the situation, but will first endeavor to commit the Democrats to a bone dry stand at their convention here, she indicated.

"The statement that our committee is proceeding with plans for a woman's prohibition party is without foundation," Mrs. Peabody said. "The women must follow their individual consciences looking towards some solution in the Democratic convention. If this should fail it may be that men and women with vision and courage may consider giving to the disfranchised groups a place to record their convictions."

DAWES LEAVES CAPITAL; SEES BUSINESS GAINS

Through with Public Life, He Says.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Before he departed the former Vice President, ambassador, budget director, and president of the Reconstruction Finance corporation dropped in at the White House to bid President Hoover good-by and to point out a bit of blue in the general business horizon.

"I told the President," Mr. Dawes said at few moments before he left with Mrs. Dawes for the train, "that the turning point toward improvement in the general business of the country had been reached."

Silent on Future Plans.

While willing to talk freely about the pleasures of returning to private life and the management of his bank, the former Vice President flatly declined to throw any more light on the business situation. He also remained silent when asked to outline his plans for the future or to chart a course by which American government costs could be brought down to possible revenues. He will have something to say in Chicago, however.

Although pale, Mr. Dawes looked in fine condition when he emerged from the White House. He was in high spirits. It developed later that he had spent most of the morning with the President discussing the work of the Reconstruction Finance corporation and the changes which his retirement makes necessary.

Makes Farewell Calls.

The call at the White House was the last of a number of farewell calls paid by Mr. Dawes. Earlier officers of the Reconstruction Finance corporation and the interstate commerce commission, as well as treasury officials connected with the corporation work, gathered at the old office occupied by Mr. Dawes to bid him goodby. As spokesman for the group Balthasar Meyer of the interstate commerce commission paid tribute to Mr. Dawes.

Hawaiian G. O. P. Leaders Cheer "Home Rule" Plank

HONOLULU, June 17.—(AP)—Republican leaders of Hawaii, some of whom had been worried over the possibility of commission rule in the territory, expressed gratification today over the inclusion of a "home rule" plank in the Republican platform. Roy Vitousek, Republican speaker of the territorial house, said if President Hoover were reelected on such a plank Hawaii would be "safe."

MURRAY'S WIFE PROMISES TO BE AT CONVENTION

She Accepts Bid to Women's Party.

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

To date Mrs. William Murray of Oklahoma, wife of the Oklahoma governor, is the only Democratic presidential candidate's wife who has definitely declared her intention of coming to Chicago for the convention, which opens June 27.

MRS. WM. MURRAY.
[Assoc. Press Photo.]

Mrs. Murray sent a telegram to Mrs. Elizabeth A. Conkey, Democratic national committeewoman, who is general chairman of the Illinois Democratic women's national convention committee. Mrs. Murray said she would be delighted to come to the breakfast the committee is giving at 9:15 o'clock the morning of June 27 in the Stevens hotel ballroom if she arrives in time."

Mrs. Al Smith Expected.

Mrs. Al Smith of New York has not yet replied to Mrs. Conkey's invitation, but it is understood that she and her two daughters will be here, and the committee is hopeful of their coming to the party, Mrs. Conkey said. Mr. and Mrs. Smith and their two daughters have made reservations at the Congress hotel.

Mrs. James Hamilton Lewis is expected to be present. Mrs. Melvin A. Traylor of Chicago apparently does not allow herself to be classified as a candidate's wife. She is on the subcommittee on arrangements of Mrs. Conkey's committee.

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, wife of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, who has been expected to arrive with her husband is not coming, she wired the committee.

Mrs. Harry Flood Byrd, wife of the former governor of Virginia, cannot come because of illness. Miss Mary White, daughter of Gov. George White of Ohio, will not be here because of her mother's recent death.

Mrs. Jim Reed of Missouri has not yet replied to the invitation. Mrs. John N. Garner, wife of the speaker of the house, has declined, saying she is not coming to Chicago for the convention.

Garden Party Planned.

The breakfast is the largest party planned for visiting Democratic women. Another social event scheduled for the afternoon of June 26, from 4 to 7 o'clock, is a garden party for visiting national committeewomen, delegates, alternates and distinguished visitors. It will be at the home of Judge and Mrs. Clarence N. Goodwin in Lake Forest, and buses will call for delegates and take them back to their hotels. Mrs. Anna Roosevelt Dall of New York, daughter of Gov. Roosevelt, and Mrs. Lewis will be among the guests. On the arrangements committee are Mrs. Wayne Chatfield Taylor, Mrs. Carter Harrison Jr., Mrs. Robert McCreary, Mrs. Kenneth Templeton and Mrs. C. Edson Manierre.

Mrs. Nellie Taylee Ross, former governor of Wyoming and vice chairman of the Democratic national committee, will be at both parties.

SHOUSE EXPECTS DEMOCRATS TO SUBMIT REPEAL

Sees Plank Looking Toward State Control.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

A Democratic plank for submission of repeal of the 18th amendment is likely to be the answer of the Democratic national convention, which meets on June 27, to the "straddle" plank of the Republicans. This was the opinion expressed yesterday by incoming Democratic leaders.

Jouett Shouse, executive chairman of the Democratic national committee, first of the party chieftains to arrive, said the trend is all toward a plank advocating action that would, by the process set up in the constitution, give America a chance to vote on whether national prohibition should be repealed and the liquor question returned to the states to be dealt with without federal interference.

"My guess," said Shouse, "is that is as far as the Democratic party will go. I doubt if the party will go on record to pledge itself for repeal, but will go for submission of repeal."

Plank Rejected by G. O. P.

Submission of repeal was urged in the minority Bingham plank which the Republican convention turned down in favor of the "straddle" which the postmasterships and federal pay-rollers of the Democratic states of the south wrote into the Republican national platform.

The Democrats propose to get a running start on their platform making. Mr. Shouse said more than 50 proposed planks on prohibition have been received at national headquarters. They range from dripping, sopping, wringing wet to desiccated, Saharan dry.

Notices have been received that forty members of the resolutions committee, which writes the platform, have already been selected. On Thursday they will meet informally at the Congress hotel and will start wrestling with the various issues to be taken up, prohibition, of course, looming above all the others.

Most of Planks Wet.

"These advance meetings," said Shouse, "will, of course, be informal and unofficial. Of the fifty proposed planks which have come from all sorts of people, some of them being from Republicans, I'd say the great majority are very wet. The trend of them is repeal.

"I think the southern states will vote the Democratic ticket regardless of the Democratic platform. I think they had plenty of voting the Republican ticket in 1928, and I don't know of any of them which will vote Republican this year. They'll be for the Democratic ticket and the platform."

As to the Republican straddle plank and the reaction of the Democratic party, Mr. Shouse, answering a question, remarked:

"I don't think it would be possible to have a plank as confusing as the Republican plank on prohibition.

"I gather that representative men in the Democratic party will not seek to put the party on pledge for repeal, but for submission of repeal."

Hear Contests on Friday.

Only two contests have been filed—Minnesota and Porto Rico—and the national committee will meet next Friday afternoon to hear them.

On Friday, too, a victory fund conference is to be held at which "victory campaign" chairmen in all the states will report on the luck they have had in raising their quotas towards the Democratic party's $1,500,000 preparedness fund. John W. Davis, general chairman of the drive, will preside, and National Chairman John J. Raskob will be one of the speakers.

Al Smith of New York, nominee in 1928, is expected in Chicago Wednesday or Thursday. Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt is not expected to be on the scene unless he is nominated, in which event he may make a quick dash to Chicago, His manager, James A. Farley, New York state chairman, is expected to arrive today or tomorrow.

Garner Forces Accuse Roosevelt.

With twelve or fifteen Democratic hats already in the ring for the two places on the national ticket, hostilities opened yesterday when Garner for President headquarters put out an accusation that the Roosevelt forces are "double crossing" Shouse for permanent chairman.

Speaker Garner Reported Improving from Bronchitis

Washington, D. C., June 17.—(AP)—Improvement was reported today in the condition of Speaker Garner, who is ill at his hotel with bronchitis.

NEW YORK G. O. P. BEGINS TO THINK ABOUT GOVERNOR

Expects Choice to Be a Dripping Wet.

New York, June 17.—[Special.]—The Republican special returned from Chicago today bringing New York's Republican delegation from the national convention.

W. KINGSLAND MACY.

State Chairman W. Kingsland Macy, whose leadership of the party in New York became firmly established at the convention, will immediately begin preparations for the state campaign. A candidate for the governorship probably will be selected at an early date so that he may be built up in advance of the fall convention.

The New York delegates are resigned to the prohibition plank adopted by the convention under administration leadership. Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, who advocated a straight declaration for repeal and spoke against the administration plank on the floor of the convention, has been asked by the Blue Cockade, an anti-dry organization in New York, to lead a third party, devoted to repeal of the eighteenth amendment, but is not expected to accept.

There is a feeling now that a dripping wet must be selected for the New York governorship nomination to neutralize the prohibition plank in the national platform. Hitherto it has been suggested that an upstate dry might be chosen to prevent such a split as occurred two years ago when Gov. Roosevelt defeated Charles H. Tuttle by the greatest plurality in the state's history.

Speaker Joseph A. McGinnies had been the center of most of the speculation of this nature. It is interesting to note that the speaker, hitherto the "darling of the drys," lined up in Chicago with the New York City delegates in favor of the repeal plank against almost all of his upstate colleagues, who favored the administration compromise.

THOMAS CONDON DROPS PLEA FOR CUT IN ALIMONY

Thomas R. Condon, head of the Condon Industries, appeared before Superior Judge Harry B. Miller yesterday and said he was willing to continue paying alimony of $800 a month to his divorced wife, Mrs. Mary G. Condon, 553 Hawthorne place. Then he asked the judge to dismiss his petition to reduce the payments, and his request was granted.

"I merely wanted to be able to see my son, Thomas Jr.," Condon told the judge. "I had been having trouble in seeing him before I filed the petition. He is 5 years old, and his mother often had him wear white shoes covered with powder, which came off on my suits and car. Often I was kept from seeing the child.

"Since I asked leave to reduce the alimony I've had no trouble at all. I have been able to see the boy as often as I wished and the white shoes are gone. I'd like to dismiss the petition."

Mrs. Condon won a divorce in July, 1930, on grounds of cruelty.

LIGHTNING KILLS TWO AND FIRES BOAT FACTORY

Philadelphia, Pa., June 17.—(AP)—Lightning killed two men today, injured several other persons, set fire to a factory and two large barns, and damaged houses and vehicles while a torrential downpour stalled traffic and flooded streets and cellars.

A dozen men who had been playing pinochle in Fern Hill park ran to the shelter of a big elm street when the downpour started. Two of them—Anthony Fassano and John Welsh—became uneasy at the lightning, told their companions the shelter was unsafe, and started to leave.

That instant a bolt struck. Fassano and Welsh were killed. Four of the others were stunned and three required hospital treatment.

The upper floors of a five story factory in North Philadelphia occupied by three model boat building firms were damaged to the extent of $10,000 by a fire started by lightning, and four firemen were injured extinguishing it.

ARE PENGUIN'S EGGS WILD? U. S. WANTS TO KNOW

Is a penguin a wild bird, and if it is does the wildness extend to the eggs? This question has upset Chicago customs officials, and yesterday they asked Washington for a ruling.

Interested in the weighty ornithological problem is Ernest Byfield of the Hotel Sherman, who has hopes of serving penguin eggs as the newest table delicacy to visitors to the Democratic convention. A shipment of the eggs, labeled strictly fresh, arrived for Mr. Byfield recently from Cape Town, South Africa. They were held up by a statute which prohibits the importation of the eggs of wild fowl.

When Mr. Byfield learned of the delay he wrote to Collector Czarnecki:

"Let me assure you," he wrote in part, "that the penguin, even in its natural habitat, is not a wild bird. On the contrary, it is the most solemn member of the avian family. Let me suggest that these eggs be placed in cold storage because, should they hatch, new problems will arise which may ultimately reach congress."

'SECRET' COUNTY REPEAL PLANK CREATES MUDDLE

G. O. P. at Sea on Which Stand to Follow.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Discovery yesterday that the Cook county Republican organization had adopted its platform a week ago threw the members of that party in Chicago and its suburbs into a worse predicament than ever on the prohibition question.

First, the Illinois state convention adopted a platform calling for the repeal of the 18th amendment and immediate modification of the Volstead act. Then the national convention last Wednesday night approved the White House plank which has been branded as a straddle. And now it is found that the Cook county convention has followed the lead of the state convention.

Which Plank to Follow.

"Is our party wet or dry in this campaign?" asked Chicago Republicans when they discovered the character of the county plank on this subject. "Which controls the national, the state, or the county platform? The question of repeal is a national one, and are sincere advocates of prohibition reform justified in following local leadership when the national platform is opposed to their wishes and demands?"

The state plank on prohibition, adopted at Springfield on May 27, read as follows on national prohibition:

"We declare for the repeal of the 18th amendment. Pending such repeal, we declare for modification of the Volstead act to permit the sale of beer and light wines."

County Adopts Platform.

Without notice except to its own membership, the Cook county central committee, sitting as a county convention, adopted a platform including the following section on prohibition:

"The Republican party was founded on the basis of individual liberty. As Republicans we are unalterably opposed to all forms of sumptuary legislation which give power either to minority or majority to regulate the personal habits of any class of citizens so long as such habits do not deprive other citizens of their constitutional rights.

"In the referendum of 1930 the people of Cook county voted overwhelmingly against the present liquor laws, and it is plainly evident that the people of Cook county and of the state of Illinois are now even more today and tomorrow. Beginning Monoverwhelmingly against the present liquor laws than they were in 1930.

Declare for Repeal.

"We therefore declare for the repeal of the 18th amendment. Pending such repeal, we declare for the modification of the Volstead act to permit the manufacture and sale of beer and light wines.

"We declare for the repeal of the Illinois search and seizure act, and we also declare for the repeal of the Illinois prohibition laws.

"The speedy modification of the Volstead act to permit the manufacture and sale of beer and light wines would furnish employment in the brewery industry alone for 300,000 persons and many times that number in inter-related industries.

"In 1914, when the manufacture and sale of beer was legal in the United States, some 1,930,000,000 gallons were consumed. A federal tax of 25 cents per gallon on an annual consumption of that amount would yield approximately $500,000,000 annually to the federal government, to say nothing of local licenses.

Would Pay Bond Interest.

"In other words, a sufficient tax could be collected on beer to pay the interest and principal on the federal prosperity bond issue hereinafter recommended.

"It is estimated further that the opening of breweries would put coal miners to work digging out 3,000,000 tons of coal which the breweries would annually require and the brewery industry would put into use 200,000 freight cars and hundreds of locomotives annually.

"Even more important, the reopened brewer industry—figuring on the 1914 basis—would require three billion pounds of foodstuffs per year, including grains produced upon the farms of Illinois, with the resultant immediate increase in farm produce due to this increased demand.

Would Save for Taxpayers.

"While the country would gain by this new enormous revenue and by the opening of these new markets, the taxpayers would save tens of millions of dollars now spent annually in a futile attempt to enforce a law which experience shows cannot be enforced.

"Moreover, the repeal of the present prohibition laws would mark the end of the reign of terror of the crime syndicates which have grown so powerful through wealth derived from the illegal liquor traffic that they have challenged the legally constituted authorities of our governments and constitute a menace to the orderly conduct of affairs everywhere in the country."

Asks Divorce After Six Months

Horace Liveright, publisher, and his wife, Mrs. Elise Bartlett Liveright, actress, as they appeared after marriage in Newark, N. J., Dec. 8, 1931.

Forgets About Alimony

New York, June 17.—(Special.)—Mrs. Elise Bartlett Liveright, an actress, appealed today to Referee John M. Tierney for a divorce from Horace Liveright, publisher, whom she married in Newark last Dec. 8.

During the course of the proceedings, which were held in the court of undefended matrimonial matters, Referee Tierney lectured one of the witnesses on the distinction between the words "woman" and "lady." He held that since the days of Moses "woman" had been the official and only suitable word "to distinguish the female of the human species."

Mrs. Liveright, who formerly was the wife of Joseph Schildkraut, stage and screen actor, testified briefly, explaining that she and her husband were married by a Newark judge whose name she could not recall. She said that no alimony had been arranged until reminded by her counsel, Philip Wittenberg, that a written agreement had been signed by the publisher.

A POLITE VILLAGE ASKS WHEN IS A HOME NOT A HOME

BY KATHLEEN M'LAUGHLIN.

The genteel village of Riverside went to law yesterday—in a perfectly genteel way—about the rambling old Reagan mansion and the number of Reagans it houses. It was indubitably the politest contested case on record. The courtroom cordiality of the litigants so bewildered Judge Philip J. Finnegan, habituated to verbal clashes, taunts and arm waving, that he peered suspiciously across his desk at the lawyers, and asked:

"Is this a serious suit or just a moot question?"

Attorney S. Ashley Guthrie, for the village, drew himself up to his full height and retorted with impressive dignity.

"Your honor, this is a very, very serious situation. We are going to determine whether this Riverside residential section will be thrown open to the remodeling of homes for several families, or whether it will retain its character under the zoning ordinances."

It is the contention of the suburb that under the pressure of the depression, the huge old house swelled accommodatingly from the proportions of a one family home, to those of an apartment building housing three additional families. The village contends that these family groups changed the character of the building overnight from a law abiding residence to an illegal apartment, forbidden by village zoning ordinance.

Mother in Italy.

Evidence developed that the chief defendant, Mrs. Ellen Reagan, whose three daughters and their families inhabited the mansion, is in Italy with three other children; that Mr. and Mrs. George Hellyer, one daughter and son-in-law who were named in the bill of complaint sailed last month for Japan for a stay of three years. And that the neighbor who grew testy over the Reagan living arrangements and instigated the suit is now dead.

A deposition made by Mrs. Reagan before she left for Rome last fall related how she had been twice married, her first husband being a Chicago lawyer, Joseph Goddard, and her second, Herbert Reagan, both now dead. When she married Reagan each had five children by their first mates. Two more boys were born of the second marriage.

The testimony of several of the Reagan children yesterday kept the attorney for the plaintiff skipping nimbly from the significance of three doorbells and three mail boxes to where Jacqhelyn had lunch and when each young wife used the laundry equipment in the basement.

"Each of us buys his own food," Mrs. John Silverthorne, another of the married Reagan girls testified on the stand. "But the single children have lunch just wherever they happen to drop in—on the first or second or third floor."

Four at College.

The Silverthornes, the Robert Grimms, and the Hellyers, each with a child, had quarters in the old home when the suit was filed last September.

One water meter and one electric light meter, no leases and no stipulated rents, with each family contributing to a general fund, were points advanced by the defense to prove that the old house wasn't an apartment building. Separate dining rooms, three doorbells and three mail boxes and two separate entrances, argued the plaintiff, proved it wasn't just a house.

ROSS DANGLEO, 56, SUICIDE.

Ross Dangleo, 56 years old, 6601 South Winchester avenue, committed suicide yesterday by poison. His widow, Josephine, told police he lost his savings when a bank closed.

RASKOB SHARES $1,937,000 POOL IN SHORT SELLING

Senate Inquiry Learns of Fox Film Deal.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 17.—[Special.]—Testimony linking John J. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic national committee, with William Fox, creator of the vast motion picture enterprises bearing his name, in short selling pools in Fox Film stock was presented today to the senate stock market investigating committee.

JOHN J. RASKOB.

William A. Gray, special counsel for the senate banking committee, in a two hour presentation of his investigation of the operations of the Fox interests, declared Mr. Fox was organizing these pools while selling gigantic blocks of nonvoting stock to the public.

Declaring Mr. Fox had manipulated his stock as he saw fit, Mr. Gray said the operations were carried out to keep up prices on Fox corporation stocks so that he could unload shares on the public at profitable figures in the face of a rapidly falling market.

Theater Magnate Again Absent.

Mr. Fox again was absent, confined to his hotel by illness. When Mr. Gray challenged the sincerity of the theater magnate's illness Dr. F. A. Hornaday, Fox's physician, was placed on the stand, and testified that he was suffering from a diabetic condition, which would become severe if he submitted himself to the ordeal of cross-examination.

At the close of the session the committee voted 5 to 3 to ask the senate to continue the investigating through the remainder of this congress, carrying it up to March, 1933. Senator Peter Norbeck [radical Rep., S. D.], committee chairman, prepared a resolution requesting an additional $50,000 for this purpose.

Mr. Gray told the committee Mr. Fox had conducted his operations through 22 brokerage houses, accounts being found in his own name, the names of various relatives, associates and brokers. He said Mr. Fox's daughter, Mrs. Caroline Leah Tausig, received $441,000 as a share of the brokerage commission in a stock transaction in 1926.

Fails to Get Income Tax Record.

Among numerous other charges, he presented what he termed evidence to show that Mr. Fox had violated New York state income tax laws by making deductions for stock losses on his personal tax return after charging the same losses against the corporations. Under questioning Mr. Gray said he had been unable to obtain Mr. Fox's federal income tax returns.

A determination by the committee to carry its investigation into the personal tax returns of the important witnesses who have appeared before the committee was indicated when a motion by Senator James Couzens [Rep., Mich.] to obtain these reports from the internal revenue bureau was carried unanimously.

The pool in which Mr. Raskob's name was linked involved 500,000 shares of Fox corporation stock and yielded its sponsors a profit of $1,937,000. Associated with Mr. Fox and Mr. Raskob in the same pool, Mr. Gray said, were William F. Kenny, Mrs. Elizabeth Meehan, Joseph E. Higgins, Walter P. Chrysler, and Bradford Ellsworth. Mr. Gray did not describe in detail the pool in which he said Mr. Raskob participated, but he characterized it as "a pure short trading account."

Fox Sells Controlling Shares.

Mr. Gray testified that the Fox Films and Fox Theater corporations prospered until the stock market crash in 1929. In April, 1930, he said, Mr. Fox sold his controlling shares to a syndicate for 15 million dollars, plus an annuity of $500,000 to be paid for five years and numerous large additional payments to relatives and associates.

In the last months of Mr. Fox's dictatorship over the corporations, Mr. Gray said, their structure was weakened by his purchase of $75,000,000 worth of stock in the American theatre properties and $20,000,000 worth of British properties at prices in excess of their market value.

The committee's session frequently was interrupted by clashes between Mr. Gray and witnesses. Dr. Hornaday was called by Benjamin Reass, attorney for Mr. Fox, after Mr. Gray testified the physician had agreed with two doctors sent to the theater man's bedside by the committee that he was well enough to testify.

Dr. Hornaday denied he had made the statement to Mr. Gray or that the committee's physicians had examined Mr. Fox this morning. He said he had advised Mr. Fox to go to a hospital for treatment. This announcement was accepted as indicating that Mr. Fox probably would not appear during the present meetings of the committee.

Contradict a Witness.

Ferdinand Eberstadt, a former partner in the banking firm of Otis & Co., denied testimony to the committee yesterday that his company was associated with Cyrus K. Eaton, Cleveland financier, in an operation which wrecked the Continental Shares, Inc., investment corporation. David Stock, a committee investigator, testified that Mr. Eaton used the Continental company to save Otis & Co. from ruin.

Mr. Eberstadt testified that all of the money paid to Otis & Co., from the Continental corporation had been owed for some time. The committee and Mr. Gray allowed to go unchallenged a statement by Mr. Eberstadt that the committee was permitting itself to be used as "a dupe" by persons with a selfish interest.

MRS. LUCILLE FORBES.

Judge Joseph Sabath effected a tentative reconciliation between Alexander D. Forbes, son of a Rockford banker, and Mrs. Lucille Forbes, 4246 Sheridan road, when they appeared before him yesterday in the Superior court in Mrs. Forbes' suit for separate maintenance.

Mrs. Forbes and her attorney, Benjamin B. Davis of Socrates & Davis, appeared on a motion for temporary alimony and solicitors' fees. She started her separate maintenance action nearly two years ago, at which time she also sued her parents-in-law for $500,000, charging alienation of affections. In February a court at Cut Bank, Mont., where Forbes manages oil properties for his father, Walter Forbes, denied his bill for divorce, in which he charged desertion.

"Your honor," Forbes told Judge Sabath yesterday, "I have decided that I love my wife. I'm not going to let anything stand in the way of getting her back."

Judge Sabath took them into his chambers, whence they emerged arm in arm after an hour and a half's conference with him.

"They are going to lunch together," Judge Sabath said, smiling, "and then they are going to Rockford to talk to his parents. They will report back here July 7, and at that time the separate maintenance and alienation suits will probably be dismissed, and Mrs. Forbes will go back to Montana with her husband."

DR. SCHIRESON OPENS FIGHT TO REGAIN LICENSE

Asks Court to Overrule State Board.

Attorneys for Henry J. Schireson, plastic surgeon whose license to practice medicine in Illinois was revoked by the state department of registration and education more than two years ago, yesterday appeared before Circuit Judge Joseph Fitch with a petition for a writ of certiorari, which is, in effect, an appeal from the decision of the state department.

DR. SCHIRESON.

Under the writ Judge Fitch would study the evidence which was presented before a state medical committee consisting of Dr. M. L. Harris, former president of the American Medical association, and four other doctors. The judge may find that the decision was correct or he may reverse the committee's findings which led to the revocation of the license.

Attacks State Procedure.

Attorney Joseph Z. Willner, representing Dr. Schireson, contended that incompetent testimony was permitted at the hearing, that the members of the medical committee went outside of their jurisdiction and erred in many rulings, and that a case had not been made against the plastic surgeon. Judge Fitch, after listening to arguments, ordered an adjournment until June 22.

The revocation of Dr. Schireson's license resulted from charges following an operation which resulted in the amputation of both legs of Miss Sayde Holland, 4910 Winthrop avenue.

Miss Holland testified she went to the surgeon to have a scar on her arm removed and that he induced her to have an operation to straighten her legs. Infection set in after the operation, which made the amputation necessary.

Woman Forced to Testify.

Miss Holland admitted at the previous hearing that she had compromised a suit against Schireson for $40,000, part of which was paid in cash and the remainder to be paid in monthly installments. She also admitted she had agreed, in accepting the settlement, that she would not appear in any legal proceedings against the doctor.

First Assistant Attorney General Harry Ash, who prosecuted Dr. Schireson, pointed out that Miss Holland was unable to keep the agreement because a Circuit court order compelled her to testify in the proceedings to revoke Schireson's license.

Nab Fugitive as He Quits Hiding Place in Barrel

Carl Jackson, 34 years old, arrested as a burglar in Aurora, dashed out of the city jail there yesterday as he was being led toward his cell. Policemen and volunteers pursued him through the streets until he crawled into a barrel standing in an alley. The pursuers passed by him, but the barrel was so small and airless that Jackson was unable to remain in it. He was captured soon after he crawled out of it.

POLICE FIRE ON AUTOS.

Police yesterday fired 10 shots at the occupants of two automobiles who sped away when ordered to halt for questioning at Lawrence and Kimball avenues.

ARMY COUP PUTS DAVILA AT HEAD OF CHILE AGAIN

Radical Chiefs Prisoners of New Junta.

BY JOHN LIVINGSTONE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SANTIAGO, Chile, June 17.—Chile today had its third government within the space of three weeks as the result of a military coup. The latest revolutionary movement was launched by the combined forces of the army and navy. Its purpose was explained in a manifesto to the people which read:

"The officers of the army and navy could not permit the republic of Chile to be carried toward communism. They have arranged for civilians to take charge of the government. The armed forces will go back to their professional duties, keeping a strict lookout to prevent any change of this patriotic sentiment."

CARLOS DAVILA.
[Harris & Ewing Photo.]

Davila Back in Saddle.

Oddly enough, Carlos G. Davila, formerly ambassador to the United States, who was the principal participant in the bloodless coup which drove President Juan Esteban Montero from power on June 4, led last night's storming of the government house which resulted in the removal of Col. Marmaduke Grove, ultra radical minister of defense, and other undesired members of the Socialist junta.

Davila was immediately put at the head of a new Socialist junta "devoid of extremists." He declared that the constituent assembly will be called at once, and that its mission will be "to prepare, within a short space of time, a new political constitution for the Socialist republic." Davila added that power of the judiciary branch and international agreements will be respected. Other members of the junta are Alberto Cabero, president of the senate, and Nolasco Cardenas, Democratic leader.

Col. Grove and another member of the junta, Eugenio Matte, are prisoners of the carabineers and will be deported. Premier Rolando Merino, who succeeded Davila when he resigned from the junta last Sunday because his policy of moderation displeased the radicals, and other members of the cabinet were set free and allowed to return to their homes today, following their capture last night.

Restore Socialist Ideals.

The first act of the new Socialist régime was to declare that the previous junta had twisted the Socialist ideals of the original revolutionary movement of June 4, and that it was the purpose to restore them. All state governors are being changed. Garrison commanders are being appointed in their places.

Finance Minister Zanartu today said that regarding Cosach [the $375,000,000 Chilean nitrate combine, largely owned by United States interests], a final settlement will not be difficult. His solution involves a merger of all interests in Chile holding property in the nitrate fields.

Carabineers were given strict orders to take firm control so as to maintain order, prevent strikes, and suppress communist activities. The capital is calm after last night's harmless gunfire and the streets are patrolled by troops.

As the new junta took power 500 Communists were arrested and the streets were cleared. Troops surrounded the presidential palace.

"It is our aim to create a purely Socialist state," Davila said in his decree. "It will be a moderate Socialist state with no connection whatever either with the extreme left or the extreme right."

Foreign Residents Suspend Flight.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUENOS AIRES, June 17. — A threatened flight from Chile by foreign residents was suspended following the downfall of the radical government of Col. Marmaduke Grove, messages from Valparaiso said tonight. More than 400 reservations had been made aboard ships leaving that port. The American colony at Santiago had completed plans to concentrate in a college building at Los Leones, a suburb, where supplies of food and arms were assured.

It was learned today that the Chilean congress, prior to its dissolution by Col. Grove, had secretly voted the necessary constitutional permission for President Juan Esteban Montero to absent himself from the country, thereby outwitting Grove who intended to create a presidential vacancy by deporting him. Montero, therefore, is still regarded as the constitutional president.

BLAMES FEDERAL AGENT FOR DEATH OF MORROW MAID

New York, June 17.—[Special.]—Violet Sharpe, maid for Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow, might not have committed suicide if a U. S. department of justice agent, working on the Lindbergh case, had accepted the offer of Ernest Brinkert of New Rochelle to go before the girl to prove that she had never seen him. This theory was advanced tonight by Brinkert, who was released after spending a week in the New Jersey state police station at Alpine, N. J.

"Six days before Violet Sharpe committed suicide a man named Murphy, from the department of justice, asked me about her," Brinkert said. "I told him I never saw the girl. He said it was in connection with the Lindbergh case. I told him I had nothing to fear and I offered to go with him, right then and there, to confront her, but he said that wasn't necessary."

Elmer Johnson, the fourth member of the party with which Miss Sharpe spent the evening of March 1 when the Lindbergh baby was kidnaped, was released today by New Jersey state police.

Tale of Early Southwest Is Good Picture

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"Prairie Chronicle." by Juana Foust. [Putnam.] Published yesterday.

IN THE school of the historic literary pageantry of America a new pupil has won honors. Juana Foust tells the story of a treking, pioneering family in "Prairie Chronicle," setting out from what would seem to most readers a country still primitive to pioneer in country primeval. There was something of the same spirit in those who drove their prairie schooners or rode their ponies over the plains as there was in those who watched the sails of the Mayflower fill with the welcome breeze which made possible their ferry to the forest primeval. They went for different reasons.

JUANA FOUST.
[Drawing by Von Klieber.]

In the later pioneer trek there was little seeking of a wilderness in which the worship of God might go unmolested. More often the wilderness of the later pioneers was a haven from the sheriff. But the hardihood and the passion for independence were alike in both generations of squatters.

From Georgia just after the civil war Swannee Collins, full blooded Cherokee wife of a once wealthy planter, left with her four sons to seek whatever recouping of the fortunes wrecked by war they might find in the wilderness of Texas. With the drowning of Swannee as she was trying to make the crossing of a river by holding to the tail of her swimming horse the family broke up. Three of the brothers settled in Texas.

The fourth, Return John Collins, married on the road and pushed on to New Mexico, where a dynasty of Collinses was founded with a group of cottonwoods which, transplanted by them and tended to their maturity, became a symbol of the tribe. It is of the son of that Return John Collins, the handsomest man for miles around, and with his sisters and brother that the book has most to say. What happened to Return John when he found the Indian girl he loved on the schoolhouse floor with a young bounder of the neighborhood the night before their departure to the new country, what happened when, after ten years, he went back to marry her, and what finally happened when he ran away with a woman who had loved him ever since she set eyes on him is the backbone of the book. But the whole body of it is the vast Collins clan and its defiance of God and love.

Mrs. Foust has chosen to set down her chronicle as if it were in fact nothing but a record of the facts of the lives of those chronicled. She has eliminated any mention of their emotional reactions, their mental castigations [if they had any], and uplifts. She has set down without any embellishment the mere factual details of their lives. The result is a chronicle in the strictest sense of the word, and not so much a novel. Ernest Hemingway chose the same method, but somehow he manages to inject into his bare chronicles something so powerfully alive that the facts stir the reader into almost a passion of understanding of the characters. Mrs. Foust does not manage so to quicken her pages. The pages are interesting for the very fact that they have perfect factualness and so little of the quality which uproots readers' minds and emotions.

She has managed to do an almost purely pictorial thing—to make a two-dimensional record of an interesting period, and never to give the reader any disconcerting feeling of that third dimension which gives roundness to a character, nor that as yet indefinable fourth dimension which catches the evanescent mystic reality of the human mind.

Mrs. Foust has truly succeeded in giving her readers in a "Prairie Chronicle" a panoramic record of a picturesque day and a picturesque people. As a first book it is unusually interesting artistically. As a novel it is, however, lacking in that quality of intense individual reality which makes of a work of fiction a moving human story.

Juana Foust is the wife of Hal Foust, automobile editor of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

Pledges Correct Golf Swing in Three Minutes

Morrison's Book Riddles Many Precedents.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.
[Golf Editor of The Chicago Tribune.]

GOLFERS who plan to read Alex Morrison's book and who have previously taken instructions from other professionals or who have followed the writings of other experts will do well to forget completely the teachings gleaned therefrom, for Morrison thoroughly riddles a majority of the game's commandments as accepted by most pupils and then proceeds to set forth his own with a conviction and clarity not generally found in books on golf instruction.

Newcomers to the game who have hitherto followed the great and near great in golf only through newspaper accounts of tournaments may have difficulty in identifying Morrison. The reason lies in the fact that he has not been a tournament player, but has devoted the last fifteen years to lecture and theatrical engagements, after having devised and developed what he calls "the correct golf swing."

He has occupied himself almost wholly with instructions [given at the rate of $200 for twelve lessons], exhibition matches and vaudeville engagements. Last year, for instance, he actually played complete rounds only six times, and in one of them, playing with his brother, Fred, winner of the rich Agua Caliente open last winter, defeated Olin Dutra and Roland Mackenzie after having alighted from a transcontinental train.

Morrison guarantees to teach his "correct swing" to anybody within three minutes, a boast which he writes he has fulfilled hundreds of times. Among his pupils have been Babe Ruth, Jack Dempsey, Rex Beach, Douglas Fairbanks, Paul Whiteman, Rube Goldberg, Charles Chaplin, all of whom he has assisted in reducing scores. He became interested in Ruth and Dempsey because of their terrific hitting power in their own work, and was amazed to find that neither could apply that power properly in golf before he analyzed their weaknesses.

One of his best pupils, if he may be called that, was Henry Ford, who, although he does not play the game, watched Morrison give a brief demonstration on the stage of a Detroit theater, and then proceeded to duplicate it almost perfectly in his own office a few hours later. The automobile magnate, Morrison points out, had gotten the idea of centrifugal force, the basic point in Morrison's system, almost instantly and demonstrated it to his son, Edsel, who plays the game.

The author of "A New Way to Better Golf," does not claim credit for an innovation in presenting his "correct swing," and stresses the fact with photographic illustrations of the swings of Bobby Jones, Tommy Armour, Helen Hicks, and MacDonald Smith, pointing out the similarity between their action and his own. He bears down on one point in particular in dissecting the proper swing and explaining it in detail. That is "Keep your chin back of the ball" and even goes so far as to close his book with that admonition set in capitals.

Morrison has been one of the foremost opponents of the "Don't" method of teaching golf and sets forth his own creed of taking an easy, natural swing in a manner so clear and understandable that the golfer who finds himself with perspiring brow and ragged nerves and aching muscles at the end of a few holes cannot help improving his golfing disposition, in addition to his game, after reading the book.

London Editor Pens Story of Political Era

Writes Book on Joseph Chamberlain.

BY FRANK SWINNERTON.

LONDON. — [Special Correspondence.] — Just at the moment when Neville Chamberlain was presenting his account of the nation's finances to parliament, J. L. Garvin, the editor of the London Observer, was delivering to the publishers the MS. of the first half of his biography of Joseph Chamberlain, the father of Neville and Sir Austen Chamberlain. The book will be completed in four volumes, of which the first two will be published in the autumn. This will be a book of importance, for in it will be told a good deal of British political history in the last years of last century and the first decade of this century.

J. L. GARVIN.

As for Mr. Garvin, he is one of the few great editors in English journalism. He has one great fault—that of verbosity—and extraordinary virtues, which include eloquence, wisdom, and humor. The London Observer is a vast sheet of news and views.

Rarely does a translation of a French novel cause any stir in England. This is because the people to whom the work of French authors appeals usually read French; and only Dumas, Balzac, Proust, and one or two more have their wider public in translation.

But one of the new books to receive most critical attention of late is a translation from the French. More, it is the translation of an old book — Eugene Fromentin's "Dominique." A very good translation, too, by Miss V. I. Longman and apparently the first that has ever been made, although "Dominique" is 70 years old.

The book, of course, has long been ranged among the classic French novels of a slighter order that does not exclude Constant's "Adolphe" and Prevost's "Manon Lescaut," but it is very subtle and, therefore, very quiet, and this is probably the reason we have had to wait so long for a translation. So great has been the notice attracted by Miss Longman's charming version that the original has been in considerable demand here; but those who do not read French with ease will be grateful to Miss Longman for making available so delicate a treat.

Though "Dominique" may seem out of date [for it shows two lovers parting because one of them happens to be married], it is the more refreshingly original for that very reason and its grace and sincerity should make it enchanting reading for all save the very sophisticated.

What else is being read here now? Among novels Miss Phyllis Bentley's "Inheritance," a new book by a young author, Barbara Noble, of whom I expect great things [some of them are in this new book, "The Wave Breaks"], and Mrs. Evelyn Waugh's new work of fiction; among autobiographies, Mr. Sullivan's "But for the Grace of God" [it has a different title in America]; and among books of political interest Sir Arthur Salter's masterly "Reconstruction." The last is admired by all.

DUBLIN DEMANDS ALL IRELAND BE MADE A REPUBLIC

Valera Would Unite North and South.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 17.—Nothing short of a united Irish republic, which for the purposes of international diplomacy would be willing to accept the nominal suzerainty of the British king under some vague formula, is demanded from Great Britain by President Eamon de Valera of the Irish Free State. This was revealed in the house of commons today by J. H. Thomas, British secretary for dominions.

Thomas did what is rarely done. He told exactly what happened at the two meetings last week of Anglo-Irish delegates in Dublin and London. He named names and quoted statements. He declared that the result of the discussion left the British and Free State governments deadlocked and that their relations have become even worse since.

Reads Note from De Valera.

Thomas read a communication from De Valera, which was received this morning, in which the Irish president agrees to submit the question of the land annuities which the Free State is withholding to a court similar to that provided for by the last imperial conference. De Valera specified that the court must not be composed wholly of members drawn from the British commonwealth of nations. He did not mention the Irish bill to abolish the oath of allegiance to the king.

This, Thomas said, left matters in a bigger muddle than before.

Thomas was cheered repeatedly by the house when he declared the British government could not enter into further agreements with another government which repudiates solemn undertakings, such as those which the Free State entered into in the Anglo-Irish treaty of 1921. Thomas asserted that the British government had never expected the Free State to act on the assumption that treaties and agreements could be torn up by one side with impunity.

Cites Cosgrave Method.

"It was, therefore, with astonishment that I received the intimation from De Valera that the Free State intended to take the necessary steps to abolish the oath of allegiance, which the Free State contended is not mandatory in the treaty," he said.

The secretary called on the house to observe de Valera's method of withholding the land annuities paid by Irish farmers and transferred through the two governments to the former English landowners.

"Former President Cosgrave always discussed matters on which there were points of difference, but Mr. de Valera said that it was not his intention to have any discussion," Mr. Thomas declared. "Mr. de Valera merely said, 'This is my business and without consultation of any sort or kind I propose to take this action.' That is an attitude that is impossible in governments."

Two Points in Irish Program.

Thomas pointed out that although the Irish refuse to pay what he termed their legally contracted debts, the British government recently forwarded $240,000 to Dublin, as provided for in the financial settlement between the two countries.

"De Valera's views," Mr. Thomas continued, "might be summarized under two heads:

"First, his view as to the only basis for lasting peace and good will in Ireland, which he called his ultimate aim—a union of the Free State with the six counties forming northern Ireland.

"Second, when a United Ireland is accomplished, it should be recognized as a republic, though with some form of association with the British commonwealth and with the king in certain circumstances as head of the association."

Text of De Valera Note.

Thomas said that just before going to the house of commons he had received the following communication from De Valera:

"The proposal of the British government for arbitration of the question of land annuities is being considered by the government of the Free State. It accepts the principle of arbitration and agrees that a tribunal of the general character outlined in the report of the imperial conference of 1930 would be suitable. But it is unable to agree to restriction of the personnel of the tribunal solely to citizens of states of the British commonwealth.

"The government of the Free State is of the opinion that in justice to the people of the Free State, the matters to be submitted to the tribunal for determination must include not only land annuities, but also the terms of other annual payments to the British government except those made in pursuance with agreements formally ratified by the parliaments of the two states.

"Makes Position Worse."

"I must further add the view of my government that any agreement reached between the two governments on these matters must be submitted to both houses of parliament for their approval."

He concluded that he did not want trouble with the Free State, but that he would not enter fresh agreements with the De Valera government and did not believe that De Valera was backed by a majority of the Irish people.

'DELLS' VICTIM ONCE CELLMATE OF HIS SLAYER

Doomed Man's Vain Plea for Life Told.

Fred Pacelli, who was shot and killed Thursday in the Dells, Morton Grove roadhouse, which houses a gambling room on the second floor, was identified in bureau of identification records as Fred Di Giovanni. Under that name he served terms in the Pontiac reformatory for burglary in 1911 and 1917.

CAPT. COLLINS.

Following identification Chief William F. Collins of the highway police expressed confidence that the slaying was the result of a gangland quarrel and that the killers had no thought of robbery when they entered the roadhouse. Leroy Marscalk, who was wounded and captured by police as he fled with two companions after the shooting, served a term at Pontiac in 1917 with Di Giovanni.

Pleads with Assassins.

Chief Collins said that the car in which Marschalk rode with his companions had been reported seen in several roadhouses in the neighborhood before it visited the Dells. Collins believes the men were looking for Di Giovanni. His theory is strengthened by the story of witnesses, who said after announcing the resort was being held up, one of the three men walked to where Di Giovanni was sitting.

Di Giovanni is reported to have said, "Now, Bill, do you know what you are doing?"

With this recognition Di Giovanni reached for the man's gun but was knocked unconscious in a scuffle, witnesses said. The other hoodlums then came up and fired four shots into the body of Di Giovanni, who was not armed. One of the bullets wounded Miss Marjorie Bruce, 40 East Oak street, who was with Di Giovanni and her brother, E. J. Bruce. Di Giovanni was out of employment.

Suspect Beer Sales War.

Coroner Frank J. Walsh is investigating on the theory that the shooting followed an attempt by a beer gang headed by Con and Roger Touhy to "muscle in" on gambling profits of the resort, owned by Sam Hare. The car used by the gunmen is believed to have belonged to Roger Touhy. The northwestern territory of the county originally was dominated by the Touhys.

With the growth of the Capone syndicate the Touhys were "pushed out" after two brothers, Johnny and Joseph Touhy, were killed. Johnny was slain in 1927 and Joseph in 1929. Con and Roger are reported to have been making efforts to regain the territory on the fall of Capone.

Chief Collins said he and Sheriff William D. Meyering had no knowledge of gambling at the Dells. He said if there was gambling at the resort Hare was "cheating." Sheriff Meyering could not be reached.

BOYS WADE OVER DEPTH; 1 SAVED, OTHER DROWNED

Manny Demma, 10 years old, 1834 Birchwood avenue, was drowned late yesterday afternoon off Calvary beach. Neal Kinseh, 8 years old, 1840 Birchwood avenue, who went down with him when he stepped into water beyond his depth, was pulled ashore unconscious and revived by Evanston firemen.

The two boys with Manny's brother Joseph, 9 years old, and Neal's brother Michael, 11 year old, were wading together about fifty feet out. The cries of Joseph and Michael were heard by Robert Oenning, 19 years old, 2001 Bradley place, who ran out and seized Neal. He carried the boy to shore and was not informed there was a second victim until efforts to resuscitate the first lad had been started.

After being revived, Neal, suffering from shock, was taken to the St. Francis hospital, Evanston. Attempts to save the other boy's life continued fruitlessly for two hours.

JURY COMMENDS POLICEMEN FOR KILLING THREE

Coroner Frank J. Walsh and an inquest jury yesterday commended four policemen from the state's attorney's office who on Thursday shot to death three hoodlums who were trying to extort $5,000 from Morris Schachter, gambler at 208 North Wells street. A verdict of justifiable homicide was returned by the jury.

The slain men were Harold Partner, Samuel Katz, and Frank Rogers. The policemen are Louis Caparelli, Michael Casey, David Levin, and Michael Caracci. Although friends and relatives of the slain men appeared at the hearing, Mary Collins, alleged sweetheart of Katz, was not there. Katz was Miss Collins' third gangster sweetheart who has met violent death, according to the police. The other two were Joe Bates and John Sheehy, both slain by policemen.

At the hearing yesterday Schachter testified that the same three men had extorted $2,000 from him last November on threat of kidnaping him. When they returned a second time for money Schachter notified Pat Roche, chief investigator for State's Attorney Swanson. The hoodlums said they would come for the money on Thursday, the gambler testified, and when they returned the policemen were waiting for them. The shooting followed.

HITLERITES RIOT IN BAVARIAN DIET OVER UNIFORMS

Ejected by Police; House Thrown Into Uproar.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Germany, June 17.—Forty-three Fascist members of the Bavarian diet today celebrated Chancellor von Papen's decree restoring Adolf Hitler's brown army by appearing in the chamber at Munich wearing brown uniforms with swastika armbands. President Stang ordered them out since, under a ruling adopted in June, 1930, members are forbidden to appear in uniform.

The Fascisti declined to budge. They cheered Hitler and jeered the Bavarian cabinet, while spectators in the galleries joined in the uproar, singing Fascist war songs. The session was temporarily adjourned, giving the Fascisti time to change their clothes. When the chamber reassembled they appeared in civilian attire. This failed to save them. Herr Stang announced that they all were suspended for 8 days for disobeying his orders.

Fascists Start Riot.

Pandemonium ensued and police were called. The police escorted the Fascist members, one by one, out of the chamber—all but Herr Schwede, burgomaster of Coburg, who refused to walk. He was carried out. The police also cleared the galleries.

The Bavarian cabinet subsequently issued a decree prohibiting the wearing of uniforms in Bavaria until Sept. 30.

"The scandalous scenes in the Bavarian parliament today, which were directed against constitutional life in Bavaria, compel the cabinet to take measures to maintain peace and order," the decree said. "Under our own police powers, we have decided to forbid the wearing of party uniforms."

Protest to Von Hindenburg.

Fascist headquarters in Munich telegraphed President von Hindenburg and Baron Wilhelm von Gayl, minister of interior, and demanded that the federal government immediately cancel the new prohibition on uniforms in Bavaria and also in Baden. Baron von Gayl inquired of the state government on what they base their rights to defy the reich. Bavaria retorted that the constitution gives the reich no power to override state decisions such as these.

The conflict between the north and south of Germany is increasing in seriousness. Baden in addition to prohibiting uniforms has also placed a ban on open air demonstrations. Wurttemberg has forbidden all open air meetings, but announced that it would delay prohibition of uniforms until new clashes occurred.

Riot in Prussian Diet.

Hitler, confident of the full support of von Hindenburg and von Papen, today issued orders to his followers to organize the storm troops on a bigger scale than ever before, because he "expects the whole youth of the country to join the movement." He renominated Ernest Roehm as commander of the storm troops.

Hitler's followers in Berlin also celebrated the restoration of the brown army. Prince August Wilhelm Hohenzollern, son of the former kaiser, marched with his Hitlerite comrades—many of them in their new uniforms—through the Prussian diet between 3 to 5 o'clock this morning. The diet was debating amnesty for political prisoners, but the Hitlerites repeatedly interrupted the session by marching through and singing Fascist battle songs at the top of their voices. Diet members said the scion of Hohenzollern was loudest of all.

Reichsbannermen Protest.

Leaders of the republican Reichsbanner association called on the minister of interior today and told him they would not tolerate Hitlerite terrorism.

"We, the Reichsbannermen, had 9 of our comrades killed and 814 injured by Hitlerites when we were out stumping for von Hindenburg in the presidential campaign," they said. "Our men are exceedingly bitter to see Von Hindenburg, whom they helped to elect, turn to the support of the Hitlerites."

Communists, Hitlerites, and police clashed today in many towns, including Wattenscheid, Herne, Bochum, Gelsenkirchen, Hanover, and Altona. In Hamburg many shots were exchanged between communists and police. Two policemen and ten civilians were injured.

Poles Fear Hitlerite Hoax.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WARSAW, Poland, June 17.—The Warsaw press is publishing alarming information from Koenigsberg, Germany. It is reported that nazis are placing huge orders with Warsaw tailors for Polish army uniforms. The reports say it is suspected that the Hitlerites are planning to stage a "Polish invasion of Germany."

STUDENTS FINED $100 EACH FOR INSULL PROTEST

Eight University of Chicago and Northwestern students were fined $100 each yesterday by Judge J. William Brooks on charges of illegal assembly.

Those fined are Philip Booth, 24 years old, 5542 Ellis avenue; George Wheeler, 23, 5528 Dorchester avenue; Erin Gilmartin, 22, and Donald Thompson, 23, all students at the University of Chicago; and Paul Trimpey, 24; William G. TO TAKE STAND

MRS. MIRIAM FISHER.

Dr. Fisher charges his wife with misconduct with John Revelle, 6949 Merrill avenue, whom he described at a hearing a few days ago as "a bosom friend for many years." Fisk told how on Jan. 10, 1932, he and Dr. Fisher went to a bungalow at 8454 Blackstone avenue, owned by Mrs. Fisher's sister, clambered on a log, peered through a bedroom window, and saw Mrs. Fisher there with Revelle. Dr. Fisher, who had a revolver, declared, "I'm going to shoot two dogs right now," but Fisk took the gun from him.

Mrs. Fisher has a cross-bill pending, charging cruelty. Her cousin, Miss Elizabeth Hall of Pittsburgh, testified she once saw Dr. Fisher shake his wife severely.

BANKER PLEADS GUILTY AT TRIAL; SENT TO PRISON

Alexander Flower Gets 1 to 10 Year Term.

In the midst of his trial for wrecking the Roosevelt Bankers State bank, Alexander Flower, chairman of the board of the defunct institution, suddenly decided to plead guilty yesterday before Judge Philip L. Sullivan and a jury in the Criminal court.

ALEXANDER FLOWER.

The charge to which he pleaded guilty was that of making false statements to bank examiners. Judge Sullivan immediately imposed a sentence of one to ten years in prison, allowing Flower sixty days to straighten out his affairs.

Assistant State's Attorney Henry Ayers, who prosecuted the case, also prosecuted the banker on a similar charge a year ago in a bench trial before Judge Joseph Burke. Flower won an acquittal in that case.

Suffers Severe Setback.

After this acquittal new indictments were procured and in the present case the state exercised its prerogative of securing a jury trial. The case has been in progress for more than a week, Flower suffering a severe setback Thursday when his former private secretary, Miss Arlene Nash, testified that on many occasions she had altered the bank ledgers at his direction.

In entering his plea, Flower, who is 53 years old, stated that his purpose was to spare his brother, Sam Flower, 45 years old, on trial with him. Assistant State's Attorney Wilkie Ham accommodated him to the extent of withdrawing the felony charges against Samuel Flower, permitting him to plead guilty to a conspiracy charge.

The younger Flower thereupon entered a guilty plea. The judge indicated he would hear evidence in the brother's case next Wednesday and Mr. Ham announced a sentence of one year in the house of correction would be satisfactory to the state.

Knew Little of Banking.

In his first trial Alexander Flower's defense was that he, a former newsboy, tailor, and woolen merchant, knew little about banking. The prosecution showed that Flower made heavy loans of the bank funds to himself, his brother, and others, and that little of the $1,000,000 in deposits remained for the 22,000 depositors when the bank closed. Judge Burke in his acquittal verdict, held that the state had failed to show criminal intent.

State Auditor Oscar Nelson yesterday closed the Logan Square State Savings bank, 2551 Milwaukee avenue, at request of the board of directors. The bank lists capital of $200,000 and surplus of $100,000. Deposits have dwindled from $3,200,000 to $500,000 in two years.

Church Gains More Votes Over Simpson in Recount

Sixteen votes were gained by Ralph E. Church yesterday in the canvass of thirty precincts in the Church-Simpson recount for the Republican nomination for congress in the 10th district, which stretches from North avenue to the Wisconsin state line. The gains made in the ninety-nine precincts so far recounted have increased Church's original plurality over James Simpson Jr. to ninety-six.

MULHOLLAND ON STAND; TELLS OF BAIN DEALINGS

Defendant Turns State's Evidence.

Damaging testimony was introduced against John Bain, his two sons, John H. and Robert Bain, and his son-in-law, W. Merle Fosher, when Frank A. Mulholland, former director of the Bain banks, took the witness stand against the four defendants yesterday at their trial before Appellate Judge John M. O'Connor on charges of looting the defunct banks.

Mulholland, a real estate operator now living at 9924 Longlead drive, was indicted with the Bains, but was granted a severance.

The witness testified that he became a partner of Bain in May, 1927, when the banker asked him to join a syndicate financing a 211 acre subdivision in the village of Lombard. Mulholland said he purchased the interest owned by Howard W. Elmore, former sanitary trustee, paying $125,000.

Got $186,000 at Bank.

Subsequently his own real estate organization took over the management of the subdivision and the West Englewood Trust and Savings bank, one of the Bain group, granted him loans of $186,000 to build three model homes and install sewers and other improvements in the subdivision. The model homes are still unsold, he said, but some of the lots have been disposed of.

Mulholland, under questioning of Special Prosecutor Edwin C. Raber, told how the former president of the Englewood bank, now deceased, had called upon him to appraise properties on which the bank was issuing bonds. Mulholland admitted that at the time he was not a qualified appraiser.

A glance out of the window of his office or a casual inspection of a building as he passed it in his car was the basis of his appraisals in most cases, Mulholland said. He admitted that in many instances he based his estimates on figures submitted to him by the bank itself.

His Honest Opinion.

"That was your honest opinion of the value of the property, wasn't it?" asked Defense Attorney Francis X. Busch on cross-examination, referring to Mulholland's appraisal of $320,000 on a building at 79th street and Kedzie avenue.

"It was honest and from information at the bank," Mulholland replied.

"It was based on your knowledge of values as shown by other realty transactions in the neighborhood, wasn't it?" Mr. Busch continued.

"I don't believe any other property around there sold for quite so much," Mulholland answered.

Raber scored a point when Mulholland admitted that as manager of the Lombard syndicate he made an overdraft of $65,000 at the Englewood bank. There was discussion of whether the draft could be paid in the office of former Senator Charles S. Deneen, Bain's legal adviser, but the debt still remains on the books, he said.

Bain's Secretary Testifies.

Miss Anna Eunison, Bain's private secretary for 18 years prior to the collapse of the banks, was another witness. She testified that when the banks closed a year ago she owed the banks $25,700 on notes secured by stock of the Bain banks and investment companies, stocks now regarded as worthless. The notes are still unpaid, she said.

On one occasion in 1929, Miss Eunison said, there was an overdraft of $40,000 in John Bain's personal account at the Stony Island Trust and Savings bank. At the time, she said, Bain was out of town, so she covered the overdraft by giving the bank her note for the full amount.

Joseph Szalay, 54 years old, a farmer near Midlothian, who stabbed Policeman Richard E. Sorrefrie of Blue Island a week ago, was adjudged insane yesterday in the psychopathic court and committed to the Kankakee State hospital.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

THE BONUS BILL.

By a vote of 62 to 18 the senate defeated the bill for the immediate payment of bonus certificates.

The senate majority thus followed the advice of the senate finance committee, which asserted truly that the benefits this measure, if enacted, would bring to its recipients would be "offset a hundred times by the increase of hunger and suffering throughout the land." In this consequence the veterans themselves would be victims along with all their fellow citizens.

The bonus payment proposal has its chief support in the general disposition to recognize and be as liberal as possible toward men called to the defense of their country, a sentiment creditable to the nation and shared by all loyal citizens. It is also supported by the natural desire of large numbers of ex-service men to obtain any relief from the conditions which afflict the whole country. But the form of relief proposed, as the finance committee pointed out, is both mistaken and mischievous. There are those who believe that any expenditure of public money at this time would have immediate benefits offsetting its ultimate results. But this ignores or underestimates the fact that such expenditure, of which the bonus payment is an example, would have immediate results which, as the finance committee showed, would offset a hundred times any benefits to be hoped for from the distribution and expenditure of public money. Financial and business judgment, which would welcome as eagerly as any service man any of the results predicted by the proponents of the bonus payment, is overwhelmingly against it. This is not because it is not favorable to real relief, but because it is realized that if the government now goes into the money market to borrow more than two billions required to pay up the bonus certificates, or if the government turns the printing press loose manufacturing money to pay them, confidence in the stability of the money of the United States will be shaken at home and abroad, with disastrous results to the whole people of the United States. Unemployment would be increased and the hope of business revival upon which depend reëmployment and reviving normal conditions for all would be long deferred, if not destroyed.

This is not a consequence with which the veterans, much less the rest of the people, can afford to gamble. It is a consequence from which it was the imperative duty of the senate to defend the nation. A majority of the house of representatives revealed its irresponsibility and its cowardly fear of organized and misguided clamor, the voice of a small minority of the public. But it has always been regarded as the special duty of the senate to provide a check upon the hasty and ill advised movements which emergency brings forth, and this was one of the occasions on which that duty was courageously and honorably performed. The political risk involved, we are confident from past history, is greatly exaggerated, for the good sense of the mass of the American people can be relied upon to approve and uphold sound and public spirited action.

SUPPRESSION OF FRANCE.

Whether the parliamentary ruling under which former Senator France of Maryland was refused the opportunity to be heard at the convention was valid or not, the refusal and his expulsion from the platform was inexcusable. Whatever opinion may be held of Mr. France's discretion, motives or intent, he had won a preference primary for the presidential nomination in Oregon, he had been elected by the people of Maryland to the United States senate, and had there served, and the fact that his words would have been wasted does not excuse his treatment. Many words were wasted in that convention. It would have been more creditable to the management of the convention if they had showed a more sensitive respect for the ideals of free discussion and the right of dissent. There is a largely justified impression that Republican conventions are not deliberative assemblages, but mechanical formalities for the registering of the predetermined objectives of entrenched political authority. The suppression of Mr. France was no doubt a minor incident, but it leaves a bad taste in the mouth.

A VICTORY FOR TAXPAYERS.

Another gain has been won in the struggle to free Chicago from the exactions of political favoritism. The Appellate court, Justices Friend, Hebel and Wilson, has confirmed the decision of Circuit Judge Klarkowski denying the claim of the Great Lakes Dredge and Dock company for a payment of $150,000 for extras above the contract price for services in the straightening of the south branch.

Under the previous city administration the Great Lakes company had been a notoriously favored bidder for city work, and in this claim had the cordial support of the then commissioner of public works, Richard W. Wolfe. In the opinion of The Tribune this claim was unconscionable and was vigorously attacked. At times it seemed that the opposition would fail, but the fight was renewed and, unless the appeal to the Supreme court results in reversal, has been won for the taxpayers.

The device of claims for extras in public contracts is a popular one, opening the way to elastic favors. It should be discouraged. Alert and faithful officials will subject all such claims to severe examination, but the easy opportunity they offer for granting political favors at public expense will revive it whenever unscrupulous politics is in control of city administration.

NOMINATING A SECOND LADY.

The vice presidential toast is "To the Ladies." The least of gallantry requires a compliment to Mrs. Gann, and in the season of compliments the thought that she had more to lose than Brother Charles will not be entertained. Although Mr. Gann must not be forgotten (he is frequently, but that is in Washington), his credits are only assists. In these days a loyal husband will be found where he should be, at his wife's side. A helpmate in need is a helpmate indeed, and tribute must be paid the American husband. His part is not often conspicuous. It often is hidden in the withdrawing modesty of the man, but it is recognized that where there is a great woman there has been a patient, loving father and there will be a true blue husband. What a pal!

Mrs. Gann's interest in Brother Charles was much more acute than Brother Charles' interest in himself. She had everything to lose and he not much. The convention was nominating the second lady of the land, and Mr. Robbins, chief of the division of protocol, department of state, was waiting for the returns. His anxiety will continue into November. Although Mrs. Gann is not out she is not yet back in. Having persuaded a convention she must now persuade a country. The stake is great and the lady's spirit is up.

Whether Brother Charles' sister did it all by herself or whether other ladies helped her is a question of the private record. It may be that Mrs. Mabel Willebrandt was the equivalent of three or four divisions of troops. That she was a well wisher was apparent in the convention. Mrs. Willebrandt herself can change the destiny of nations. She proved that by modifying the Volstead act, without the aid of congress, to permit the use of a heady wine produced by the California vineyards.

The simple minded American male imagined, when he consented to give the franchise to women, that he was opening the political door to the untutored female who would bring a charming disinterestedness and gullelessness to the play of politics. He didn't know that the self-interest of women has been a dominating factor in government from the time of Eden.

THE CONVICTION OF MEANS.

The conviction of Gaston Means for swindling Mrs. McLean of $104,000 by imposing on her impulse to be of assistance in the Lindbergh kidnaping is one score for justice in this tragedy of incredible elements. Means has a record of amazing congenital scoundrelism. He has appeared as the spirit of evil in many scenes, a perennial of disorder and malignancy.

The Lindbergh case from its beginning has been a discomfiture of American reason, order and sentiment. Its horrible major event has had cumulative consequences each in turn staggering the belief in American civilization. Reason teaches us that one crime will attract others in its wake, but reason is not easily satisfied with any of the circumstances of this atrocity. Too many vermin were uncovered.

The advantage Means took of the emotions aroused throughout the country was not uncongenial to his character, but it was ghoulish.

FARE LANGUAGE.

[Boston Transcript.]

The linguist atlas of the United States and Canada on which the American Council of Learned Societies is at work promises to be a contribution of rare importance to the history of our vernacular. During the last eight months Prof. Hans Kurath and his assistants have recorded ten thousand pages of New England colloquialisms noted in their talks with farmers, fishermen, sailors, merchants, and men in professional life. Through a study of these dialectic expressions can be traced the influence of various early migrations and of contacts of people of British stock with the French on the northern border and the Dutch on the southwest. In the region along the boundary between southern New England and New York many old Dutch words survive—"stoop" for "steps," "scup" for "swing." The cheese which is known as "cottage cheese" in eastern New England is called "Dutch cheese" in most of the country between the Connecticut and the Hudson rivers. Indeed, it used to be bought and sold as "Dutch cheese" in New York and Brooklyn groceries. The early Dutch in Manhattan must have had their own name for it—a name perhaps too difficult for English tongues to master, wherefore it came to be known in the newly Anglicized province as "Dutch cheese." In western New York and perhaps elsewhere in the central states it was and probably is called "pot cheese."

Prof. Kurath says that "the apple dumpling of Connecticut is known as 'apple dowdy' or 'pandowdy' in northeastern Massachusetts." But in Boston we have both the dumpling and the pandowdy, and they are not quite the same thing. Their ingredients may be, but they are differently put together. An apple dumpling can be either baked or steamed. It comes to the table a golden brown or creamy dome of pastry under which the apple awaits cheerfully its gustatory doom. The pandowdy, on the other hand, is baked in a deep dish and is served up a disintegrated glory of apple, crust, spice, and sweetening. It is without form but has plenty of substance, and during the process of ingestion harmonizes perfectly with the workings of a good man's inner machinery. People from the hinterland beyond the Hudson tell us that apple-pandowdy, both by name and nature, is utterly unknown to the pagan dwellers in those parts. Its geographical range, therefore, is confined to this favored district. The subspecies, however—the apple dumpling and the steamed pudding with sherry sauce—were probably carried across the plains in covered wagons by the old forty-niners.

DIMINISHING RETURNS.

"Yes," said the young man, "I write poetry."

The girl was impressed.

"How truly devastating!" she exclaimed. "Does your poetry yield any returns?"

"Yes," said the young man, sighing heavily. "It practically all returns."—Exchange.

RACIAL TROUBLE.

"What on earth is the matter?" said the doctor's friend. "You look awfully mad."

"I should think so, too," was the angry reply. "Here I have been treating a patient for three years for yellow jaundice and I've only just learned that he's a Chinese."—Tit-Bits.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

THE HON. ETAOIN SHRDLU WARNS THE DEMOCRATS.

The Hon. Etoain Shrdlu, the eminent statesman who is getting ready to shy his hat in the ring for the Democratic nomination for the presidency, was interviewed on the political situation by your correspondent last night. Mr. Shrdlu says that he subscribes to the popular belief that since the Republican convention the only thing that could possibly beat the Democrats would be their own mistakes. Asked to enumerate the blunders necessary for the Jefferson boys to make to insure the re-election of Mr. Hoover and Mr. Curtis, Mr. Shrdlu said: "Well, about the only mistake the Democrats could make now that would cause their defeat would be for them to get so excited at their convention as to forget to name a candidate for President or Vice President. In that event it is barely possible the Republican candidates might win, there being no opposition."

"But," insisted your correspondent, "might not the Democrats nominate a candidate more unpopular than the Republican candidate?"

"Hardly possible," declared Mr. Shrdlu. "However, if they should nominate a native, let us say, of Greenland or the Aleutian islands, while they could, of course, elect him he might be denied the right to be inaugurated on the grounds that the constitution requires that a President be American born. For that reason I think the Democrats should avoid the mistake of nominating a native and resident of Greenland or the Aleutian islands, especially if he speaks no English and has never seen a railroad train and eats with his knife. Also they would only serve whales' blubber and stewed walrus at the state functions at the White House and cause much embarrassment to Washington society."

"But, Mr. Shrdlu," said your correspondent, "while I hate to press the point, I would like to ask if the Democrats could not make a mistake in their platform that would defeat them?"

"Possibly," admitted Mr. Shrdlu, "but they have no need to blunder in that matter. Even if they adopted the Chicago Telephone Book of 1932 as their platform or Webster's Unabridged Dictionary they would have a far safer platform than the one the Republicans have and much easier to understand. Compared with the Republican platform the Chicago Telephone Book of 1932 would be a marvelously clear sighted political document, while Webster's Unabridged Dictionary has even a greater number of words than the Republican platform and is much more lucid and understandable. The Republican platform cannot be clearly comprehended unless it is read while standing on one's head, and comparatively few of our sovereign voters will go to so much trouble."

"What other mistake, Mr. Shrdlu, might the Democrats make that would permit a victory for the G. O. P.?" "Nothing," replied Mr. Shrdlu, "unless the convention were to pass resolutions asking that the Washington monument be junked, the dome of the capitol at Washington taken down and used for a chicken house, or that saxophone players be given a bonus and a life pension. Outside of those things, and the ones I have previously enumerated, I can think of no mistakes the Democrats can make that will serve to have any damaging effect whatever on their chances of a glorious triumph next November."

But while Mr. Shrdlu could think of no blunders the Democrats could make that would hurt their cause, your correspondent went away not entirely convinced. For the Democrats have a perfect genius for thinking up new and strange blunders from which they can't possibly escape.

A QUESTION.

I've been to a circus . . .
The trapeze bars
Twinkled right under
The silver stars.

The horses were milk-white,
Wing-fleet things,
So were the girls
In the dancing rings.

The clowns went tumbling
About in the dust;
The people applauded
As good crowds must.

But I didn't laugh,
Though I'd paid my money,
And every one said
Their tricks were funny.

I was waiting a chance
To ask this tip:
What do you do
So your masks won't slip?

AND WE'VE BEEN so very much occupied with looking at pictures of our convention visitors we just forgot all about Mayor Jimmie Walker and the Seabury investigation. Oh, do tell us what happened to Jimmie. Did they hang him or make him a present of the Woolworth building?

Oh, Let's—But Will It Help Much?

Sir: Let us revive an old and obsolete word to describe the lasting depression experienced throughout the world. They used to call a depression caused by fear, or discouragement, an appalment. Let us say, "Due to the present appalment, etc.," and let the poor old Depression retire on his crutches.

IS VEGETARIANISM GOOD OR BAD?

A CORRESPONDENT sends us a clipping in which Prof. G. Wakeham of the University of Colorado is quoted as making a report on vegetarians to the American Chemical society. He found that lifelong, consistent followers of the vegetarian cult had a metabolism rate 9 per cent below the normal.

What is called the metabolism rate is a measure of the speed at which the fires of the human body are burning. When this rate is quite low we compare it to a fire that has been banked or, better still, one that has been "bedded down for the night" by the owner of the premises. On the other hand, when the rate is higher than normal, we compare it to a fire on which some one has put coal oil or a fat pine knot, or—perhaps a better illustration—a fire where the ashes have been removed and the flues opened.

Accompanying the clipping sent is a letter in which it is stated that these high fires burn out the grates or, in terms of human well being, wear out the kidneys and the blood vessels. The suggestion is made that the slow living vegetarian lives longer than the fast living meat eater. The advocates of meat eating call attention to the shortness of the span of life of certain vegetarian peoples. The vegetarian defenders reply that this is because of the low standards of cleanliness and health and the economic hardships of such people, and claim that if they dwelt on high economic levels and according to good sanitary standards they would live to a great age.

There is considerable proof from other sources that animals can live on a plane of a low rate of metabolism. When fish live in mud or survive freezing it is because, while so existing, their fires have been banked. Toads have their fires banked when they live for long periods in places where no active toad could survive. When men have fasted for forty days or more, scientific study has shown that their fires burned brightly for the first few days of the experience and then gradually died down. During the latter part of the fast their metabolism rate was not much above that of cold blooded animals. East Indian fakirs who permit themselves to be buried alive and are in fair condition when dug up are said to be able voluntarily to bank their fires. During the period of apparent death their metabolism rate is very low. Hibernating animals have very low rates when they lay up for the winter.

Some men have chronically low blood pressure as a result of starch and sugar indigestion. They get snappier and have higher pressure when they shift from a starch and sugar rich diet to one that is poor in these foods and rich in meats and fats.

These are some facts that throw sidelights on the age-old fight between two groups of people. No claim is made that either these sidelights or the original report settles the main question, or even any question. Prof. Wakeham says: "It will be asked at once whether, in the light of this work, vegetarianism is good or bad. For the present, this is a matter of interpretation." This study merely records an observed difference between the average basal-metabolic rates of meat eaters and those of vegetarians.

PRICKLY HEAT.

D. R. B. wants to know what causes prickly heat, and what cures it.

REPLY.

Sweat causes prickly heat. This suggests methods of prevention and cure. If sweat soaked garments are kept in contact with a tender skin prickly heat results. It is rare enough among babies that go naked as to be a medical curiosity. The best way to prevent it is to go as near naked as one can without being arrested. If one must wear clothes, wear the thinnest, lightest possible. Select a fabric that has an open weave and that absorbs water well, and does not stick to the skin when wet. Bathing, and the free use of a dusting powder will be of considerable service in prevention. The best cure consists in using the same measures. If no soppy garments are allowed on the skin cure quickly follows. The "all-together" cure is the best of all. If that is against the law in your town, go as far as the town marshal will let you.

MAY HAVE TUBERCULOSIS.

R. A. M. writes: About twenty years ago Mr. O. had wet pleurisy. He has had a cough ever since and, at times, has sick spells and will throw up blood. He also seems short winded. I say he has a case of tuberculosis, but he says if he had tuberculosis he would have been dead long ago. He will not go to a doctor for a test.

REPLY.

Mr. O. probably has tuberculosis, as you say. If he is endangering others it is the duty of the health department, upon receipt of a report, to examine Mr. O. and if he is found to have consumption to make him pay proper attention to the rights of others.

FOLLOWING THE MALES.

Mrs. F. C. writes: Is it possible to clean nicotine from the teeth? I am ashamed to go to a dentist.

REPLY.

Your dentist can bleach your teeth. Men complain that women steal their bad habits, but they admit that they have taught them how to smoke in a cleanly way. The female smoker seldom stains her teeth or oozes the odor of tobacco; or has smoker's sore throat, smoker's patches in the mouth, or smoker's cancer. You appear to have followed the methods of the male.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

JUNE 18, 1916.

BROWNSVILLE, Tex. — Carranza Consul J. Z. Garza, stationed here, delivered early tonight Gen. Alfredo Ricault's ultimatum to Gen. James Parker, Brownsville commander, that unless the punitive expedition which crossed the border here today is withdrawn an attack will be made by Carranza troops. Immediately afterward Consul Garza closed the consulate and moved to Matamoros. Gen. Parker's answer was to rush the Twenty-eighth infantry and seven troops of the Third cavalry across the Rio Grande to reinforce the five troops of the Third cavalry just below Matamoros.

BROWNSVILLE, Tex. — War with Mexico is the next step in the events that have been piling up on and below the border, according to the belief of many army officers stationed here, in San Antonio, and in El Paso. The tense situation caused by the Trevino ultimatum to Gen. John J. Pershing that any troop movement east, west, or south would be construed as a hostile act and the American's reply that he could, under no circumstances, be governed by orders emanating from the Mexican military, was further inflamed today by the invasion of Mexico by another American column. Tonight both sides are sleeping on their arms. Gen. Pershing's reply to Gen. Trevino reads: "I have not received orders to remain stationary or to withdraw. If I see fit to send troops in pursuit of bands to the south, east, or west in keeping with the object of this expedition I shall do so. If any attack is made on any part of my forces while performing such duties the entire military strength of the expedition will be used against the attaking force. Gen. Trevino as commander in chief of the de facto government's troops in the north will be held responsible for Mexican forces within striking distance of the American forces."

EUROPEAN WAR SUMMARY.—The Russians' advance from the north threatens to envelop the Austrian forces defending Lemberg; the Austrian resistance has stiffened along new lines of defense. Paris reports the capture of German positions northeast of Verdun and the defeat of several Teuton attacks at Avocourt.

Questions and answers prepared by members of the faculty of the University of Chicago outline what they consider a well educated person ought to know. Today's instructor is A. J. Carlson, professor of physiology.

TODAY'S QUESTION:

What are some of the causes of anemia?

YESTERDAY'S QUESTION:

What is the rôle of the glands of internal secretion?

ANSWER:

The glands that pour their products through ducts, either into the alimentary tract or to the exterior of the body, have been approximately understood for a long time. But the dozen or more body glands with no excretory ducts remained more or less a mystery until within the last hundred years. From study of certain diseases and experimentation on animals we now know that these glands manufacture and pour into the blood stream a great variety of chemical substances, called hormones, that are necessary either for the normal working of all the body tissues [e. g., hormones from thyroid glands and pancreas] or necessary for specific organ functions.

The thyroid glands in the neck, for example, produce a hormone which contains iodine. Normal activity of the thyroid thus depends on the intake of iodine in food and drink. The hormone produced is necessary for the life of the whole body, including brain and intelligence. If the thyroid produces too much hormone, a serious condition, known as hyperthyroidism, is the result. This is a disabling disease and may lead to death. On the other hand, if there is not sufficient iodine in food and drink, or if the activity of the gland is depressed from any other cause, hypothyroidism results. This brings a stunting of growth and of general bodily and mental activity, as well as a greatly lowered resistance to disease.

In some cases hormones have been purified and isolated, so that they may be administered to individuals suffering from hypoactivity of the gland [e. g., thyroid extract for hypothyroidism and insulin for diabetes].

CAN COLLECT FROM ASSETS.

Chicago, June 3.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A husband bought a tombstone for his wife's grave, paying ten per cent down. The husband remarried in Florida and died two months later. In the meantime the tombstone was placed on the grave. The second wife acquired insurance, automobile, and personal effects, while the daughters received nothing. 1. Can the second wife be held responsible for this debt? 2. Can the daughters be held responsible for the debt? 3. Can the tombstone be removed from the grave? H. F.

1. She would not be personally liable, but the debt could be collected out of the husband's assets if they are sufficient.
2. In general, no.
3. Depends on the contract.

ABANDONED AUTO BODIES.

Chicago, June 12.—[Friend of the People.]—We will appreciate very much any aid in having old car bodies and parts removed from the vacant land opposite us. We are trying to make an athletic field on this land and, although we have burned all weeds and removed and burned as much rubbish as possible, we are unable to dispose of these auto parts because we have no place to remove them. There is a charge of $3 on every load of junk brought to the dumping grounds and we cannot afford to pay for this work. A. B.

Our appropriations have been cut so drastically that it is almost impossible to give relief for this condition, which is prevalent throughout the city and which is one of many problems confronting us. The funds provided are barely adequate to remove refuse from the alleys. However, an effort will be made to remove these abandoned automobile bodies and parts in view of the fact that it is desired to make an athletic field of this vacant property.

Chicago, June 10.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Would a beauty expert, licensed in the state of Missouri, be compelled to pass another examination in order to operate in Chicago? A. E. C.

The Illinois statute authorizes the department of education and registration to admit such a person without examination after determining that the Missouri requirements are equivalent to ours. You should take the matter up with the department of education and registration.

BIRDS OF A FEATHER!

Chicago, June 15.—Last night at a large dinner given to hear the secretary of war, Mr. Hurley, speak, Len Small was made the honored guest by Mrs. Bertha Baur, presiding.

Her low gesture of betrayal of the honor of the state was the price she had to pay for the Small support of her political ambitions and what we have learned to expect from her.

But why in the name of all decency did Mr. Hoover's cabinet member and representative have to refer to him as our next governor and stoop to do him honor?

Does this mean that the present administration in Washington indorses him and will try to force him and his misrule on us again?

Many of us who have been Republicans for years ought to be informed on this point before our votes and contributions are again solicited by the G. O. P.

MAKING HISTORY.

Muscatine, Ia., June 15.—I have read with great interest your editorials appearing on the front page of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE June 14 and 15. To my mind these editorials are making history and should be read by every American citizen. I congratulate you. More power to THE TRIBUNE.

ABOVE PARTISANSHIP.

Chicago, June 16.—I cannot resist the urge to congratulate you most heartily on the editorial on the first page of today's TRIBUNE. It is a magnificent example of fearless and courageous journalism at its best, the kind of journalism all too rare nowadays and of which our country stands in such sore need. It is a most encouraging evidence that some editors are not unmindful of the obligations of their high profession and their solemn responsibility to their readers.

Your characterization of the plank of the eighteenth amendment, presented by the majority members of the committee on resolutions, as "the product of political cowardice and hypocrisy, a fraud and an offense to the American people," may bring down upon your head the indignant condemnation of professional politicians, but it will earn for you the hearty commendation and thanks of thinking men and women who are sick and tired of political maneuvering and are eagerly looking for honest and constructive leadership.

In these days of stress, when above all else the country had a right to expect a candid and fearless pronunciamento on such a vital social problem, it is a saddening spectacle to see men who control the destinies of a great political party sacrifice a sacred principle for the political expediency of the moment. Your rebuke of these leaders is well deserved. I congratulate you on a fine contribution to the higher journalism and your courage in rising above all partisan bias and party self-interest in order to serve the needs of your readers.

GONE DEMOCRATIC.

Chicago, June 16.—Those who read the results of the Republican convention's stand on prohibition realize more and more that the Republican party should change its name to the Democratic party. Whether we recognize the fact or not is immaterial. It is still there—a typical Democratic stand on any question of importance—i. e., state rights. Possibly we'll have a "Democratic" President after all. T. W. L.

ONE FOR THE DEMOCRATS.

Chicago, June 16.—I would appreciate your asking the Democratic convention the following question:

"Will the American people be compelled to swallow the pork barrel in order to get the beer barrel?"

GEORGE H. MULFORD.

MOURNING.

Chicago, June 16.—May I suggest that we all put our flags at half mast until the day of the Democratic convention?

REPUBLICAN.

Chicago, June 16.—The G. O. P. is dead. Let us henceforth refer to them as the "G. O. S."—Grand Old Straddlers.

JOHN L. GORIN.

THE GALLERIES.

Chicago, June 16.—THE TRIBUNE, which so delights in using the words "bigotry" and "intolerance," seems strangely reticent about properly characterizing the disgraceful exhibition of these two qualities during the session of the Republican national convention last night. If such cheap, unfair tactics had been employed against the speakers for the minority report on the liquor regulation plank as were employed against the speakers for the majority report by galleries packed for the occasion by the wet interests, THE TRIBUNE would have strewn "bigotry" and "intolerance" broadcast through its columns describing the "disgraceful display of dry zealotry, bigotry and intolerance." As it was, THE TRIBUNE saw these savage, insulting outbursts of growling and epithets only as sporadic playfulness innocently indulged in by a few happy, carefree ladies and gentlemen casually out for some innocent sightseeing. Ah, yes! The pot, which delights in calling the kettle black, shrinks from reference to its own blackness. G. L. I.

ANOTHER GARFIELD.

Elyria, O., June 14.—In the excitement of this Republican convention the words of the father of the chairman of the resolutions committee, James A. Garfield, later President, come to light with as much appropriateness as when said fifty-two years ago in the convention of the same party and in your city.

"I have witnessed the extraordinary scenes of this convention with deep solicitude," he began. "As I sat in my seat and witnessed this demonstration, this assemblage seemed to me a human ocean in tempest . . . but I remember that it is not the billows but the calm level of the sea from which all heights and depths are measured. Gentlemen of the convention, your present temper may not mark the healthful pulse of our people. When your enthusiasm has passed we shall find below the storm and passion that calm level of public opinion from which the thoughts of a mighty people are measured. Not here in this brilliant circle where 15,000 men and women are gathered is the testing of the republic to be decreed but by four millions of Republican firesides."

The only difference is that instead of four million Republican firesides we have the desires of over twenty-one million Republican hearts, eleven million of which are those of women with the feelings of mothers. Herbert Hoover attracted these voters because he was dry and did not attract those who want a wet candidate, and neither will he now.

GET $1,200,000 FROM EXPERTS SUED FOR FEES

Waller Tax Order Latest Result of Suit.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

Tangible results are still being obtained from THE TRIBUNE'S suit of 1921 to recover $1,732,279 paid to three real estate experts by the city during that year and 1920. To date the city and federal treasuries have obtained in cash, real estate and judgments an aggregate of $1,204,105, which is a trifle more than all that was ever recovered from the Tweed ring in New York.

The latest contribution was the result of a judgment ordered by Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward against Edward C. Waller Jr., one of the experts. He, as did his two associates, Ernest H. Lyons and Arthur C. Merrigold, received approximately $597,000 for his "expert" services. By the decision of Judge Woodward Waller is now called upon to pay $578,378 in income taxes, of which $285,243 is the tax proper and the remaining $293,135 constitutes penalties and interest.

Experts Pay U. S. Taxes.

Thus the federal government has obtained $347,815 in cash and $578,378 in a judgment for income taxes—an aggregate of $926,193. How much of the judgment will be collected remains to be seen. Mr. Waller inherited one-tenth of his father's estate, estimated at $6,000,000. The elder Waller died in January, 1931. Against the son's share are claims for money loaned him by his father and the claim of his wife for part of the inheritance.

Make Returns to City.

Lyons returned to the city $40,000 in cash, real estate valued at $50,000, and certificates of indebtedness totaling $18,631. In addition he relinquished a claim for $125,000 against the city.

Merrigold returned to the city certificates of indebtedness totaling $30,281.

In addition, the suit prevented the payment of $2,000,000 more in fees which the experts claimed to have earned under their contracts with the city. No attempt has been made to revive the system of "experting" on an extensive scale.

FOUND HANGED

EMORY COBB ANDREWS.

Emory Cobb Andrews, 54 years old, vice president of the International Printing Ink corporation, committed suicide yesterday by hanging himself from a stairway in his home at 785 Willow road, Winnetka. Testimony at the inquest indicated that he was despondent over ill health. Dr. Frank W. Blatchford testified that he had treated Mr. Andrews for a nervous disorder.

The body was found by a son, Robert Andrews, 26 years old.

Mr. Andrews was a member of the University, Cliff Dwellers, Vista del Lago, and Indian Hill clubs. He was well known in the printing field and had published many articles on color and its application to printing. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Helen Andrews, and two sons, Robert and Wayne.

Funeral services will be held at 11 a. m. Monday in Christ church chapel in Winnetka.

CERMAK DENIES HE PLANS SALE OF WATER PLANT

Explains How New York Offers Started.

The offer of New York investors to purchase Chicago's waterworks system and turn it into a private utility company was predicated upon a survey of the water system made by the former city administration for the purpose of selling the water system, it became known yesterday. Mayor Cermak declared that under no circumstances would he consent to the sale of the system to private investors.

"My purpose in stating to the finance committee that an offer may be made for the water system was to show them that the city has something of value," Mayor Cermak said, "but I never had the intention of selling the water system or anything else belonging to the city.

Inherits 20 Million Debt.

"The only things I want to get rid of are a few undesirable citizens and obligations incurred by the previous administration, such as the twenty million dollar mortgage that that administration plastered on the water system."

The mortgage which he referred to is the water certificates, sold as a lien on water revenues, for new waterworks and other improvements. In previous years the city had always managed to build extensions out of revenues, which have always exceeded the cost of maintenance.

Expect Few Budget Changes.

The city council meets this morning to act on any vetoes which Mayor Cermak may supbmit to provisions of the 1932 appropriation ordinance. It was forecast that the mayor will make few changes in the budget totals, which are $126,316,053 for all city purposes aside from those of the board of education, and $50,287,717 for the corporate fund.

It was reported in the city hall, however, that one position eliminated by the budget makers will be restored at the council meeting today. It is tha of deputy building commissioner, paying $6,300 a year, and now held by Robert Knight.

PAY ULTIMATUM SENT CARPENTERS BY MILL OWNERS

Demand 35 Pct. Wage Cut July 1.

Chicago millwork manufacturers yesterday delivered the carpenters' union an ultimatum embodying a 35 per cent wage reduction, effective on July 1. The ultimatum followed the carpenter union's refusal to submit the proposal to a referendum of the men affected. The millworkers' union, which is affiliated with the United Brotherhood of Carpenters, at one time claimed a membership of more than 4,000 men.

"The manufacturers are forced to cut their labor costs in order to avoid ruin by out of town competition," said Harry Jensen, commissioner of the Millwork and Cabinet Manufacturers' association.

"Paying $1 an hour as heretofore, Chicago manufacturers cannot compete with manufacturers of Muskegon, Louisville, Milwaukee, Elgin, and Minneapolis, where wages average less than half of that. No less than 75 Chicago jobs, some of them large contracts, have been sent out of town in the last 90 days," Jensen added.

"If the union men are called out or refuse to work under the new rates, the manufacturers will not hesitate to replace them. Chicago manufacturers do not want starvation wages and have proven themselves strongly opposed to such, but they want a wage scale that is truly competitive and fair, one that will remove the industry from the almost impossible market position it now occupies. The executive committee of the association will refuse to treat further with the union until their proposal has been submitted to a referendum of the men affected."

Reject 5 Day Week Plan.

In addition to a 35 per cent cut for journeymen, the association's new scale provides a scale of from $13 to $19.50 for apprentices who formerly drew from $20 to $30 for 44 hours' work. Time and a half is to be paid for overtime.

The union's counter proposal, which was rejected by the owners, provided for a five day week, six hours a day, to be paid at the rate of $1 an hour with double time for overtime. Apprentice hours were to be reduced to 30 a week with no decrease in pay.

The men were represented by Thomas Flynn, president of the district council of the carpenters' union, and Ted Kenny and Anton Johanson, business agents. The association was represented by the executive board, John Peterson, James Neilsen, Thomas Reynolds, Henry Kole, and Henry Traeger.

BEG YOUR PARDON!

ENGINEER AIDS CITY IN LIGHT FRAUD HEARING

Claude G. Shepherd, a consulting engineer, took the witness stand yesterday in Judge John Prystalski's court against four former city employes and Harry A. Johnson, president of the Electrical Contracting company, charged with conspiring to defraud the city of $200,000 in street lighting contracts.

Shepherd, who investigated for the city, testified that the work was short 75,000 cubic feet of material. He expressed the belief that the slipshod manner in which the work was done would force the city to heavy expense for repairs.

Following the testimony of Shepherd the case was continued until Monday. On trial with Johnson are four former employes of the department of gas and electricity. They are Eugene A. Quinn, inspector; Frank Wargoske, stock keeper; Joseph Duffy, custodian; and John Muerling, engineer.

MEDICAL GROUP PAYS REWARD IN LINGLE CASE

Dr. John P. Coughlin, new president of the north shore branch of the Chicago Medical society, announced yesterday the payment of $500 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the murderer of Alfred Lingle.

The reward was paid to John Hagan, the undercover operative whose searches into gangland unearthed Leo V. Brothers, the murderer of Lingle, who is now in Joliet penitentiary serving the sentence imposed on him by a jury in the court of Judge Joseph Sabath.

"We offered the reward at the time of the Lingle murder," said Dr. Coughlin, "because we were anxious to do our share from a civic standpoint. It was necessary that such a villainous crime should be punished, and we sought to do our bit in accomplishing the arrest and conviction of the criminal."

ARREST AUTOISTS FOUND EVADING LICENSE FEES

Tribune Survey Results in Action by City.

BY HAL FOUST.

Fred Fischman, superintendent of the city license department, announced yesterday that court summonses have been issued to five automobile owners whose names, addresses, and state license numbers were published in THE TRIBUNE a week ago in a story of a two hour survey that indicated many motorists are evading Illinois and Chicago motor taxes.

Those who received arrest slips are E. R. Drucker, 2817 Cambridge avenue; Fred G. Lanter, 9200 Cottage Grove avenue; Lucile Krumbein, 4857 North Oakley avenue; Max Lanchner, 1434 Farragut avenue, and Mrs. Anna Hickey, 1460 East 69th court.

In the survey, a reporter drove from Howard street to The Tribune Tower and noted cars bearing 1931 licenses issued to Mr. Lanchner and Mrs. Hickey. A 1932 state plate issued to Mr. Drucker carried Wilmette tag 1866. A 1932 state number issued to Mr. Lanter was over a Lake Villa panel.

Fail to Attach Stickers.

"Other cars reported in your story were without Chicago windshield stickers because the owners, after buying the licenses, failed to attach them to their machines," said Mr. Fischman. "They were not arrested."

Placed in this class by Mr. Fischman were Bob Whitener, 1206 Foster avenue; William Conis, 1759 Howard street; B. Cohen & Sons, 2249 South La Salle street; John V. Watering, 5531 Glenwood avenue; Louis Conurlsher, 1260 North Dearborn street; Martin E. Friedman, 713 Rush street; and Peter Lord, 3124 South Wells street.

In the survey, automobiles were noted with 1931 state plates issued to Messrs. Watering, Conurlsher, Friedman, and Lord, while the absence of the city windshield sticker was noted on cars with 1932 state plates issued to B. Cohen & Sons and to Messrs. Whitener and Conis.

Aware of Violations.

"I am fully aware," said Mr. Fischman, "that there are many Chicago automobile owners who obtain state plates from other states to evade the Chicago tax, or who buy cheap suburban tags. We are doing everything we can, with a limited number of investigators, to prosecute this tax dodging. However, we would be an annoyance to visitors if we became overzealous and stopped every car without a city windshield sticker.

"Joseph Braun, general counsel for the Chicago Motor club, was quoted as saying that within his memory there have been no convictions for using a fictitious automobile license. There have been a considerable number of convictions, and I'll refresh his memory on one case.

"D. D. Cooper, 7105 Cyril avenue, was arrested for displaying an Indiana license. Chicago Motor club lawyers obtained his discharge on a showing that he actually was a resident of Indiana, conducting a business in Chicago. Our investigator later found that Mr. Cooper was a registered voter in Chicago. He was rearrested and fined $25."

ITALY PUTS GUARD OVER BORDERS AS 2 FOES ARE SHOT

Fears Anti-Fascists May Attempt Reprisals.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, June 17.—Blackshirts were reported tonight to have been posted along the coast and frontiers of Italy to keep a sharp lookout for anti-Fascist airplanes which might attempt to fly over Italy and drop pamphlets, following the execution at dawn today of Domenico Bovon, and Angelo Sbardellotto, the two men convicted by the special Fascist military tribunal for defense of the state on charges of plotting to assassinate Premier Mussolini.

The Fascist press for two days has been printing long editorials justifying the severity of the penalties meted out by the military tribunal. The Fascists claim the tribunal acted in legitimate self-defense. The tribunal this week, in addition to imposing the two death sentences, has sent 15 persons, including one woman, to prison for terms ranging from 10 to 30 years.

Cites Drastic Russian Action.

The press claims that the tribunal's actions against political opponents is less drastic than that of the tribunal of Russia or of those during the French revolution. The special Fascist tribunal was set up in 1926 after an attempt to assassinate Premier Mussolini at Bologna.

The death penalty was made compulsory for any one plotting to kill the head of the government. Previous to that time there was no death penalty under Italian law, and those convicted were sentenced to life imprisonment. The tribunal was established for five years and was to have been abolished last year, but Mussolini prolonged it another five years.

Tied to Chairs and Shot.

Meanwhile meager details were given out by the official news agency today concerning the last moments of the two condemned men. Bovoni, it was stated, spent the night in prison writing a letter to his sister and talking to the prison chaplain, who confessed him and gave the last communion. Sbardellotto, it was stated, refused religious comfort and left nothing in writing.

At dawn the two were taken from the prison in the death wagon to Fort Brazetta, in the interior. The execution was effected by two platoons of militiamen, drawn up in a hollow square. The condemned men were tied in chairs, their backs to the firing squads. Bovoni was shot at 5:16 a. m. and Sbardellotto at 5:45 a. m. As they died several hundred militiamen who witnessed the executions raised daggers into the air and cheered Mussolini.

N. Y. RELUCTANTLY AGREES TO RUN ITS OWN SUBWAY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 17.—[Special.]—The city definitely went into the railroad business this afternoon when it formally ratified the taking over for municipal operation of the Eighth Avenue subway— a completed and equipped $191,200,000 line—which has been rusting for months for lack of an operator.

The new subway, the finest in the world, is expected to begin collecting its shower of nickels by Sept. 1, that much time being required to get everything working smoothly. The nickel shower may be light and 5-cent fare riders may pay the deficit in taxes.

Mayor James J. Walker and his aides made the "orphan" subway its ward reluctantly and a bit fearfully. This city never has been celebrated for making a profit out of its commercial endeavors and municipal operation has proved disastrous in other lines of endeavor.

City Pushed Into Business.

There also was considerable criticism within the city government's own family regarding the subway venture, but the subway was there, and every day it remained idle it was costing the city $26,137 in interest and maintenance. Something had to be done, so the city has appropriated $700,000 to begin operations.

The rush for jobs drew 30,000 applicants. About 5,000 trainmen, station guards and maintenance men will be required to run the 12 mile, four track railroad. Former brokers, salesmen, clerks and bankers tried hard to get into the board of transportation office despite signs that only men with railroad experience would be accepted.

The state chamber of commerce made a last minute plea to the estimate board to couple the new subway with the present Brooklyn, Manhattan transit lines and abandon the idea of municipal operation, but the city had already mapped its course.

Road Splendidly Equipped.

When the board of transportation takes over the subway it will adopt a 1932 railroad with four tracks running almost the length of Manhattan island. It will get 300 new cars of a type holding more passengers than those now in operation and permitting much easier entrance and exit. It will find the electrical signal equipment in working order and six training trains already making eight round trips a day through a dimly lighted tunnel, most of the illumination having been cut off to keep down expenses. The stations are small villages from two to three times larger than those of the two other subways.

BISSELL, TOLEDO MANUFACTURER, INJURED BY AUTO

Frederick Bissell, 67 years old, of 1906 Parkwood avenue, Toledo, O., president of the Super Service Vacuum Cleaner company at Toledo, was probably fatally injured last night when he was struck in Winnetka by an automobile which did not stop. The car bore California license plates. Mr. Bissell had just alighted from a train and was walking to the home of his sister, Mrs. Cornelia Wallace, 1025 Ash street, Winnetka. Mrs. H. O Barnes, wife of the vice president of the Barnes Printing company, Chicago, took him to the Evanston hospital.

Ernest Reese, 13 years old, whose widowed mother lives at Rand and Dundee roads, was killed in Rand road, near State road, four miles east of Palatine, by an automobile whose driver fled. The boy was on his way to the Rolling Green golf course, where he was a caddy.

Consuela Gomez, 8 years old, 626 Forquer street, was fatally injured by a truck at Parker and Des Plaines streets. Philip Schroeder, 3128 North Western avenue, the driver, took her to the Mother Cabrini hospital, where she died.

These deaths and one other increased the county's motor toll since Jan. 1 to 508. The victim:

HOLD SERVICES AT GRAVE OF PIONEER IN PARK

Memorial services were held beside the grave of David Kennison, who was a survivor of the Fort Dearborn massacre, in Lincoln park last evening. The ceremonies were conducted by James C. Russell of the Blackhawk post of the American Legion.

Kenniston took part in the Boston tea party, the battle of Bunker Hill, and other battles of the revolutionary war and the war of 1812. After the latter he returned to Chicago, where he lived until his death in 1852, at the age of 115 years.

Mrs. Lillian Kennison and her son, John, of 6256 Campbell avenue, descendants of the pioneer Chicagoan, attended the service.

CAN'T AGREE ON GREIN'S BOTTLES; JURY DISMISSED

After deliberating for 23 hours a jury in the federal court of Judge Charles E. Woodward yesterday admitted inability to reach a decision on the fate of $15,000 worth of bottles, caps, malt sirup, and other merchandise seized in a raid two years ago on the loop store of Joe Grein, now city sealer. The government contended that the merchandise was illegal under the Volstead act and should be destroyed.

The jurors were seen through the window of their room engaged in a card game, which lasted most of the day. Late in the afternoon Judge Woodward called them to the courtroom. Questioned by the court, Foreman S. Fred Cummings of Mazon, Ill., said that it was impossible for the jury to reach a verdict. The jurors were dismissed and a mistrial entered.

Prosecutor Heber R. Dotson said that he would confer with United States Attorney George E. Q. Johnson before deciding whether or not the government would continue to prosecute the suit. Defense Attorney William F. Waugh said he would demand either a trial or return of the merchandise.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MEXICO CITY, June 17.—Mexico's congress, which always has been jealous of the constitutional rights protecting its deputies from arrest, last night expelled Deputy Delfino Najera to deprive him of that privilege. Today he is being hunted by police for the murder six weeks ago of Rigoberto Samoano Lopez, 15 years old, student.

Although closely watched since the murder, Najera slipped through the hands of police who were waiting for the moment when he would no longer be exempt from arrest.

The murder occurred when the boy presented Najera with a bill for board at his mother's restaurant near the parliamentary building. Najera shot the boy.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, June 18 [Saturday].—Residents of the old Portuguese colony of Macao were thrown into a panic yesterday morning when a section of the rebel Chinese navy, commanded by Admiral Chan Chak, and a land force headed by Gen. Chen Chi-tang, who controls Canton, met in battle in Macao harbor, opposite Hongkong.

During the night the land force, armed with machine guns and light artillery, occupied Lappa island, facing Macao. At dawn they opened fire on the rebel warships anchored nearby. The fleet replied with heavy guns. The land force was routed, and the fleet sped to the sea. It is believed casualties were heavy on both sides. It was reported that the fleet withdrew to Hainan island, where an independent government has been formed.

While the Macao battle was proceeding, Chan Fook, a Chinese youth, invaded the office of Butterfield & Swire, British shipping firm, in Hongkong. He shot and killed Percy Woo, a prominent Chinese merchant, wounded another Chinese, then ran to the Japanese consulate, where he shot and fatally wounded two Japanese. He tried in vain to find the Japanese consul general. The assassin then sat down in the consul's chair and shot himself through the head. It was said his hatred for the Japanese had affected his mind and that he had accused the British shipping firm of buying Japanese coal.

PARTY OF BRITISH EXPLORERS OFF TO HUNT FAWCETT

LONDON, June 17.—(AP)—A British expedition will leave here tomorrow to back-track the 7 year old trail of Col. H. P. Fawcett, explorer and mystic, into the inner jungles of Brazil's vast Matto Grosso.

The expedition was inspired in part by the tale of a Swiss trapper, Stephan Rattin, that he saw Fawcett alive and well last October between the Tapajos and Madeira rivers. The trapper said the Britisher was a captive of Indians and asked that a message be given the nearest British consul.

Leaders of the enterprise will include Robert Churchward, who explored the Araguaya river last year, and Capt. John G. Holman, a native Brazilian hunter and engineer.

Dr. Massman's Death in Winnetka Held Accident

A coroner's jury returned a verdict of accident yesterday after investigating the death of Dr. Valentine Massman, 63 years old, a dentist, who was found dead Thursday in his home at 992 Pine street, Winnetka. A son, Richard, told the jury his father was in the habit of applying chloroform to his forehead to relieve headaches, and the jurors decided that he had spilled some of the chloroform into his mouth, causing death. Besides his son Dr. Massman is survived by his widow. Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. today at Graceland cemetery chapel.

FOUND DEAD IN HOME.

Kenneth Wagner Hill, 48 years old, was found dead yesterday in the bathroom of his hotel apartment at 2600 North Kedzie avenue. Death apparently was due to heart disease.

J. L. JACOBS WARNS PUBLIC AGAINST TAX RACKETEERS

County Assessor J. L. Jacobs announced yesterday that he has received some 250 complaints that racketeers, posing as employes of the assessor's office, are approaching householders with proposition to obtain reductions of their personal property taxes.

About 300,000 personal property schedules, half of the total to be distributed, have been mailed in the last two weeks. They are for the 1931 assessment.

"These men," Mr. Jacobs said, "have been calling at homes, posing as deputy assessors, and making householders a proposition to fill out personal property schedules in such a manner that they will save from one-half to two-thirds of their personal property tax. They ask one-third of the saving as a fee.

"The men have been telling householders, 'This is the same thing that went on under the old board of assessors, but under the new regime we have to work it somewhat differently.' I understand that they have sent out 'feeler' postcards through the mails, and I am going to ask federal inspectors if these men cannot be held for using the mails to defraud."

DOCTORS ORDER LONG REST FOR MRS. HUTTON

Los Angeles, Cal., June 17.—[Special.]—The nature of the illness which has been wasting the strength of the Rev. Aimee McPherson-Hutton became a mystery today at the conclusion of tests to determine whether the evangelist is suffering from typhoid fever, as reported by Dr. C. McKenzie Jones.

Specialists representing the city health department completed the tests today and announced that her illness was not typhoid fever.

One physician found the evangelist's pulse normal and her exterior demeanor deceptively calm, but that "the patient is emotionally worn out. She apparently has been living for a year or more on her nerve and her emotions."

Mrs. Hutton is being kept under constant attendance at a sanitarium near Palms, a suburb. Six months' rest and further medical tests were decreed for her.

Clothes Know That Summer Is Here to Stay

Styles Just Right for Hot Weather.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

THE real shopper knows that summer has finally blased into town, not by the floral signs that greet the suburbanite, but by the tall long drinks with extravagant portions of ice tinkling against their frosty walls. . . . with congealed and icy soups and with all the new dresses that are made with the smallest amount of shoulder coverings and with wide open spaces devoted to the daily process of sun tanning.

Judging by all the new collections of these scantily fashioned frocks, the summer season is going good. . . . new linen dresses with the skirt sections made on the bias, use an entire V shaped yoke of very lacy linen lace that looks almost as though it were crocheted by the fingers of an expert.

Sheer cottons that are woven to look like knitted fabrics, are short of sleeve and do some intricate combining at the waistline with motifs of colored mesh such as a white dress with an appliqued bow design of navy blue mesh.

Others are made of patterned pique, in white, with no sleeves and much cut out in the yoke sector. . . . some tricky new affairs modestly include a brief little swinging cape collar instead of a jacket.

A perfect honey of an ensemble that is so different that you must have it before other snooping shoppers discover it, is a brilliant, very sheer lacy wool jacket of colored stripes. . . . the sleeves are short and the coat is full and swagger, reaching just to the hips. . . . this is worn to complete an ensemble, over a silk dress that looks to be the coolest frock ever designed. . . . two narrow straps are tied over each shoulder, the deep cut yoke is square both front and back and the skirt boasts of two inverted pleats.

Ribbing all sorts of materials seems to be quite the fashionable thing to do. New dull silks are especially interesting when they are treated this way . . . some of the newest sports clothes are made of this stuff with some tremendously smart results. You will find all kinds of sleeved and sleeveless frocks of ribbed materials in all summer shades made for wear every hour of the day.

The soft new yellow tints are luscious and the grayed blues and dull pinks are lovelier than they have ever been before.

If you are one of the clothes collectors who insists upon jackets or coats for fashionable sleeveless and otherwise denuded frocks, wander over to the collar displays and see the new cape collars of dotted materials!

These are just what you have been crying for; they are deep and enveloping enough to reach well below your exposed elbows . . . they come in satisfying brilliant shades with good big white dots splashed all over them. Nothing could be swankier over a white dress than one of these jaunty scraps of color contrast.

Another calm and cool idea for street wear is given expression in sheer printed linen suits trimmed with flattering wisps of organdy tucked with a telling accent at the neckline, or as lining to the cuffs or as a becoming frame around the collar of either dress or matching coat.

Trigly tailored affairs accent their sleekness with prim little bows and narrow bands of sparkling white pique and then top the ensemble with saucy little hats of white pique. Incidentally all the newest small pique hats have the upturned brim or cuff which marks them unmistakably as this summer's pet of fashion.

Two Parties Before Derby

Those of the "horsey" set who are not so completely worn out by convention activities that nothing but a quiet week-end in the country intrigues them, will go to Washington Park today for the American Derby. The Stuyvesant Peabodys are taking a few friends out to the clubhouse for luncheon before the races, and so is Howard F. Gillette, whose party will be a stag.

Nancy and Graham Whiting and Elinor Estey Talbot already are at the Whiting cottage at the Chicago club with their governesses and Bradford Whiting may join his mother and brother and sister in Michigan after finishing his term at Princeton, or he may go abroad.

Mrs. John P. Wilson and her sister, Miss Burke, will return on Monday from a short stay at the Chicago club where they went to supervise the final decorations of the new cottage which is to be occupied this summer by Mrs. Wilson's son and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Keep [Emily Scott] and their baby.

News Notes from Lake Geneva

Our correspondent at Lake Geneva writes that Mrs. Philip Wrigley has been ill for two weeks, but is recuperating now. Her sister, Miss Olive Atwater, has come from the east to spend the summer at Lake Geneva. Our correspondent adds that life at that attractive resort, popular for so many years with Chicagoans, is quiet all during the week, but that every household comes to life for week-ends when the men of the families go up and there are gay house parties in almost every house. Chauncey B. Blair, one of those who commute daily, and Mrs. Blair are having as their guests this week-end the Philip Mahers, David Leavitt, and others.

Miss Henrietta Countiss is driving home from New York, where she has spent the last two months, and is expected to reach Lake Geneva by next Tuesday. Col. and Mrs. William N. Pelouze and their daughter, Medora, who have been at the Webster since giving up their apartment on Sheridan road, have opened their house at Lake Geneva for the summer.

Miss Margaret Ennis and her youngest brother, George, are leaving next Tuesday to spend the summer at the Tepee lodge at Big Horn, Wyo. William Ennis, the eldest son of Mrs. William S. Ennis, is out on the Ennis' citrus ranch near Riverside, Cal., for the summer, and Lambert, the middle son, will go abroad later in the season to join his friend, Frazier Maurice of New York, who is visiting the Ennis family in Chicago now.

Mr. Maurice will leave Wednesday and will sail soon after that for Europe. When Mr. Ennis joins him in the Cheviot hills the two young men will motor on the continent. Mrs. Ennis is planning to remain in town until the weekend of July 4 when she will go to Harbor Point for a visit, later going to Small Point, Me.

Miss Theodora Shaw and Miss Margaret Wiley, both debutantes of last winter, are among the graduates at the Sarah Lawrence college at Bronxville, N. Y., today. Miss Shaw will spend the summer in Lake Forest with her sisters, Mrs. John T. McCutcheon and Mrs. Clay Judson, while their mother, Mrs. Howard Shaw, is abroad [she sails next Wednesday] with her grandson, Shaw McCutcheon.

Miss Wiley and her sister, Miss Virginia, who with their mother, Mrs. Stanley M. Wiley, is at Bronxville for the commencement, will visit in the east for several weeks before returning to Chicago, but Mrs. Wiley will be at home in about a week.

Mrs. Joseph G. Coleman left on Wednesday for California. She will spend the summer with her son, Joseph G. Coleman of Philadelphia, at his Montecito residence. Her grandson, Walter Cobb Coleman, who is a Harvard student, will go west later in the season.

Mrs. Joseph B. Long, who spent the late winter in the south, is to remain in Chicago until July 15, when she'll motor east for her annual summer holiday.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Mathews Dick of Washington, D. C., are to sail soon for France. Mr. Dick was in Lake Forest the early part of this week for a short visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Blake Dick.

Mrs. Charles S. Frost has gone east to open her summer residence at Northeast Harbor, Me. She will return in October.

Attend Fortieth Class Reunions

Miss Catharine Noyes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. Paul Noyes, is leaving next Saturday for a visit in Manchester, Mass., after which she will go to Duxbury to visit Miss Jane Rowe. Mr. Noyes is in New Haven for his fortieth reunion at Yale.

Another well known Chicagoan who is going east for the fortieth reunion of his class is Mitchell D. Follansbee, who is leaving today for Harvard. Mitchell D. Jr. also is going to Cambridge, but it will be only the third reunion of his class.

Mrs. Follansbee, who came back from the Follansbees' summer place at Traverse City, Mich., for the convention, is accompanying her husband and son to Cambridge for a visit with the former Eleanor Follansbee, Mrs. Helmut H. von Erffa, before she and Mr. von Erffa sail for Europe. Miss Susan Follansbee is going to kindergarten college this summer, but whether it is just for something to do or really to learn a profession, I haven't heard.

Mrs. Edmund Raftery and Miss Jean Scott of Geneva and Miss Mary Burton of Batavia have returned from a two months' motor trip through England, France, Holland and Germany.

Mrs. Willard W. Jaques and her daughter, Miss Alice Jaques of 5754 Sheridan road, are in New York for a week's stay.

Mrs. Albert B. Dick Jr. will open her Lake Forest residence next Thursday from 10 until 5 o'clock for a sale to be held by the Vocational Society for Shut-Ins.

Tips to Those About to Have New Permanent

It Pays to Employ the Best Operators.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Did you get your permanent yet?

I should have reminded you a bit earlier for real summer waved hair chic. For two reasons: One, comfort. A permanent on a hot day is in the nature of a penance. The other—get a month or six weeks away from a permanent and the hair is at its loveliest wave stage, I think.

You may not agree, because you may be one of those fortunates who come out from under a permanent an immediate success. If so, that's because you have that kind of hair and because you had the services of a good operater, which means one whose services can't be had cheaply. A good permanent should last anywhere from four to six months.

Hairdressers urge you not to use any oils, or tonics, or rinses on your hair for a couple of weeks before your permanent is had. The theory is that such preparation interferes with the heat timing guaranteeing the nicest type of wave. The hair requires more heat. And, as you know, the more heat, the more the inclination to frizziness.

If you have been in the habit of dyeing the hair, using a rinse with a chemical ingredient [as some of the hair rinses have] you must be honest with your hairdresser. Tell him exactly what you've used, so he may temper the machine to your individual needs. The action of both waving lotion and heat have to be taken into consideration.

Best, if you've been using preparations on your hair to have a test curl made first, to see how the hair reacts. There was a time when dyed heads were fought shy of entirely by the conscientious operator. But in ordinary cases now, where honest confessions are made to the operator, the difficulty of getting a permanent with dyed hair is largely overcome.

Insist on a fairly loose wave. This is a matter of heat regulation. Better be a bit underdone than over baked. However, you needn't be either if you observe the one important rule about permanet getting. This is to select some one whose work you know and whom you know to be familiar with hair texture and winding.

Good Morning!

There's naught that is phony
About that black pony
That Tom Mix calls Tony . . . !

A gentleman, a soldier, and an actor—Tony—and, so far as I was concerned, the whole show in "The Rider of Death Valley." Even his whinny recorded better than the other players' voices.

In this picture he is called upon to save his master from being eaten by the vultures that circle over trackless deserts waiting till consuming thirst shall have wrought its perfect work on unfortunate travelers. Tom has braved the terrors of the sands to hold a mine for a maiden who has fallen into the hands of thieves. Trouble over canteens and one thing and another brings the hero to the sad pass from which only Tony can rescue him.

"The Rider of Death Valley" is just one of the old time westerns come to life in sound—and the recording was not so good. Mr. Mix talks as if he had something in his mouth, and his voice is flat, with little carrying power. He, Miss Wilson, et al. enact the story with earnestness worthy of a better yarn. There's a funny, old fashioned child in the cast—Edith Fellowes—with a style as cramped as a grandmamma's.

Photography, sets, costumes—the tale is staged in the old days of gold rushes—are satisfactory. The scenery is interesting and the episodes featuring Tony can't fail to be downright thrilling to horse lovers of all ages.

See you tomorrow!

Two Honor Degrees Given by Seminary at Evanston Rites

Two honorary degrees were conferred yesterday by the Western Theological seminary at the commencement exercises in Memorial chapel at Evanston, at which seven young men were graduated. The degree of doctor of sacred theology was given the Rev. Montgomery Hunt Throop of Shanghai, and that of doctor of divinity to the Rev. John Roberts of Wind River, Wyo., by the dean of the school, the Rev. Frederick Grant.

Modern political systems are headed for destruction, the Rt. Rev. Herman Page of Detroit warned in the commencement address, unless man stops the plunge by coördinated effort. It is clear, he asserted, that "the great problem in the business world is coördination of effort. Cut-throat competition must somehow be changed into coöperation not only within the nation but throughout the world."

Fate of Opera to Be Decided on Wednesday

Dawes May Be Urged to Take Leadership.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

The fate of the Chicago Civic Opera company will be settled next Wednesday noon, when a meeting of the company's board of trustees will be held. Two important matters are to be considered. The first is the resignation of Samuel Insull as president. The other is whether a season of opera will be given next winter.

Coupled with this announcement is another item of news which may have some bearing on the situation. It is the return of Gen. Charles G. Dawes to take up life once again as a Chicagoan. There is gossip to the effect that the trustees' meeting has been set for a time when an appeal can be made to him to lead an attempt to take the opera company out of its present financial wilderness.

Whether Gen. Dawes will find time to take on this job is not yet known. It would be no new job for him. Years ago, before his other duties called him away from Chicago, he was the active, if not nominal, head of the Chicago Opera association, the former organization which became the Civic Opera company under Mr. Insull's leadership.

Three hundred and fifty thousand dollars out of a $500,000 guaranty fund has been pledged. At present there is talk of making no further attempt to raise the balance, but to abandon the coming season.

If this step is taken Chicago will be the only city in the world to decline to carry on. It will give up a season of cheer and good spirits greatly needed just now, it will throw 450 more persons out of employment, with the consequent slackening of mercantile trade which an opera season always brings, and it is by no means impossible that an abandonment for one season may mean an abandonment for all time.

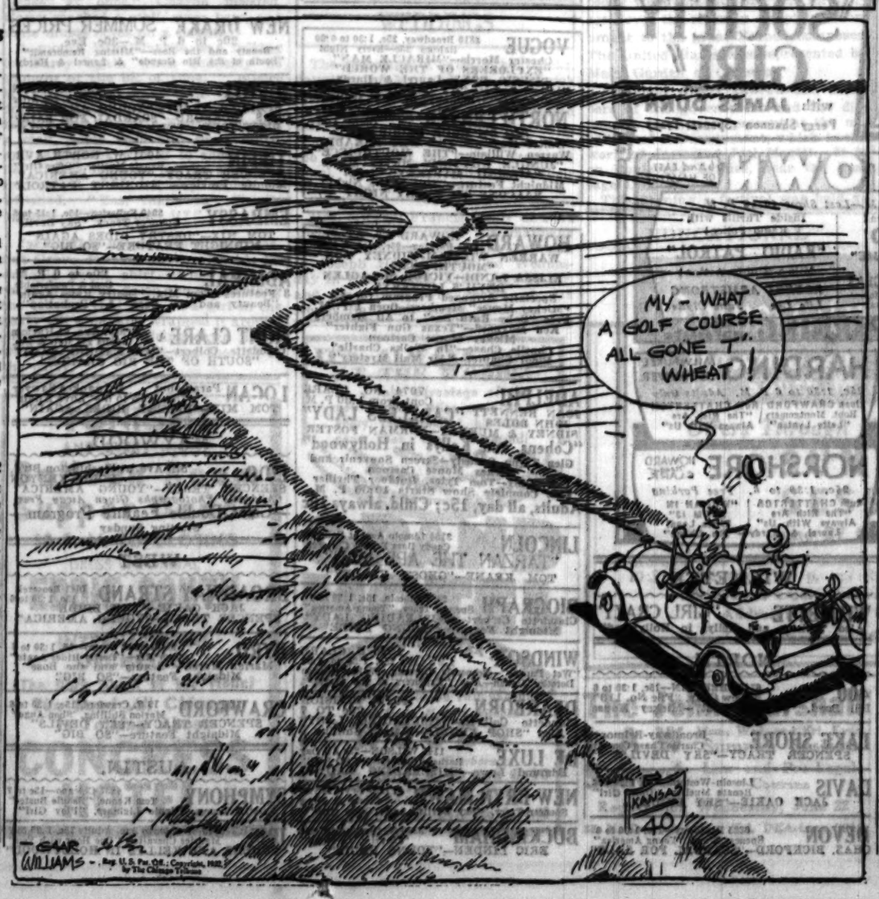
SOMETHING OUGHT TO BE DONE ABOUT THIS



Sudden Love

By ELISABETH SANXAY HOLDING

SYNOPSIS.

Esmee Sully spends her forlorn young life between the office, where she is an inefficient typist, and a dismal home. The widowed Mrs. Sully loves her children blindly, but doesn't know how to direct their spiritual or physical needs. Law, a year older than Esmee, is mingling in bad company. Cynthia, the oldest, has been deserted by her husband. Jimmy Considine, a crook lawyer, forces Law, whom he has in his power, to introduce his sister. Esmee, starved for beauty and change, is fascinated by Jimmy's grand manner, but finds him an unmanageable lover. Then she meets Michael Marriott, a dissipated young playwright. It's love at first sight. She feels his need of her is real. Returning home one evening, Esmee finds Michael waiting for her. He'd been drinking heavily. Esmee takes him home in a cab, but he has no key and can't get in. In desperation she takes him to a hotel and registers as his wife. Claire Cowley, Michael's pister, tells Esmee that Michael is engaged. But when Michael calls Esmee goes to see him. He tells her his engagement is broken; that he can't live without her, and wants to marry her. Esmee tries unsuccessfully to break with Jimmy. He accuses her of double-crossing him and threatens to have Law sent to jail. Esmee drives out to the country with him on Sunday. He forces her to accompany him to a roadhouse, where his word is law. Michael, who has trailed Jimmy's car, breaks in and rescues her. Jimmy swears he'll have Michael killed. Michael and Esmee stop at an inn for dinner. Esmee determines to have one last happy evening with Michael and then go to Jimmy. Michael takes Esmee to spend the night at Claire's. Linnett Bramwell, Michael's former fiancée, is there and Esmee feels ill at ease.

INSTALLMENT XXX.

DETERMINED TO FIGHT BACK.

"It's not jealousy," Esmee thought. "I suppose I should be jealous—if he cared very much for some one else. But I'm not jealous of Linnett. Even if he marries her, he won't forget me. And he won't be as happy with her as he could be with me. It's not because I think I'm so wonderful. It's only that—there just isn't any one who can love Michael like I do—if he doesn't come down this morning—or if he's—not himself when he comes she'll be sad. But I won't. I don't care. Nothing Michael does could ever make any difference to me."

Yet her heart beat violently at the sound of a step on the stairs.

"O, if only he can drive me in! Perhaps it'll be the last time. O, I want this last time with Michael—so much!"

As soon as he entered the room she saw that he had not been drinking. She saw, too, that he had not slept well. He was very neat, in a dark suit, a blue shirt and collar, his hair still damp from a recent bath, and there was about him the look of one who had fought with devils—and not been wholly victorious.

"'Morning, Linnett," he said. "Claire—Pen——"

Then he crossed the room and kissed Esmee on the forehead.

"Good - morning, dear," he said, perfunctorily.

Esmee knew how hard it was for him to do this, with Linnett standing near. For him, as for her, it was so difficult to cause pain. But he had done it to establish Esmee's claim here.

"You'll have to hurry, Esmee," he said. "If you want to get to your fool office by nine."

"But you have lots of time, Michael!" protested his sister.

"I haven't," he said curtly. "I'm the best judge of that."

He was frankly disagreeable this morning, and the others good-humoredly ignored him.

"It's because he's unhappy, miserable," thought Esmee.

"We'll have to start now," he said, just as she had been given a second cup of coffee.

"Michael, do let her finish her breakfast," said Claire, but Esmee had already risen and, with a hasty excuse, ran up the stairs for her hat and coat. Michael held open the door for her.

"Come around to the garage," he said. "Here! This way!"

She went with him, as she would have gone anywhere with him. It was not until they were well away from the house that she remembered she had not said good-by to Claire, not a word to any one.

"I've done everything wrong," she thought.

Pyne was in the garage, testing the engine of a sedan, listening to it as a physician might listen to a patient's heart.

"What are you doing?" demanded Michael, angrily.

"Mr. Cowley wished, sir——" he began.

"O, all right! All right!" Michael interrupted. "Hop in, Esmee!"

She got in the front of the roadster and he sat beside her at the wheel, drove out of the garage and along the drive.

"I thought I'd have a chance to speak to you there," he said. "I thought I——"

He made the turn into the road at a dangerous speed. But Esmee did not care how recklessly, how badly he drove. They were here, together, that was enough.

He went along the main highway at an inexcusable rate, then he turned off into an almost impassable road, a mere track through a wood. The car jolted unmercifully, swayed, through the ruts. When they had left the main road well behind, he stopped the engine.

"Esmee——" he said, and caught her in his arms.

"Michael, Michael, dear!"

"It was rotten for you. It was cruel——"

"It wasn't! I didn't mind, Michael——"

"Anyhow, it's over now," he said. "Esmee, I've read about a 'dewy cheek'—yours really is. You're so exquisitely fresh and—Esmee, I did some thinking last night—I don't see any sense in that wedding veil and church business, after all. It means a lot of planning, and waiting. Let's get our license today when you go out for your lunch——"

She had telegraphed to Jimmy to ring her up that morning. If he wanted her to lunch with him——

"Michael—I'm afraid I can't—today, dear."

"Why not?"

"Because I've got—things to attend to. One more day can't make any difference, Michael."

He took her chin in his hand and looked into her eyes.

"Can't it?" he said. "It does to me. I want to get a license today, and get married by the whoozis at the city hall—if they'll let us. I think I've heard something about having to wait three days, but I'll find out. Doesn't a day make any difference to you? It does to me. It makes a hell of a difference."

"Then noon today? I'll meet you."

She could not disregard Jimmy; she dared not.

"I—you see—I can't tell about lunch time now," she said.

"Then I'll ring you after lunch," he said. "Probably this license place closes early—four—perhaps three o'clock. You can slip out for that long. You ring me at the apartment, and I'll be at your office with the car, whatever time you say."

"Yes, I will, Michael," she said, with such a queer look on her face that he laughed.

"What's the solemn look for?" he asked. "Made up your mind to marry me—no matter how much you don't like it?"

"That's it!" she said, kissing him.

She had come to a new decision, just in this moment.

"I'm going to fight back," she thought. "When Jimmy telephones, I'll arrange to meet him for lunch. And I'm going to tell him that if anything happens to Michael I'll go to court and swear I heard him make that threat. If he won't promise not to hurt Michael, and to let Lew go, I'm going to the police. I won't be afraid of him. I won't let him do just as he pleases. I am going to marry Michael!"

"You're—choking me——!" said Michael.

"I don't care!" said Esmee.

"Well, stop. I want to talk. We'll get this whoozis to marry us today if we can—anyhow, as soon as it's allowed. And then I'll take you away somewhere. Any place you particularly want to go, Esmee?"

"No. Any place, Michael."

Suddenly she thought of the time.

"Michael, I'll be late."

"No, you wont. I allowed for this. I gave myself fifteen minutes to kiss you. I didn't think that damned Pyne would be in the garage. But he would be, naturally."

"Michael, dear—please look at your watch. Because I think it is fifteen minutes."

"It shouldn't seem like fifteen minutes to you," said Michael. But it was time to start again, and he backed the car out of the lane.

"Sit closer to me," he said. "I like your hair to blow against my face—I love you——"

"I love you, Michael!" she cried. "And I won't be separated from you!" she thought. "I'll make Jimmy listen this time. And if he won't, I go to the police."

There were things that came into her mind that she could not examine, that she thrust out. She and Michael were so happy together, this sweet spring morning, and they would go on being happy together.

"Then I'll call you up this afternoon, Esmee, and you'll tell me what time to come."

"Yes, Michael."

World Has No Substitute for Home, Parents

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

When Secretary of the Interior Wilbur at a recent conference aroused the ire of so many people by voicing his opinion that children would be apt to profit by the depression, he made that same day a statement that we can't take exception to. He said:

"There is no substitute for intelligent parental care exercised throughout the day, at meal times, and in controlling proper sleeping conditions at night.

"More important still, there is no substitute for the parent in the development of the spiritual, moral, and mental makeup of the child."

Home and parents. Parents and home. It's a simple couplet without rhyme or rhythm, but perhaps the most vital three words in the world.

It's what babies find waiting for them when they're born—home and parents. It's the whole world and the population of the earth to them for a long, long time. Gradually other places, other people, other interests and other influences swing into their horizon? But home and their mother and father must be always vital in their lives, an anchor to windward, a wisely guiding force, not dominating but showing the way and providing to the best of their ability the surroundings and the influences that make for growth and development in every way.

For a while a decade or so ago, science and efficiency and schools tried to supplant home and parents. It can't be done, and thank heaven there is now a unison of voices to join with Secretary Wilbur's statement that there is no substitute for a parent's care and caring.

Show me the woman who stays in the kitchen one minute longer than absolutely necessary on spanking hot days. The chances are that the afternoon hours between three and five—hours that our unemancipated foremothers spent stewing over the kitchen stove or preparing complicated miracles of this and that, we will now please to spend out on the golf links or luxuriating in the front porch swing, quite confident that twenty to thirty minutes will be ample time to hustle a refreshing, substantial meal onto the table.

Of course, the secret to all this speed lies in the art—science, or what you will—of regaling our families not on the stews and roasts of January, but with a tempting array of ready to serve meats quite characteristic of June. These zestful cold meat platters or simple dishes which can be made in ten minutes after applying the opener to the desired can, make short, sweet work of meals when combined with the quickly cooking new green vegetables of spring and summer. And when we can bring such platters from the refrigerator, chilled to perfection and ready to serve, then ours indeed is the triumph.

First for the service of luscious leftovers from the days when we did work up courage to promise our families roasts. Thinly sliced cold roast pork or roast veal garnished with curly endive, celery curls, olive or sweet pickle, and served with fresh peas and carrots, jellied fruit salad, sponge cake, and an iced dessert—such a combination will always please. Leftover cold sliced tongue is a real pleasure when served with pickled beets, cubes of currant jelly, or mayonnaise dressing mixed with spicy horseradish.

Cubes of mint jelly or half slices of pineapple do delectable things to a platter of cold sliced lamb. And celery stuffed with Roquefort cheese or with cream cheese mixed with chopped nuts and grated pineapple are welcome with any type of meat.

Or here's a speedy supper dish that is a real tempter for the eye as well as the palate. It is prepared by alternating in rows on a large platter slices of tongue, slices of tomato, and circles of green pepper filled with creamy cottage cheese. Garnish with crisp parsley and chill well before serving.

Another dinner platter gloriously simple to prepare hours ahead of time—and leave to cool its heels in the refrigerator—is masked spinach timbales in a circle of tongue slices. Here are the plans and specifications:

SPINACH TIMBALES AND TONGUE.

1 teaspoon lemon juice.
Salt and pepper to taste.
Sliced tongue.
Jellied mayonnaise.

Wash the spinach thoroughly and cook in only that water which clings to it, until tender. Chop and season with the onion juice, lemon juice, salt and pepper, and pack into small timbale molds. Chill. Prepare jellied mayonnaise [see below] and just before it becomes firm, used it to mask slices of tongue. Unmold the spinach forms in the center of a platter, ring with the masked tongue slices and on top of each spinach mold form a rosette of mayonnaise made with a pastry tube. Chill and serve garnished with fine sprigs of parsley.

JELLIED MAYONNAISE.

1 tablespoon cold water.
1 cup mayonnaise.

Soak the gelatin in the cold water five minutes, then melt over hot water. When melted, beat it into the mayonnaise. Let cool, and just before it stiffens, use to mask the tongue slices.

Milady Listens to Wild Waves in Chic Beach Dress

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—It took Paris a long time to convince the sex faible that pajamas are the only practical thing for beach wear. To all cries that they were masculine and undignified, fashion simply answered with producing more pajamas. And now, just when even the most conservative of women have been won over to the pajama, Paris ups and says that beach aprons are the smart thing for this summer, as they are more feminine. But fickle fashion is going to have a hard time unconvincing women that pajamas are not more practical.

It was Worth who started the idea of the beach apron last season, although he believes in both pajamas and aprons, and lets you decide for yourself.

In the sketch today you see the kind of outfit the feminine lady wears to listen to what the waves have to say this summer. It is from Vera Borea, and is in quilted white and red piqué. The dress is slung around the neck by two straps from which is suspended a single strap descending to the waistline, leaving the back exposed for a smart tan. The skirt is quite long and has a wrap-around effect in back.

Use Your Own Judgment on Hollywood Wit

These Are Some Samples of Humor There.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., June 17.—Maybe it was a reaction from the Republican convention or just general summery gladness, but all was laughter, gags, and gayety on today's rounds of the studio lots. Here are some samples:

At Paramount, where Bing Crosby is just getting himself oriented, Crosby was entering the studio as one of the Marx brothers came out. The Marx stopped Grosby, glad-handed him, and told him that "Mr. Oscar wants to see you."

Crosby didn't know "Mr. Oscar," but didn't want to betray unfamiliarity, and went on in. He inquired here and there for "Mr. Oscar."

Some one finally directed the singer to the bootblack stand near the exit gate. There were two men there, one getting a shine, and the other the bootblack.

"Are you Mr. Oscar?" Crosby asked the man getting a shine.

"No." The bootblack interrupted: "Did you want Oscah?" "Yes." "Well, I'm Mistah Oscah, Mistah Oscah Smith. Who are you?"

"O, me, I'm Russo Colombo." And Crosby walked on.

Harry D'Abbadie D'Arrast, the Frenchman who is directing Al Jolson's current picture, tells this one about Charlie Chaplin. D'Arrast came to America through friendship with Chaplin and worked with Charlie in many of his comedies, but moved over to the other studio while Charlie was away for a year.

"Charlie likes to think he is quite a composer of music," D'Arrast says. "But the comedian doesn't savvy writing music." The two were at lunch one day. Charlie looked pensive and whistled a bar. "Write that down, Harry," he commanded. Harry started to explain that he couldn't write music notes any better than Charlie. "Now, Harry, write it down, please, at once," Charlie insisted. Harry marked a staff, some bars, and some music notes on a napkin.

A month later Charlie was talking to Harry again when suddenly he thought of the bit of tune. "Where is that music I gave you to write down?" he demanded. D'Arrast didn't have it, but he got a napkin, marked a staff, some bars and some notes, and came back with it to show Charlie. "This must be it," he said, and improvised a bit of tune which he whistled. "Yes, that's it," Charlie beamed. "Good, isn't it?"

Jack Oakie showed up at a Cocoanut Grove dancing party with his inevitable sweat shirt. They did not want to let him go on the floor among the tuxedos that way, so a girl in the party got a napkin, wrapped it around his neck, tied it to hang down like a white stock, and Jack was the life of the party.

Catholic Youth Draws Pledge of Abstinence

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Now that prohibition is dying, the clouds of confused thinking concerning the Catholic position on temperance may be banished and progress toward true temperance made. So declared the 1,000 or more Catholic college students in a resolution adopted yesterday at their opening session of a three day convention on spiritual leadership at the Palmer house. The resolution will be incorporated in the convention's findings which will be distributed among the 10,000 Catholic sodalities and student organizations throughout the country.

The resolution, which charged the "years of discussion" of the Volstead laws with distracting the thought of Catholics from true Catholic doctrines and practice in regard to the evils of strong drink, was prepared by Miss Dorothy Broeder, a June graduate from Marygrove college, Detroit.

The resolution leaves no room for doubt as to the students' attitude toward temperance, for it demands "temperance and voluntary total abstinence for the young in honor of the sacred thirst of Christ on the cross."

Misinterpretation of the Catholic position on temperance by advocates of prohibition was charged in the resolution. These, the resolution asserted, "were so engrossed in the folly of prohibition as used in dealing with the liquor traffic that sometimes the Catholic position was wrongfully interpreted as favoring liquor or even the saloon."

The Catholic students in their resolution disclaimed any political suggestion in their temperance pronouncement. Rather, "it merely forecasts a calmer period when liquor regulation will be removed from the field of politics and restored to common sense. The program attacks the national problem from the standpoint of the individual man. Above all, it begins with the unspoiled heart of youth and bases its entire appeal on a rational motive reinforced by the highest spiritual ideals."

It was explained that the resolution represents the revival of the traditional Catholic method "which seeks not to make men righteous by statutory enactments, but rests its whole hope on motives which the individual reason approves and which individual will is inspired to carry into effect."

The Rev. Daniel A. Lord, S. J., of St. Louis is the national director of the spiritual leadership groups in Catholic colleges and universities. Colleges of the Chicago area represented at the convention are Mundelein, St. Xavier, St. Francis, Joliet; Barat, and Loyola university.

Dr. George Herman Derry, president of Marygrove college, Detroit, applauded the work of the convention. He declared that his association with the four annual conventions of the sodalities of the country under Father Lord's leadership had led him to believe them to be the most vital factor for religious regeneration of youth.

"Against the stories of flaming youth," said Dr. Derry, "it is refreshing to hear student after student express firm convictions and set forth the practical plans for relating religion to the lives of the rising generation."

The convention continues through today and tomorrow. Beginning Monday a conference of leaders of the sodalities will hold sessions four days. This will be followed by a conference of high school students.

Mary Garden Sings at Memorial Rites for Claude Debussy

PARIS, June 17.—(AP)—The French nation and the world of music honored the memory of Claude Debussy today when the city of Paris formally took over the recently completed monument to the great French composer. The United States was represented by Mary Garden of Chicago.

President Albert Lebrun and members of the government and the diplomatic corps were present at the unveiling of the monument; which is the work of Jean and Joel Martel. It is on Boulevard Lannes, near the Passage Dufresnoy.

This evening a festival was held at the Champs Elysees theater. Arturo Toscanini, director of the New York Philharmonic orchestra, came here especially to conduct the symphony "La Mer," and the fourth act of "Pelleas and Melisande" was sung by Miss Garden.

If Boy Wants to Renege, Give Him Freedom

Doris Advises Against Tears, Argument.

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"My boy friend, whom I've known for three years, has just decided that we cannot become engaged as he promised me. He insists he still cares for me and sees no reason why we cannot go on as friends and go out together occasionally.

"I tried to explain that this isn't a substantial enough arrangement for me, but he says there is no other way out at present. Perhaps at a later date he'll be better able to decide. What can I do about it? SALLY."

If you're a wise girl, "Sally," you'll give him all the rope he wants right now. When a young man gets to bucking and kicking and drawing away, let out the reins. Give him the whole wide world as a field to play in. Womanlike, pretend you're giving him all that. In actual fact, you do not have to. You can tug on the line now and then and pull him back in. But not unless you let him feel he is acting on his own initiative.

Your system, "Sally," of demanding a substantial arrangement may be direct business, but it is not nearly so happy a business in the long run as giving the boy his chance to come back of his own free will.

Suppose you have been seeing a good deal of each other for three years. Suppose you have had marriage in the back of both your minds. But suppose one of you shows an inclination to withdraw—for awhile. Isn't it better to take it as one of young romance's little vagaries than to try to force an issue? Wouldn't it be better to "take a little vacation" from each other to find out exactly how necessary to each other you are?

For you, the girl, it is just as well to inject a little of the old desirability in other boys' eyes during this interim. If the boy is interested that will awake him more quickly than anything. If he is not interested—then there wouldn't be any fun, and very little happiness in the continuance of the game. Beside, out in that new field of adventure you, too, might find some one who sets your heart racing again.

The exodus of the first boy friend or a second, which at the time seems the world's worst tragedy to youth, may turn out to be the proverbial blessing in disguise. Whether it is or not, there's nothing quite so opposed to happy and popular girlhood as hanging on for dear life to a chap whose arm aches from the burden.

AMERICAN DERBY TODAY; 14 RACE FOR $50,000

STEFFEN HEADS GROUP TO GREET GERMAN BOXERS

Big Reception Before Golden Glove Bouts.

Buy Before Tax

TICKETS for the International Golden Gloves boxing bouts with Germany July 26 at Soldiers' field are subject to a 10 per cent tax next Tuesday. Tickets may be bought before midnight Monday at the present scale of 50 cents, $1, $2, and $3. Mail or telephone your order to Golden Gloves Ticket Manager, Tribune Tower.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Judge Walter P. Steffen has accepted the honorary chairmanship of the committee which will formulate plans for the reception and entertainment of Germany's amateur boxing champions when they invade Chicago for the international matches against the Golden Gloves team. The German fighters are expected to arrive in Chicago at least one week before the bouts, which will be held at Soldiers' field July 26.

JUDGE WALTER P. STEFFEN.

Judge Steffen, one time famous football player at the University of Chicago and now football coach at Carnegie Tech, has continued his interest in athletics since the days of active participation. Judge Steffen for years has officiated in the annual Silver Skates Derbies sponsored by THE TRIBUNE and he is a member of The Tribune Officials' association.

Prominent Chicagoans, identified with German clubs and organizations, will compose the committee which will welcome the German boxers. The committee members will be announced later.

Germania Club Plans Reception.

The Germania club, one of the oldest German organizations in Chicago, is preparing a reception for the German boxers on Saturday night, July 23. This reception will be held at the club building, 108 Germania place. Other societies are expected to cooperate in planning the evening's entertainment.

"The Germania club has entertained every visitor of prominence to Chicago from the fatherland," Robert G. Scheunemann, president of the club, said in discussing the proposed activities. "Certainly we are anxious for Germany's champion boxers to visit with us. We propose to throw open our doors to Chicago's German population so that all of them may meet these boys.

"At first it was suggested that we entertain the champions at dinner. This was overruled because we believe a reception will permit more German-Americans to greet the boxers personally. It is too early to announce definite plans for that evening, but the entertainment will rival that arranged on the night the German flyers were our guests."

Club Reserves 2,500 Tickets.

Preliminary arrangements for participation of the Germania club in the reception was discussed at an informal dinner the other night. Those present, in addition to representatives of THE TRIBUNE, were: President Scheunemann, Joseph J. Merki, secretary; Albert W. Weinberger, Frank O. Lang, William F. Jacobs, John G. Weisbach, Edward Zahm, L. Wainwright Ernst, and Frank P. van de Westelaken.

The Germania club also reserved 1,500 three dollar tickets and 1,000 two dollar tickets for the international bouts. These tickets may be obtained at the club by members or their friends. Other German societies and organizations have communicated with the Golden Gloves ticket manager and definite reservations also will be made for them.

Early Ticket Sale Heavy.

Ticket orders now are accepted by mail only. They should be addressed to Golden Gloves Ticket Manager, Tribune Tower, Chicago, and must be accompanied by check. Although the bouts are more than five weeks distant, the advance sales indicate that all the reserved seats, 48,000, will be sold before July 26. It is probable that all of the $3 tickets will be gone three weeks before the fights.

SEXTON BREAKS WORLD'S RECORD FOR SHOT PUT

Cambridge, Mass., June 17.—(AP)—Leo J. Sexton, the New York A. C. shot putter, was able to make only one perfect toss today at the Harvard stadium, but it went 52 feet 8¾ inches for a new world record. It was the only exceptional performance in the long opening program of the American Olympic semi-final track and field meet.

Working from a take-off that was slippery from an all-day rain, Sexton fouled on his first try with the 16 pound ball, but on his second attempt hurled the shot over the gravel and into the grass, for the stadium ring measure only 52 feet.

Garden Deals New Hand to Get Full House—Cuts Prices

JACK SHARKEY.

Drastic reductions in whole sections of high priced seats in Madison Square Garden's new bowl on Long Island have increased to approximately 50,000 the number of tickets that are selling for between $2 and $5.

In effect, the cheaper priced seats have been moved into the higher scaled areas, leaving only 17,000 of the total capacity of 77,000 in the top brackets. On this new scale it is estimated a complete sell out Tuesday night would gross only $500,000, with every indication that no more than half that amount will be lured from the pockets of the faithful.

No other heavyweight championship battle in modern ring history ever presented such a discouraging financial prospect so short a time before the firing was due to begin.

Sad Days for Gate Receipts.

The Garden also has been harassed by the federal tax situation. After tickets were printed allowing only for a 10 per cent tax in conformity with the new bill that goes into effect June 21, the day of the fight, it was discovered the federal government intends to collect the 25 per cent levy of the old tax bill on all tickets sold prior to the day of the contest. The Garden will be forced to pay the difference, materially reducing net proceeds.

While hope of financial success has about died, there seemed every possibility the duel will be one of the artistric triumphs of modern heavyweight history. Both warriors are in superb condition. Both are clouters and can take tremendous punishment.

Schmeling still feels keenly the fact that he won the title from Sharkey in four rounds while sitting on the floor claiming foul, the only heavyweight champion in history with that dubious distinction.

The Boston sailor, with nothing but bitter memories at his own lack of control in a match he was winning easily, is further aroused by the fact he can gain little except the title in victory. Whereas Schmeling will receive almost 50 per cent of the net receipts, Sharkey will get only 10 per cent.

MAX NEARLY ALL SET

Kingston, N. Y., June 17.—(Special.)—Max Schmeling has practically completed his preparations for defense of his heavyweight championship against Jack Sharkey next Tuesday. He worked out today with his sparring mates and will perform again tomorrow. But that will be to attract about 3,000 customers at a dollar a head.

Schmeling needs no more boxing; he is ready to go right now.

It is the general impression that the champion is in as good condition as he ever has been. He has been hitting hard and his speed is all that can be asked. The man's confidence and serenity are described as superb. There is absolutely no question in his mind that he will beat his sailor rival and go back to Germany still wearing his crown.

SHARKEY IN BEST FORM

Orangeburg, N. Y., June 17.—(Special.)—Jack Sharkey is better equipped, both physically and mentally, for his fight with Max Schmeling next Tuesday night than he was for the first fight with the world's heavyweight champion two years ago.

This was the verdict of a jury made up of three physicians representing the New York state athletic commission who put the challenger through a rigid examination today both before and after a vigorous eight round workout.

WARREN DAWSON, MARTIN TO MEET FOR STATE TITLE

Chicagoans Play 36 Holes at Champaign Today.

Champaign, Ill., June 17.—[Special.]—Warren Dawson of Glen Oak Country club, Chicago, the defending champion, and Richard Martin, Briergate Country club of Chicago, will fight it out tomorrow for the Illinois state amateur golf championship. Thirty-six holes of match play, 18 holes tomorrow morning and a like number in the afternoon, over the Champaign Country club course, will decide the title.

To enter the finals Dawson beat Hank Foley, Silver Lake Country club, Chicago, 1 up in the third round this morning and defeated Yonts Bonnett Jr. of Bloomington, 6 and 4, this afternoon in the semi-finals. Martin defeated George Dawson of Glen Oak, the medalist and brother of the champion, 3 and 2, in the third round and beat James R. Reston, Urbana, captain of the University of Illinois 1932 golf team, 2 to 1, in the semi-finals. Martin was captain of the Illini team last season.

Dawson 2 Up at Turn.

Dawson made a birdie 4 on the first hole, was one over par 4 on the second, had par 5 on the third, and went two over par with 6 on the fourth. He came back with par 4 on the fifth, went one over par 3 on the sixth, and finished with a string of pars, except on the 12th, where he made a birdie.

Dawson's card:

Out	455	644	434—39
In	553

Bonnett's card:

Out	454	554	445—41
In	455

Martin Out in 36.

Martin played brilliantly to beat Reston in the other semi-final, his putter being his best asset. He toured the first nine holes in par 36, while Reston was three over par. Martin had birdies on the third and 13th holes.

Martin's card:

Out	544	543	434—36
In	355	354

Reston's card:

Out	445	553	535—39
In	344	444

Bonnett had things his own way and won easily over Gus Fetz of Northwest Lions club, Chicago, 5 and 4, in the morning round while Reston won without much exertion over H. F. Bowbeer of Acacia Country club, Chicago, 4 and 3.

Lyle Hoffman of Urbana, a University of Illinois sophomore, and Don Armstrong of Aurora will meet for the consolation championship tomorrow. Hoffman beat W. F. Percival of Champaign, 6 and 5, and Armstrong eliminated C. L. Weems of Quincy, 2 and 1.

Dr. David Fanning of Edgewood Valley, Chicago, won first flight honors by defeating Frank Renwick of Aurora, 2 and 1. Keith Johnson of Bloomington won in the second flight from Ken Detweiler of Dixon, 5 and 3. R. W. Webber, Urbana, was victor in the third flight over George Bennett of Champaign, 2 up.

STEP AND FETCH THAT DERBY PRIZE!

Stepenfetchit has been trying all season to win a turf special for three year olds and perhaps this is his day. The Whitney colt is second choice to Boatswain in the $50,000 added American Derby at Washington Park, and there are many who think his nose will be in front when the field of 14 rushes past the finish line of the mile and a quarter race. Stepenfetchit was third in the Kentucky Derby.

BY FRENCH LANE.

The American Derby, carrying much of its old time pomp and splendor, comes back to Chicago today and the 24th running of it will take place at Washington Park a few minutes before 5 o'clock this afternoon.

Offering its long established prize of $50,000 and a valuable trophy, the race attracted an overnight field of 14. These are the best 3 year olds left in training, and they represent every thoroughbred racing center in the country. They are the survivors from an original Derby entry list of 129. Unless there are showers today the mile and a quarter battle will be waged over a track that is lightning fast. It will be witnessed by a crowd of some 30,000, the advance sale of tickets indicated.

The overnight entry box had no sooner been opened yesterday than Boatswain, a son of Man o' War, which drew post position No. 14 on the extreme outside, was installed as the favorite. The odds against him were 3 to 1. Boatswain will run in the silks of Walter M. Jeffords, who is a son-in-law of Samuel D. Riddle, in whose jacket Man o' War raced to his world records.

Stepenfetchit Second Choice.

Stepenfetchit, from Mrs. John Hay Whitney's barn, was made the second choice at 4 to 1. Then came Yonkel at 8 to 1. Osculator and Adobe Post were mustering backing at 10 to 1. As for the others you could write your own ticket. This Derby appears to be a race which any of the others might win.

The students of the Derby dope, as they lowered their wrinkled brows over the final pages of past performances last night, had to admit that it looks as if this year's race belongs to the east. With Boatswain, Stepenfetchit, Osculator, Gusto, and Sunmelus, the east holds a powerful hand, a hand that caused most of the owners of the western colts to shiver in their boots.

If Burgoo King were here to lead the charge of the westerners, things might not look so gloomy. But Burgoo King is down on Col. Bradley's farm nursing injuries and sore legs which he sustained while beating most of our American Derby contenders in the Kentucky Derby and the Preakness. Or if Burning Blaze were on the job in tiptop condition there might be a different story to tell. Or even the crippled Brother Joe might have turned back the invaders.

Yonkel a Route Runner.

But what's the use of all that sort of speculation? It will be the horse which can pick up four good, sound legs and put 'em down faster than the others that will be crowned the Derby champion. And the east seems to be represented by these horses.

Yonkel, a son of Hourless-Martinberg, which races for Abraham Bartelstein of Chicago, might be the westerner to turn back the easterners. He has shown signs of being a great route runner. He should be, for his daddy, Hourless, could run all day. But even the Yonkel admirers would like his chances better if the race were at a mile and a half instead of at a mile and a quarter.

From the east come reports considerably louder than a whisper that Gusto, a grandson of Man O' War, is the most improved 3 year old in that section. One wise, conservative horseman said, "Gusto will win if he doesn't fall down more than a half dozen times en route to the finish."

Gusto Must Prove It.

Gusto races for Morton L. Schwartz. Perhaps he has improved. But he will have to prove it in the battle this afternoon.

Adobe Post, which will race for Dick Morris of Chicago, didn't send his backers to bed last night with much confidence despite an impressive victory in the Derby trial. They were afraid that the mile and a quarter might be too much for him. But Marmion was given a chance by the long shot players, while Rowdy Boy, Our Fancy, I Say, and Minton could not muster a following of any size.

Since the Derby "came back" following those golden days of thirty or forty years ago it has been renewed six times. And four times the west has been victorious with Boot to Boot, Hydromel, Windy City and Reveille Boy. The two eastern victories were rolled up by Toro, owned by Edward B. McLean, and Mate, which captured last year's Derby in the silks of Albert C. Bostwick.

So if the easterners give us a trimming this afternoon they will just be getting sort of half way even.

Most of the reserved seats both in the grandstand and clubhouse sections had been sold last night. The crowd will begin moving toward Washington Park early, not in tallyhos or other horse drawn rigs, but on special race trains which will begin operating at 11:40 o'clock. Other thousands will go by automobile, so for today at least old King Horse is the showman.

In the Wake of the News

EARLIER CHICAGO.

DEAR WAKE: In the '70s the Follansbee home at 22d and Wabash [Wabash was not then a business street] was a large old-fashioned building of red brick with big chimneys. After Mr. Follansbee died in the late '70s, it was used by the Dearborn seminary, a high class school for girls. The principal was Z. Grover, a tall, dignified man of the "old school."

In early days the homestead must have been a very fine place, but after the fire of 1871 a number of frame buildings were put up along 22d street from State to Wabash, used for stores, saloons, etc. All these and everything else were cleaned up when George A. Seaverns bought the entire frontage and a smaller block on Wabash along about 1884. The Follansbees had two blocks on Wabash south of the old home to 23d street, built in the '70s.

In 1875 a second Moseley school building was put up adjoining the old one built in 1856. These stand at 24th and Michigan. From the top of the old building, room 2, one could plainly see the tower of the old University of Chicago at 34th and Cottage Grove; also the spire of the Baptist church at 31st and South Park avenue. J. C. Howland.

Baseball memories of Helper Ed P. Ingham recall that in 1882 I played on the Golden Eagles of Fort Wayne, Ind., and later that year with the Fort Wayne team. Jack Remson, who had been with the Haymakers of Troy, N. Y., was captain. Others I recall were Hank O'Day, later a noted umpire, and Getzein, who pitched for Detroit in the '80s. The first catcher's mask I saw was in 1881. I caught without any protection, standing behind the plate to steady the pitcher, and using only a right hand catcher's glove with the fingers cut off. The pitching mound then was 45 feet from the plate instead of the present 60 feet. Harry W. Gilbert.

American Derby.

The Wake regrets that we cannot become enthusiastic about the class of the American Derby field today. Two weeks ago probably not one which will go to the post would have been rated by its owner as worth more than the approximate $50,000 to be earned by the winner. However, class is an intangible thing and occasionally does not prove anything.

There are possibilities in this field. Boatswain is one of them. Stepenfetchit is another. That does not mean one of those two necessarily will win. It's a great chance for one previously lightly regarded.

If not enthusiastic about the field, which training mishaps have robbed of many proved performers, one certainly can be enthusiastic about the expected crowd and Derby day itself. It's an occasion a turf lover does not wish to miss. The Wake will be among those present at Washington Park.

More About Denny Clark.

We have received a letter from Helper C. F. M., which reads in part: "I read with much interest your remarks on the suicide of Denny Clark, 'goat' of the Chicago-Michigan game of 1905. In one place you write: 'While there is no reason to connect Mr. Clark's tragic death with an incident of 27 years ago, etc.' I wonder if you, Wake, realize how much the numerous newspaper articles written on his play affected him?

"Denny was a fraternity brother of mine—a fine boy. The night after that fatal game several of us sat up all night with him trying to prevent just what happened a few days ago. Many newspaper writers during the last 27 years quoted that play of his, undoubtedly considering it good copy, little realizing how each recital cut into poor Denny's heart.

"Merkle and Snodgrass received much publicity for their so-called bonehead plays. They were salaried men. Denny Clark's play was made by an amateur—just a boy who played the game for love of it. May sport writers of the future pass lightly on such plays as Denny's in their comments."

Gomez Faces Sox Today and Is He Excited!

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The New York Yankees, possessed of a neat seven game lead in the American league parade, and the White Sox, coyly snuggled in seventh place, eight and one-half games out of sixth place, will be at it again this afternoon at Comiskey park, following a Friday gap in their championship schedule.

The Yanks spent yesterday in Milwaukee, losing, 10 to 9, to the Brewers of the American association. The Sox sharpened up for the remainder of the Yank series and their four approaching games with the A's by journeying to Waterloo, Ia., where they walloped the Hawks of the Mississippi Valley league, 8 to 0.

It's Gomez Today.

The customers at Comiskey park this afternoon will be given the opportunity to look at Vernon Gomez, the talented young left hander who is burning up the league with a record of 12 wins and one defeat to date. Lefty was second to Lefty Grove in effectiveness in the American league last year, and his form this year is reported to be even greater than it was in 1931. Manager Fonseca did not announce his pitching choice before leaving for Waterloo, being uncertain as to whom he would have to use in the battle with the Hawks.

With a continuance of good weather, the Sox will expect to set a new attendance mark for the season today and tomorrow. The crowd of 12,000 at the opener Wednesday was a disappointment. A gathering of 33,000 turned out Thursday, and though it was a ladies' day crowd, the gathering included many paying guests and also was looked upon as a warm up for turnstile clicking by many of the gals this afternoon and tomorrow.

Macks Are Next.

When they depart tomorrow night, the Yanks will be gone until Aug. 3, when they come to town for another four game series. Monday the A's, now in a second place tie with the Washington Senators, will arrive at Comiskey park for a four game stand. The Sox and A's have played only one game this year. They took a blanking from Lefty Grove in the lone engagement.

Following the closing of the eastern invasion next Thursday the Sox will linger at home to entertain the Detroit Tigers June 25, 26 and 27.

Chicago [A. L.]	103	112	000	—8	15	1
Waterloo [M. V. L.]	000	000	000	—0	2	1

RAIN PILES UP 2 GAMES FOR CUBS IN N. Y. TODAY

Warneke and Bush Will Oppose Giants.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 17.—What is known as rainy weather today rendered valuable service to the Giants' officials who are more or less annoyed that the folks haven't been patronizing their establishment. The rain dampened the Polo Ground premises in such satisfactory fashion that the day's game could be canceled without a strain on the conscience and, as a result, there will be a double header tomorrow between Bill Terry's revived team and the pace making Cubs.

In order to keep the Giants from becoming too important in the percentages Manager Hornsby is going to treat them to just about the best pitching the Chicago outfit can provide, at least against this particular enemy. In one of the games it will be up to Lon Warneke, the 23 year old marvel, to win his ninth victory of the year. In the other the job will be given to Guy Bush, who, as a rule, can give the Giants far more trouble than the keyhole detectives who recently were bounced along with Mr. John McGraw.

Face Two Lefties.

The Giant pitching probably will be handled by a pair of wrong armed workmen. This is contrary to the usual managerial strategy, but it so happens that Boss Terry has little choice. He has only one reliable right hander. The two southpaws are Bill Walker and Jim Mooney, who have three victories apiece. The Cubs have no reason to fear either.

As a manager Mr. Terry has done well enough thus far in the matter of triumphs, but he doesn't seem to have captured the esteem of the boys in the press box. Intentionally or otherwise he has treated them with more or less contempt, instead of tolerance, and they are a bit peeved about it.

Today they chided Terry a la Coolidge because he didn't choose to run after singling in the ninth inning of yesterday's game and put himself in position to score the tying run. The day before they were all set to pan him for not passing Stephenson with two out. Stevie drove in the runs that at the time looked good enough to win. But Billy Herman booted one in the eighth and the Giants triumphed, so the opportunity was lost.

Terry'll Have to Change.

Eventually this press box attitude, unless Terry realizes his mistake, will catch up with him. In this town a man has to be pictured as a hero to sustain public support.

Since quitting their own fireside, the Cubs have won enough games to make a lot of people believe it is going to be quite a job to get them very far out of first place. They have played three in Pittsburgh, four in Brooklyn, two in Boston and two here. Five of these starts resulted in victories. The only real jolt was encountered in Brooklyn where they were turned back in three of four games. But the team showed it had spirit by bouncing right back and grabbing the only two played at Boston where first place was at stake.

They Need Punch.

The answer is great pitching and superfielding. But the hitting strength isn't there. If the pitchers should slip a little, you can figure the result.

Now that Kiki Cuyler is back there should be some improvement in the attack. Cuyler is bound to be on base a lot of times when Stephenson delivers. And with Cuyler delivering it is fairly certain that he'll drive around fellows like English and Herman, who precede him in the attack.

DUSEK AND DAVIS ARE MATCHED ON MARIGOLD CARD

Jim Clinkstock, Oklahoma Indian, and Joe Stecher, former world's champion, and Jim McMillen and Gino Garibaldi are matched in the double windup on the card.

Stecher's attempted comeback has created considerable interest. In order to press his plea for a match with Jim Londos, Stecher must defeat Clinkstock. He also must beat such men as Hans Steinke, who will be on Tuesday's card; Dusek, Ray Steele, and McMillen.

Rodak, Caserio Win on Ashland Arena Program

Chester Bukowski beat Gene Klopack [3].
Mike Kamis beat George Trapp [3].

Illini Grads Lose Golf Cup to Michigan

School rivalry as well as golf scores ran high when alumni of Illinois and Michigan assembled for their annual golf outing at White Pines yesterday.

The Wolverines won the silver trophy, emblematic of the golf championship, which has been in the possession of the Illini for the last two years. The Michigan contingent of 28 men had a grand total of 2,956 strokes for the 18 holes, giving them an average of 105 strokes per man. The Illini had 25 entered and they grossed 2,703 strokes for an average of 108.

Two Wolverines, Stuart St. Clair and L. E. Osmer shot identical scores of 42—40—82 to capture low gross honors. St. Clair won the draw for the prize. Glenn Paxton of Illinois led his colleagues with an 85. A. Loomis Kirkpatrick of Michigan won the blind bogey with an 84.

Leading scores were: Michigan—Stuart St. Clair, 82; L. E. Osmer, 82; R. F. Hall, 89; Don Johnson, 92; Tommy Roberts, 96; Fletcher Lewis, 98. Illinois—Glenn Paxton, 85; C. B. Oliver, 92; George Wood, 95; Glen Whain, 95; A. E. Paxton, 95, and Charles Goern, 103.

The Elmhurst Golf club is so proud of its improved fairways and five entirely new greens that the sports and pastimes committee has arranged a special field day for today. The club has eliminated all low gross scores for prize competition and today's foursome awards will be made on the basis of low net. In addition to the foursome prizes awards will be made for blind bogey and the least number of putts.

Lincoln park's new nine hole course, running from Waveland to Montrose avenue, will be open to the public for the first time at 5 o'clock this morning. Nearly 200 members of the Kiwanis clubs of Chicago played over the course yesterday. The fee for a nine hole round will be 35 cents, with reservations 50 cents.

The Bon Vivants, an organization of steamship agents, will join the Chicago Passenger club, the General Agents' association, and the City Passenger Agents' club in their golf tournament at Cherry Hill tomorrow.

The Forty and Eight, ex-service men's organization, will hold its third monthly golf tournament of the season Thursday at Evergreen, 91st street and Western avenue. The meet will be featured by a special match between Sheriff William D. Meyering and Joe Dorfman, both one armed veterans of the world war.

The Chicago District Golf association, having successfully conducted its second annual Illinois pro and amateur tournaments, faces another busy session during the coming week. On Monday it will hold its junior medal event at Ravisloe; on Tuesday and Wednesday it will conduct the two day Hullabaloo for Bob o' Link, and on Wednesday will also hop over to Exmoor for its third handicap event. The fourth handicap event of the C. D. G. A. will be held at Beverly on July 13. The district team matches, decided on the basis of four man teams from each club at 36 holes of medal play, will be held at Glen Oak June 29. The Chick Evans trophy, emblematic of the team title, is now held by Edgewood Valley. Entries for the matches are $10 per team and close at the office of the association, 236 North Clark street, June 27.

Fifty-five entries have been received for the junior tournament at Ravisloe Monday. Wilmette heads the list with nine named to play the 36 holes. Other entries range from Lake Hills on the south to Barrington Hills on the north.

Chick Evans of Edgewater and Jack Kelley of the home club will meet Dick Martin of Briergate and Jock Hutchison of Glen View tomorrow at the Libertyville Golf and Country club in a benefit match for the service relief fund of the Great Lakes Naval Training station.

The Spalding Golf Guide for 1932 has been published and is now on sale at the company store, 211 South State street. This year's number is featured by a fifty page article entitled "How I Play Golf" by Bobby Jones gleaned from the dialogue used by Bobby in his series of talking pictures and fulsomely illustrated. In addition to this the book carries complete information on the rules, details of 1931 tournaments, and lists of past champions.

Broadway and Walker Hail Gene Sarazen

New York, June 17.—[Special.]—With a reception such as New York gives to trans-Atlantic flyers and channel swimmers, Gene Sarazen, winner last week of the British open golf title, was greeted officially by Mayor James J. Walker at the city hall shortly after 1 o'clock today.

Sarazen was whisked up Broadway to the accompaniment of screeching sirens and was ushered into the mayor's chambers, where he faced a battery of camera men and a radio microphone.

In greeting the British champion Mayor Walker thanked him for offering to participate in a match with Bobby Jones a week from Sunday for the benefit of the mayor's committee for the relief of the needy and unemployed.

Walker Wants Economy.

After welcoming Sarazen the mayor said he was going back to the estimate and apportionment meeting, where he hoped he would be able to effect an economy parallel with the stroke economy Sarazen had manifested in the British open. Sarazen's total of 283 strokes was the lowest in history for a major open championship and clipped two strokes from the record set in 1927 by Bobby Jones at St. Andrews, Scotland.

Honored at Banquet.

The dinner was attended by persons prominent in many walks of life. Mayor Walker was present to amplify his remarks of tribute delivered at city hall. Dudley Field Malone was toastmaster.

Doctor Tells Betty Not to Run in Meet

The outstanding women athletes of the central states will compete today at Ogden park, in the Central A. A. U. track and field championship meet.

Betty Robinson, Olympic star, who entered the meet for her first competition since she was injured in an airplane crash, was ordered by her doctor not to compete. However, she will be on the field and will present medals to the winners. She was to have competed in the 100 meter dash. Girls entered in this event are Elsie Imhof, Lucille Francisco, Annette Rogers, Mary Terwilliger and Tidye Pickett.

Minneapolis Star Enters.

Alice Roose, considered the outstanding woman athlete in the northwest, will run under the colors of the First National bank of Minneapolis.

Nellie Todd, world's record holder, has entered the eighty meter hurdles and the broad jump; Evelyn Ferrera will toss the javelin and discus, and Genevieve Falvoda, south parks' representative, will compete in the running high jump.

Twelve from Mooseheart.

Mooseheart, for the first time in its history, has entered a team of twelve in open competition. The Milwaukee Women's Athletic club also is sending a large team. The Waukegan playgrounds, board of education playgrounds, Lake Shore park, Jewish People's institute, and the south park system are there represented.

The meet will start at 1 p. m. and the following will officiate: Avery Brundage, referee; Roy E. Davis, starter; Lt. Col. Oliver D. Steele, announcer; Charles A. Dean, chief finish judge; Fred L. Steers, chief timer; P. A. MacFarlane, chief field judge, and Harry Berz, chief clerk of course.

Katz Beats Rothschilds, 9-5, in Softball Game

Katz Millinery softball team advanced another notch in the State Street league last night by defeating Maurice Rothschild, 9 to 5, at Grant park.

Fields Goes West Next Week; Plans Bout Labor Day

Jackie Fields, welterweight champion, will leave Tuesday for Los Angeles, Cal., to visit his mother. His manager, Ray Alvis, said yesterday Fields will defend his title against Young Corbett at San Francisco either Aug. 27 or Sept. 5, Labor day. Despite the long idleness, Alvis said the champion will not engage in any tuneup bouts.

Jack Moran, Chicago middleweight, has been appointed boxing instructor at St. Maurice church by Rev. Albert Reisel. The south side church is a branch of the Catholic Youth organization and has 15 boxers. Moran's good fight against Sammy [Kid] Slaughter at the Chicago Stadium last month was a factor in his appointment. Slaughter passed through the loop yesterday en route to Indianapolis where he boxes Ray Tramblie Tuesday.

Harry Dublinsky yesterday had a physician examine his right eye, which has been damaged considerably recently in bouts against Johnny Jadick, junior welterweight champion; Benny Bass, former 130 pound titleholder; and Tony Canzoneri, lightweight king. In all three bouts the eye closed tight. Canzoneri left yesterday for New York, where he will rest two weeks before starting training at Pompton Lakes, N. J., for his 140 pound championship contest with Jadick at Philadelphia, July 18.

Tony Herrera, local junior welterweight, will have an additional week to train for his match with Eddie [Kid] Wolfe of New Orleans, La., at Pittsburgh. The bout has been postponed from Monday to June 27. In a previous contest Herrera won in ten rounds.

Mique Malloy announced last night fans who buy tickets to the Charley Retzlaff-Les Marriner match at White City, June 23, before Tuesday can save the payment of a 10 per cent federal tax. . . . Retzlaff will leave tomorrow for New York, where he boxes Hans Birkie Tuesday. . . . Ray Miller will begin training today for his postponed match against Eddie Anderson at Des Moines, Ia., next Thursday.

Br'er Rabbit Is Given Place in Million Stews

BY BOB BECKER.

Although there are some state and many legislators who still consider that fish and game in the woods and waters are just incidentals in the economic make up of the state, one has only to look at the remarkable report just made by Wisconsin to realize that they represent a cash value running into millions of dollars.

Wisconsin has just tabulated its reports from hunters to find that 75 per cent of its licensed sportsmen took 2,542,126 units of game last year, which if replaced at the "market price" would cost $3,189,123.75. A $3,000,000 crop from the land and one crop that provided sport, outdoor exercise and relaxation. Legislators who take little or no interest in conservation, well planned game laws, restocking programs and other factors in producing game may well consider Wisconsin's simple case of arithmetic involving rabbits, grouse and other game.

23 Units Per Hunter.

Paul D. Kelleter, conservation director of Wisconsin, states that the department had the reports of 120,897 hunters to work with. Of this number about 10,000 reported no luck. The balance killed an average of 23 units of game per hunter.

It is interesting to note that the common cottontail rabbit topped the list of game secured by these Wisconsin hunters, showing that this little animal still is the king pin among most users of shotguns. More than 1,000,000 cottontails were shot in Wisconsin last year. It would cost 50 cents per rabbit to stock them in the state. Therefore that number of rabbits represents an actual value of more than $500,000 without counting in dollars and cents the value of the fun the hunters had in shooting them.

700,000 Squirrels Bagged.

The report also shows that Wisconsin certainly is keen about squirrel hunting as the number of these animals shot was tremendous. In fact more than 700,000 of them were taken last year by licensed hunters. Add to this number those shot by farmers on their own land and the department of conservation figures that easily 1,000,000 squirrels furnished meals for Wisconsin residents last year.

If we had enjoyed a normal waterfowl season in the central states Wisconsin's inventory of cash values on game taken would have been much larger. Only about 250,000 waterfowl were killed in the state last fall, probably not more than 15 per cent of the normal figure.

According to Mr. Kelleter the outlook for hunting this fall is excellent. Wisconsin may expect to harvest an excellent crop from its woods, swamps and fields.

LINCOLN PARK CREW RACES AT ST. LOUIS TODAY

St. Louis, Mo., June 17.—(AP)—Three St. Louis clubs, one from Quincy, Ill., and one from Chicago will participate in the Central States Rowing association regatta, which opens at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon on the Mississippi river here.

Junior events will be held tomorrow and the senior events Sunday.

The Central Rowing club's crews, local favorites, regard the South Side Boat club of Quincy as its greatest rival for point honors, although Lincoln Park Boat club of Chicago is another expected to figure strongly.

Other St. Louis entries are the Western Rowing club and the North End Rowing club, both of which have been defeated by Central in early spring meets here.

50 BOATS SAIL AWAY TODAY TO MICHIGAN CITY

Compete for Ten Columbia Yacht Club Prizes.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Chicago's lake front will be barren of sails by 10 o'clock this morning, by which time one of the oldest races on record, the Columbia Yacht club's 41st annual cruise to Michigan City, Ind., will have gotten under way. Fifty boats, a majority of them from the Columbia, Chicago, and Jackson Park clubs and three from Michigan, will make the trip to the Indiana port, 32½ nautical miles from the starting point, the Van Buren street gap.

Ten prizes will be offered, three of them time prizes for the cruising, universal and Seawanhaka divisions, and the other seven class awards for R boats, S boats, universal yawls, ketches and schooners, A, B, and C cruising boats, and Seawanhaka sloops. Cruising class C boats will lead the way from the starting line at 9:35 o'clock, and the others will continue until 9:55, when the Q boats and large universal sloops set sail.

Competition Keen.

The race promises to develop more competition than any other of recent years, particularly in the R and cruiser classes, in which two newcomers will make their racing debut in local waters. Sterling Morton's 88 foot schooner, Freedom, just returned from a winter cruise in the Carribean, will meet Bob Benedict's Bagheera and thirteen others in the battle for the cruising time prize. Hope, the trim new Q boat which T. W. Robinson Jr. of the Chicago Yacht club, recently brought on from Marblehead, Mass., will start against one of the best Q boats in the country in Siren, the Karas brothers' three time Mackinac winner.

The three Michigan boats are Irving S. Orr's Larikin from Grand Rapids; L. J. Plym's Baldur [ex-Cynthia], and the Ross syndicate's Bangalore, both from St. Joseph.

Mixpah Patrols Course.

A number of power boats will follow the fleet, with Commander Eugene F. McDonald's 185 foot yacht, Mixpah, patrolling the course. Two sub chasers and two coast guard crews also will go along.

BOSTWICK, UP ON BLIND BOWBOY, WINS HANOVER

The Nut Second in Three Horse Race.

New York, June 17.—[Special.]—Blind Bowboy won the seven furlong Hanover handicap at Aqueduct by a nec: today. Pete Bostwick, owner of the son of Epinard, rode him to victory for the second time within a few days. Mack Garner, who rode the favorite, the Warm stable's The Nut, had nothing on the amateur rider. It was a three horse race, Ormesby being the other starter.

The Nut appeared to be a standout, but he was not good enough. Garner permitted Bostwick to steal too long a lead, and, while making a game finish down the longest stretch run in the world, he could not get up.

Rates Horse Well.

At the sixteenth it appeared The Nut would close the gap, but Bostwick rode the best race of his career on a flat course to hold Blind Bowboy in the lead.

Bostwick rated his mount well, conserving enough for the final test. Ormesby, the long shot, set the pace for three furlongs. Then Bostwick, keeping in front of The Nut, took the lead, and when The Nut challenged he had a live horse to catch. The time was 1:23 4-5, within four-fifths of the record for seven furlongs. The winner closed at 3 to 2.

Big Leaguer Wins.

Big Leaguer, a long shot, was up in time to score in the fifth event, at five furlongs. Resurrection finished second, while Misguide, a good thing, was third. The time was :59.

J. H. Louchheim's Glendair, well ridden by the apprentice, C. Reynolds, won the fourth race from a large field by six lengths. Young John was second and Taoist third. Glendair was the 2 to 1 favorite. Young John was 3 to 1 to place.

OLYMPIC FUND TO GET NO AID FROM BIG TEN

Amateur officials, who have appealed to every amateur athletic association for contributions to the Olympic funds were notified yesterday that the Big Ten conference, which had promised to donate the proceeds of its annual outdoor track and field meet to the fund, probably will not do so.

The conference, it was learned yesterday, plans to use the proceeds to defray expenses of its own athletes in the Olympics at Los Angeles, Cal., next month.

Following the suggestion, Maj. John L. Griffith, commissioner of Big Ten athletics, started a poll to ascertain if all athletic directors were in favor of using the proceeds in this manner, instead of turning them over to the Olympic committee.

"So far we have received but one answer to the poll. That was in favor of the proposal to care for the Big Ten athletes independently," said Maj. Griffith. "I cannot say what the result will be."

Burning Up, Polydorus Set Track Records

Two track records fell at Washington Park yesterday while the biggest week day crowd of the season looked on. Burning Up ran seven furlongs in 1:23 2-5, to win the Calla Lily purse by a length from Plucky Play and Uncommon Gold. The old mark was 1:24, made during this meeting by Hillsborough.

A half hour later Polydorus stepped out in Abraham Bartelstein's silks and ran the mile of the Southmoor Hotel handicap in 1:36. He beat the game and consistent Spanish Play by just a head. Paul Bunyan was third and the heavily backed Pittsburgher wound up out of the money.

Old Johnny Maiben was in the saddle on Polydorus, and it was the fastest mile of the year in American racing.

Gov. Rolph of California and Gov. Balzer of Nevada were clubhouse spectators, and it was rumored they had a little wager on Polydorus. It was in San Francisco during the winter season that Polydorus began to loom up as a great race horse.

Col. Edward R. Bradley was among the pre-Derby spectators yesterday. His famous green and white jacket will not be represented in the Derby, but he's here to see it run just the same. If the Colonel doesn't shake hands with you, don't think he is putting on the chill. His doctor told him he might live to the ripe old age of 100 if he would quit climbing stairs and shaking hands.

Jack Keene, master of the famous Keeneland stud in Kentucky, sold all his horses in training in the paddock at Washington Park yesterday. He needs rest and money, he announced before sending his horses under the hammer. Pancho Lopez brought the top price and was purchased by Will Schmidt, Chicago undertaker, for $2,500. Hal Price Headley of Kentucky also offered seven horses at auction. Predict brought the top price of $1,400 and went to Mrs. D. Levy of Chicago. Twenty-four horses were sold and they brought a total of $22,675, which horsemen thought was a good price considering the times.

DEPOSIT BONDS ON 30 SHERIDAN TRUST ISSUES

Practically 100 Per Cent Are Received.

If you have a defaulted real estate bond and haven't been able to get the desired information regarding it from the bondholders' committee or from other sources, The Tribune may be of assistance to you. Write to "The Tribune Real Estate Bond Service, Chicago Tribune." Don't ask for information regarding more than one issue at a time. Give name of underwriter and full title of the bond. Inquiries must be accompanied by stamped, self-addressed envelope for personal reply.

BY AL CHASE.

Announcement yesterday of the reorganization plan for the Ingram apartments, at 4813 North Paulina street, disclosed the fact that the bondholders' protective committee at the present time has practically a complete deposit on thirty out of the sixty defaulted issues of the Sheridan Trust and Savings bank, which it is handling. Arthur M. Wirtz is chairman of the committee. The other members are: John P. Hooker, former president of the Chicago Real Estate board; O. P. Curran Jr., August Torpe Jr., William Ray Prince, and Ernest Ridgeway, receiver for the bank.

In commenting on the Ingram refinancing, Mr. Wirtz said: "This plan of reorganization is in keeping with the policy of the Sheridan Trust and Savings bank bondholders' protective committee, to work out by compromise and acquire title wherever possible without foreclosure expenses.

"The extent to which this can be accomplished depends on the number of issues on which the committee receives 100 per cent deposit. The committee has at the present time practically a complete deposit on thirty issues, and by the proper coöperation of the few outstanding bondholders the committee hopes it'll be possible to quickly announce plans of reorganization on these issues.

Financing Assured.

"If title isn't secured by compromise on these issues, then foreclosure sales will be completed and the committee will bid these properties in for the benefit of depositing bondholders in the very near future. The committee, by pledging its personal credit, has been assured of the financing necessary to work out bond issues on any of the well rented properties, and hopes to announce plans of reorganization on approximately thirty issues, which is about one-half of the issues that the committee is handling."

The committee has acquired the title to the Ingram apartments by the settlement of the second mortgage and acquisition of the title from the owners and is creating a trust, to be known as the Ingram liquidation trust. All of the bonds have been deposited. Mr. Wirtz states the committee has been able to work out this issue without any foreclosure expenses, receivers' fees, master's fees or attorney fees for the receiver fees.

The building contains sixteen apartments. The present rental income is reported to be approximately $6,500 annually, with five vacancies. The original bond issue was $65,000, since paid down to $53,000.

Devonby Building.

Frances M. Ross yesterday took title as nominee for the bondholders to the northwest corner of Devon and Damen avenues, lot 98x107, from the Phillip Kate Bank and Trust company, trustee. The Devonby building contains twenty-four apartments and several shops. This was erected through a $35,000 first mortgage bond issue underwritten by the Prudential State bank.

Foreclosure suit has been completed and title acquired for the bondholders. 100 per cent of whom have deposited their securities with the bondholders' protective committee, headed by Charles Albers, chairman. The other members are Otto F. Closius and George K. Schmidt Jr. Meyer Fink of Fink & Daniels and Paden & Kropf were attorneys. The reorganization will be completed through a liquidation trust.

GROSS EARNINGS OF FEDERAL RESERVE LOWEST SINCE 1917

Washington, D. C., June 17.—(AP)—Gross earnings of the federal reserve banks during the calendar year 1931 reached the lowest level since 1917, amounting to $29,701,000, or $6,728,000 less than during the previous twelve months. This was revealed today by the federal reserve board in the eighteenth annual report covering the operations of the system.

Net earnings of $2,972,000 remained after deducting current expenses of $27,040,000, and making adjustments for depreciation on bank premises, reserves for losses, etc. This compared with $5,081,000 netted in 1930. The reduction in the year's gross was attributable, the board pointed out, to the decrease from 3.25 to 2.20 per cent in the average rate of earnings on bills and securities.

None of the federal reserve banks reported sufficient net earnings to pay accrued dividends in full, the report said, and four of the institutions—Boston, Richmond, St. Louis and Kansas City—reported an excess over income. Accordingly, dividends of all federal reserve banks were paid entirely out of or in part out of surplus.

In addition, the report said, a reserve for depreciation on United States bonds in the amount of $8,158,000 was charged direct to surplus account, aiding in the reduction of $15,816,000 to $359,420,000 in this item at the end of the year.

DIRECTORS VOTE AGAINST PAYING SEARS DIVIDEND

Lessing Rosenwald Explains Action.

BY O. A. MATHER.

Another long standing dividend record went by the boards yesterday when the directors of Sears, Roebuck & Co., largest of the mail order and chain store concerns, omitted the usual quarterly payment of 62½ cents a share on the common stock. The present company, which was incorporated in 1906, has paid dividends every year since 1909, except in 1922 and 1923, when the late Julius Rosenwald was rehabilitating its finances following the depression of 1920-1921.

Omission of the dividend took Wall and La Salle streets by a surprise, as it had been generally predicted that the annual rate would be lowered from $2.50 to $1. It was reported that the decision to discontinue payments was made only after a lengthy debate among the directors, who were in session for several hours. When the meeting finally adjourned Chairman Lessing J. Rosenwald issued a brief statement as follows:

"The action was taken in view of the difficulty at this time of estimating earnings for the year and as two quarterly dividends of 62½ cents per share have already been paid."

Generous in Cash and Stock.

In most of the years since its incorporation, Sears Roebuck has been generous in both cash and stock dividends. The concern originally was formed in 1895 as an Illinois corporation, but reincorporated in 1906 under New York laws. It started common stock dividends in 1909 at the rate of $3.50 a year, paid $7 from 1910 to 1916, then $7.75 in 1917 and $8 from 1918 to 1920. In 1921 dividends of $2 were paid in scrip, which was redeemed in 1922. Then dividends lapsed for two years, but were resumed at a $2 rate in 1924, which was increased to $6 in 1925. In 1926 the common stock was split up four for one and put on a $1.50 basis, which was increased to $2.50 in 1928 and paid until the present time.

In addition, Sears Roebuck declared stock dividends as follows: 33⅓ per cent in 1911, 50 per cent in 1915, 25 per cent in 1917, and 40 per cent in 1920. Following the splitup of the stock, stock dividends of 2 per cent were paid in 1928, 4 per cent in 1929 and 1930 and 2 per cent in 1931.

A reduction in dividends has been foreshadowed in recent months by declining sales and earnings. Sears Roebuck last year failed to cover dividends by a small margin, net income of $12,169,672 being equivalent to $2.47 a share.

TRADE NEWS BETTER

As to the current state of general trade, the weekly mercantile reviews express a hopeful view. They say business has continued to show seasonal improvement in the last week, with more open weather and the approach of the vacation period stimulating retail buying in many centers.

"Retail buying power continues to give evidence of considerable strength," Dun's Review says, "which is reflected in the increased number of shoppers in the principal retail centers and the reported gain in theater attendance, which has risen slightly in the last two weeks.

"As the season advances, there has been a slight rally in building activity from scattered districts, and an extension of highway construction and street paving projects.

Employment Better.

"In most of the smaller centers of population and in agricultural districts complaints of unemployment are more infrequent and are exerting less influence on current trade than in some of the large urban centers."

"There has been a sharp upturn in some of the manufacturing and producing communities, in anticipation of taxes to be imposed under recent statutes enacted by the congress," Bradstreet's Review says.

"The reverse of the picture is in the fact that iron tonnage on the great lakes is one-half of what it was in 1931 and that the steel mills in the central west are at their lowest in many years, operating at 17 and 18 per cent of capacity. Large manufacturing concerns in this section of the country are still further curtailing pay rolls or are shutting down entirely."

Gold Position Impregnable, Banker Avers

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 17.—"Our gold position is impregnable," Benjamin M. Anderson Jr., economist of the Chase National bank, declared today at a meeting of the foreign press correspondents. At the same time the speaker expressed the conviction that before the year is out there would be a substantial return flow of the metal to these shores.

A great deal of the $850,000,000 in gold received by the United States from Europe between June, 1928, and June, 1931, Mr. Anderson said, was "nervous money, which came here because it was afraid to stay elsewhere," and a great deal of the $1,050,000,000 that we have lost since the latter date "is that same nervous money, which is seeking restlessly a place of safety." Most of this nervous money, the speaker believes, has now left the country.

Predicts Return of Gold.

"What remains with us is much more dependable," he added. "The domestic hoarding (which was never large) has practically died out and the whole picture looks much more cheerful. I think we may lose some more gold yet, but I think also that before the year is over we shall be gaining more gold than I want to see come in.

"The only countries that can take much gold for monetary purposes now are the United States, France, Holland and Switzerland. But they are glutted with gold, and it seems to be inevitable that the tide must turn our way after a little while."

The speaker pointed out that this country had made "no concessions whatever to the fears of people who wanted us to restrict payments or who wanted us to use unusual measures."

"We have gone through these two great foreign drains on our gold," he said, "last autumn and this spring, without weakening in the slightest in our policy in this matter."

GOLD OUTGO DWINDLES

New York, June 17.—(AP)—A net loss of $3,848,100 in the country's monetary gold stock resulted from today's transactions in the metal. There were exports of $4,084,900 to Belgium and an increase in the stock of gold held under earmark for foreign account of $853,500. There was an import of $106,300 from Mexico and the federal reserve bank reported arrival at San Francisco of $984,000 from China.

The dollar again advanced today against most foreign exchanges. An exception was the French franc, which moved up ⅝ point for cables to 3.93 1-16 cents. Japanese yen fell to a new low at 30.44 cents, off ½ cent.

Sterling cables closed at $3.61¼, off 3⅝c, and Italian lira was down ⅝ point, to 5.11c. The Belga was quoted 1½ points lower, at 13.90c, while Holland guilders were unchanged.

Receivership Asked for the Walden Bookshops

The Walden Bookshops were named in an involuntary bankruptcy petition filed yesterday in the United States District court. The firm operates stores at 546 North Michigan avenue, 919 North Michigan avenue and 311 Plymouth court. The petition was filed on behalf of Horace Liveright, Inc., publishers, and two other creditors with nominal claims of $500. The company owes approximately $100,000 and has assets of not more than $30,000, the bill alleges. The company has been in business in Chicago for ten years and expects to reorganize and continue.

ALL DELIVERIES OF WHEAT HIT SEASON LOWS

Selling Rises After Early Rally.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

All deliveries of wheat in the leading North American markets sold at a new low for the season yesterday, following a small advance in the early trading. Buying of September in Chicago credited in pit gossip to an eastern professional caused a bulge of around ⅝c early, but the market flattened out as soon as the buying ceased, and toward the last the retreat of the bulls became a route.

Old July wheat, which sold up to 51c early dropped to 48¾c toward the last, with stop loss orders uncovered on the way down, and the finish was at net losses of 1¾@2c, with old July closing at 43⅝@48¼c, while old September was 51@51⅛c and December, 54⅛@54¼c.

Hedging Sales a Factor.

Hedging sales against purchases of new crop winter wheat in the southwest were a factor in causing the decline in futures. Pit observers claimed lack of support rather than aggressive selling was responsible for the rapidity of the decline. It was estimated that around 300,000 bu cash wheat was hedged in the pit against purchases in the southwest. The action of the stock market as well as a sharp break in sterling helped to depress the market. Trade comment on the prospective donation of 40,000,000 bu more farm board wheat to the American Red Cross was decidedly bitter. It was feared this grain would come into competition with the movement of the new crop, which is now being harvested, and thereby restrict the demand for the farmers' product.

Support in wheat on the way down came mainly from holders of bids. Buying against the latter checked the downturn for a time at 49¾@49⅛c for the July, but under 49c stop orders were caught. In some quarters it was said one of the early buyers sold out on the way down, and started to reinstate the line again around 51c for September.

Strength in Liverpool had little effect on the market, although wheat prices there are ⅝@¾c higher for the day. July in the English market closed at 52½c, or 1⅞c over Chicago. Winnipeg lost 1¼@1⅝c for the day with July at 54¼c in Canadian funds.

More Rain Northwest.

Good rains were reported in parts of the American northwest, especially in northwestern North Dakota. There was also additional moisture in parts of Canada. Dry weather which was favorable for harvesting prevailed in the southwest. The first car of new Kansas wheat of the season was received at Kansas City. It was shipped from Kiowa, Kas., graded sample hard due to having 17.8 per cent moisture; tested 9.25 per cent protein and was sold at auction to the Uhlmann Grain company at 42c per bu. The latter price indicated the producer received around 27c per bu.

Threshing returns from Texas and Oklahoma were decidedly spotted. In Oklahoma they ranged from 4 to 20 bu per acre, while in the Texas panhandle an elevator man reported wheat received that ranged in weight from 44 to 61 lbs.

Liquidation in Corn.

Corn failed to receive the aggressive support in evidence of late and, with liquidation developing toward the last in sympathy with wheat, prices dropped rapidly, the inside showed 1⅝@2c under the early high, with the December at a new low for the season. The finish was 1¼@1⅜c lower, with July at 29¼@29⅝c, September 31⅛@31¼c, and December 31⅛c. Crop reports were again distinctly favorable. Shipping demand was limited, while country offerings were curtailed by the decline in futures.

Rye failed to fully reflect the break in wheat and the inside figures were fractionally above the low point of earlier in the week, although the close was at net losses of 1@1⅛c. July was 30¼c, September 33c, and December 36⅛c at the last.

Oats traders say there has been evidence of eastern buying of the December future in the past few days. The market, while reflecting to some extent the break in corn, was only ¼@⅜c lower at the last, with fair support in evidence on the way down. July finished at 20¼@20⅜c; September, 20⅝, and December, 22⅝c.

GOLD STANDARD RESEARCH AIDED BY ROCKEFELLER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 17.—The receipt of a grant from the Rockefeller foundation to be used in determining whether the continued efficacy and efficiency of the gold standard may require "fundamental changes" in its organization and administration was announced yesterday by Brown university. The study is to be made by Prof. William A. Brown Jr. and Carel J. Smit of the university's department of economics.

A statement issued here in behalf of Dr. A. D. Mead, acting president of the university, said the decision to undertake the research was "based upon the view that the present breakdown of the gold standard in several countries cannot fully be understood by an examination of the present conditions alone." He asserted that the difficulties the gold standard has encountered since 1925 could not be explained except by an analysis of the history of world credit.

Previously it was believed the Russians would take part. Charles E. Rate Raises, for Railways, Aiding Trucks

BY SCRUTATOR.

When A. J. Cleveland, vice president in charge of traffic of the Chicago and North Western railway, appeared before the interstate commerce commission's examiner at a rate hearing the other day he came as a witness.

Instead of testifying, however, he made a speech. And no one interrupted him. He kept an audience of railroad men, shippers, and attorneys listening in rapt attention for twenty minutes, for what he had to say about his actual experiences with the movement of traffic shed much light on the failure of the railroads to benefit from the recent freight rate increases.

Rates Are Raised Twice.

The interstate commerce commission's order increasing freight rates approximately 10 per cent in this territory went into effect Dec. 4, 1931. A second boost occurred Jan. 4, 1932, when the commission imposed emergency surcharges on certain commodities throughout the country.

"Although we had severe truck competition prior to Dec. 3," said Mr. Cleveland, "we really did not know what truck competition was until after Dec. 3.

"Wisconsin is one of our principal producing territories. Chicago is our largest market. We found that we were about to lose some of the heaviest commodities produced in Wisconsin almost in their entirety. Among those commodities were canned goods, cereal beverages, cheese, and paper."

Mr. Cleveland revealed that the Chicago and North Western had made a careful survey of truck competition and had come to the conclusion that in 1931 truck competition cut into the company's earnings about $12,000,000.

Big Loss to Railways.

"Now, business going away from the railroads to the extent that these figures indicate," he continued, "requires some drastic action. We are trying all kinds of experiments, and we are trying to place our rates on a basis where we can successfully hold the traffic against our competitor.

"No one knows any beter than the officers of these western railroads that we need rates just as high as we can get them. There is no officer of any western railroad that under our present disastrous conditions is going to

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 17.—Prices on the stock exchange slipped backward today in listless trading, with the total sales barely approaching 800,000 shares. The market missed yesterday's activity of the rails, and oil and sugar stocks were the only groups making any effort to stem the decline.

The failure of the market on two recent occasions to break through the upper price range established in the first week of the month, the unsatisfactory prohibition plank adopted by the Republican convention, disappointing foreign news and the continued uncertainty of what congress is going to do before adjournment all tended to make today's session virtually a day of rest.

Auburn in Decline.

Auburn Automobile and other active issues declined sharply, and most of the list was at its low point for the day at the close. The market was heavy and sluggish from the opening and although there was backing and filling during the day, the trend continued definitely downward.

Auburn closed at 62, off 9¾ points; United States Steel declined 2¼ points; American Can lost 3, and American Telephone and Telegraph 3⅝ points. New York Central slid back to 12, a loss of 1⅝ points, and there was considerable gossip about the market position of the stock. One rumor had it that important holdings of the stock might be changing hands, and another

LACKING CASH, CELOTEX CO. PUT IN RECEIVERSHIP

Asserts Assets Exceed Liabilities.

Receivers were appointed yesterday for the Celotex company of Chicago, manufacturers of insulating board. The company, which is a $12,000,000 concern, was petitioned into receivership in the federal court in Wilmington, Del. Colin C. Bell of Wilmington, and Hobart P. Young were named receivers by the court.

The same men were appointed ancillary receivers for the company by Judge James H. Wilkerson in the federal court here.

Ready Cash Insufficient.

The petition filed in Wilmington said that while the company's assets exceeded the liabilities by a wide margin, the concern did not have sufficient cash to meet maturing obligations. Assets were listed at $11,130,000, against debts of $2,243,000. The bill was filed on behalf of MacManus, Inc., Detroit advertising agency, which listed claims of $7,000.

Bror G. Dahlberg is president of the company. The last annual report of the company showed total assets of $11,708,682. At the close of last year bonds outstanding amounted to $2,409,500. Stock capitalization consisted of 53,030 shares of preferred with a par value of $5,303,000 and 276,510 shares of common with a stated value of $1,382,550.

The company filed an answer to the Delaware bill consenting to the receivership. Recent unsatisfactory business conditions have depleted the working capital, the company declared.

In a public statement the company said under the court orders the receivers are authorized to continue the operation of the business. Manufacture, sales and trade relations will be continued without interruption, the company announced.

Hope to Reorganize.

"A reorganization committee has been formed with the purpose of taking action necessary to protect the security holders of the company with a view to working out a reorganization which will best protect the interests of all concerned," the company's announcement said.

The company had a net loss of $130,599 in 1931 as compared with a net profit of $244,079 in the preceding year. During the year the company wrote off its investment in the South Coast company and reduced the book value of its patent and patent rights by $2,704,699. The combined write-down amounted to $4,723,195.

CHICAGO STOCK PRICES DROP ON LIGHT TRADING

Stocks moved irregularly lower on the Chicago exchange yesterday on limited transactions. Speculative interest was at low ebb throughout the day.

The declines yesterday erased in most instances the moderate improvement which had been scored earlier this week. Commonwealth Edison fell back 2 points to 55¼ on transactions of 1,200 shares. The no par stock of Public Service of Northern Illinois tumbled 5½ points on light sales.

It is said that plans are about completed for the offerings of the $70,000,000 of bonds on the three Insull operating companies. The issues consists of $18,000,000 Commonwealth Edison bonds, $32,000,000 Public Service, and $20,000,000 Peoples Gas. The offering group will be headed by the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company and will include the First National and Harris Trust banks and several eastern institutions. Halsey, Stuart & Co., which formerly headed the syndicate offering Insull issues, will be a member of the offering group, it is stated.

Cord corporation was another issue to react moderately. The stock closed at 3¼, off a fraction from its previous price.

COTTON DROPS SHARPLY

Constructive features in the cotton market lost their influence in yesterday's session and after a languid morning trade future prices turned downward in a rapid decline, closing 8@16 points net lower on the Chicago Board of Trade, while New York showed losses of 7@10 points at the finish and New Orleans was 12@14 points lower.

Buying orders were insufficient to offset hedge selling and liquidation of July contracts in advance of the first notice day, June 25. The weather map, indicating a possibility of clearing weather over the belt, was a depressing factor, but the nearby forecast is for further showers in the central and eastern belts with rains having been received in Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia, and South Carolina.

Liverpool closed 9 points net higher, but sterling exchange lost 3 points, to around 3.62c.

Spot markets are off 10 points, New York being 5.35c; New Orleans, 5.15c; Houston, 5.05c and Galveston, 5.10c. Prices follow:

had it that substantial buying orders were being placed in the issue. The selling which developed today was well taken.

Preferred stocks showed wider price ranges than their common brothers. J. I. Case preferred [7] dropped 4⅞ points; Continental Baking preferred [6] slipped down 3; Midland Steel preferred, 2½; New York Shipbuilding preferred, 5; Hercules Products preferred, 4½, and Kendall preferred [6], 3¾.

On the other side of the ledger American Sugar preferred climbed 2½, General American Investment preferred was up 4, General Baking preferred [8] rose 2 points, and Great Western Sugar preferred [7] 5 points.

Another bulge in raw sugar during the morning was responsible for the rise in the sugar shares. Elsewhere, however, the market found nothing to enthuse about.

Traders Discouraged.

Toward midafternoon it became increasingly apparent that the traders were becoming discouraged with the action of the market. The list had held in an extremely narrow range for the first two hours and selling was light. The pace picked up a bit in volume, however, and it was during the last two hours that the recessions grew from 1 to 5 points. There was little evidence that the traders were trying to cinch profits, the selling being more in the nature of disappointment over the inability of the market to resume its advance after a breathing spell.

Public utility shares also down easily after American Telephone and Telegraph dropped 2 points. The industrials began to droop early and were off from a fraction to more than a point. The railroad stocks as a group receded 1 to 2 points.

CONTROL BOARD REPORT ASSAILS UTILITY GROUP

Associated Gas Has Sharp Retort.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

New York, June 17. — The public service commission issued today a report on its investigation into the accounts and practices of twelve operating companies of the Associated Gas and Electric system in New York state. The commission declares "that the letter as well as the spirit of the public service law has been violated." The commission urges the issuance of orders directing certain changes in the practices criticized in its report.

Looks Into Payments.

The investigation, made at the commission's own order, was particularly directed at the charges and payments for managerial, engineering, accounting, and other services made to the twelve operating companies by affiliated nonutility service companies, and at the relationship between the operating utilities and the service companies.

The report says that in 1930 and 1931 nine affiliated service companies charged the twelve New York operating utilities of the Associated group a total of $7,708,907. The commission finds "that these transactions are improper and are not in the public interest."

Information was sought by the commission, but not supplied, it says, "as to the basis for the charges and payments for the various 'services' to the operating utilities or as to whether any of the persons employed by or affiliated with the Associated Gas and Electric system were beneficiaries under these contracts."

Calls Officials Evasive.

The report adds that "those who control this utility system in the state of New York seemingly had decided on a policy of delay and evasion, if not one of actual disregard of orders or requests of the commission."

The commission cites the fact that it has no authority to direct repayment of the moneys described and is in a similar situation with regard to the issuance of securities by the holding and system companies. The later corporations are not under its jurisdiction. "It is felt," the report says, "that the record and testimony taken in this case should, at the conclusion thereof, be turned over to the proper officials of the state of New York for consideration."

In the course of a statement the company tonight questioned the commission's right to call into question "the propriety of expenditures of the corporation" and asserted "it is the commission itself and not the corporations which has violated the spirit and letter of the law."

"The companies will be prepared," the statement added, "to justify the payments at the proper time and place."

ASSERT SCHWAB SOLD COMPANY ABOVE ITS VALUE

New York, June 17.—(AP)—Details of the sale by Charles M. Schwab in 1927 of the Chicago Pneumatic Tool company for a price in excess of the market value were given today during hearing of a suit by two consulting engineers to collect a 2 per cent broker's fee from the purchasers.

Cortlandt J. Langley, confidential agent of Mr. Schwab, appearing for the plaintiffs, Victor Soskice and Michael Kay, consulting engineers, testified that after three months of secret negotiations the banking firms of August Belmont & Co. and James Speyer & Co. had agreed to buy all the 94,179 shares of Pneumatic Tool company stock for $175 a share. Pneumatic Tool was then $130 a share on the market.

Langley also corroborated the plaintiffs' contention that they were to have received a 1 per cent broker's fee each, as part of the bargain. Previously Soskice and Kay had repudiated an agreement signed on Jan. 27, 1928, by which they received $6,250 each "in full payment" for their services. They testified they were induced to sign such releases, because Morgan Belmont had said, "It didn't mean a thing," but merely represented an accommodation to Schwab, who was "short of cash" at the time.

Bulgarian Government Meets Interest Charges

Funds for meeting half the interest and sinking fund requirements on the Bulgarian 7½ per cent stabilization loan of 1928 and the 7 per sent settlement loan of 1927 for the period from April to September will be provided by that government, it was announced yesterday by Speyer & Co., bankers. Failure of the government to meet the requirements in full caused trustees of the issues to protest to the secretary general of the league of nations, and the Bulgarian government has requested the trustee to ask bondholders to form a committee to negotiate for future services on the loans.

Canadians Lose French Wheat Market to Yankees

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OTTAWA, Ont., June 17.—Canada loses to America a fifteen million dollar wheat market through the abrogation last night of the Canadian-French trade treaty. France declined extension of the treaty which favorably admitted Canadian wheat because of recent general Canadian tariff increases. A prohibitive tariff of $1.50 per bushel will now bar dominion wheat.

HIGHER RAILWAY RATES HELPING MOTOR TRUCKS

reduce a rate, unless he is convinced necessity requires such reduction. But we cannot afford to let our railroads dry up by having our rates on a basis which will not answer present day conditions. We are not interested in rates unless we are making revenue out of those rates."

His testimony threw into sharp relief the effect of stringent government regulation necessitating long delays before official sanction can be given a revised freight rate.

Truck Owners Change Rates.

"We are operating," he said, "against a competitor who can change his rate from day to day or hour to hour if he so likes. We can very frequently induce shippers to refrain from negotiating and signing contracts with trucking companies providing we will make a comparable rate.

"But it is exceedingly difficult to induce shippers to continue to use the rail service if we are to be stopped over periods of months, not from reducing rates because we want to reduce rates, but from reducing rates because competitive conditions with which we are confronted require such reduction."

The prediction was made in this column last December that the surcharges would not yield the $100,000,000 to $125,000,000 of additional revenues estimated by the commission. If results for the year are in line with those of the first quarter the amount will be about half that figure.

On top of this comes Mr. Cleveland's testimony indicating that high rates are driving away business. The railroads are beginning to realize that the trouble with the commission made rates is not that they are too low, but that they are geared to theories rather than to transportation needs and competitive situations.

VIRGINIA-CAROLINA CHEMICAL TO ABSORB ARMOUR FERTILIZER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 17.—A merger of the Virginia-Carolina Chemical corporation and the Armour Fertilizer works, has been arranged; that was announced today. Assets of the two companies, both in the fertilizer business, will be transferred to a corporation organized in Delaware and to be known as the Virginia-Carolina Fertilizer corporation.

The Armour Fertilizer works is a wholly owned subsidiary of Armour & Co., of Delaware. The subsidiary originally was organized to utilize by-products of the packing business. In recent years, however, the nature of the fertilizer business has so changed that its activities are now based almost wholly on chemical processes. The merger enables the parent company to dissociate itself from the operation of a business not directly related to the manufacture and sale of packing house products. It is also expected to result in economies which will tend to eliminate the losses which the fertilizer companies are now sustaining.

The new Virginia-Carolina company will have a capital stock of 180,000 shares of 7 per cent preferred, of $100 par value, and 1,000,000 shares of common, of $10 par value each. The preferred issue will be divided equally between Virginia-Carolina Chemical corporation and the Armour Fertilizer works.

UNITED GAS REPORT

United Gas corporation, a subsidiary of Electric Power & Light corporation, has issued its consolidated statement of income for the twelve months ended April 30, 1932. This statement shows a balance of $10,644,725 applicable to interest of the corporation, or an amount more than three and one-quarter times interest deductions of $3,236,217.

The balance of $7,412,508 after these interest deductions was equal to more than two and one-quarter times the dividends for the twelve months on the company's $7 preferred stock. The balance of $4,297,374 after dividends on the $7 preferred stock was sufficient within $896,719 to meet the dividends of $5,194,093 for the period on the $7 second preferred stock.

Estimated receipts at Chicago today: Cattle, 200; hogs, 5,000; sheep, 6,000.

Hog prices moved forward again yesterday and not until the bulk had gone over the scales was there any sign of weakness in the market.

The extreme top reached $4.00 at the start of trading, while the general average for the whole day showed 5c gain at $3.65.

At the low time last week top hogs sold at $3.50 and the general averages figured $3.25. Most buyers were aggressive on opening rounds at the steady to 10c higher prices, but soon after the majority of orders had been filled trading showed an inclination to drag a little and toward the finish a few "picked over" hogs came on the market at a slight discount.

Outsiders took 20 per cent of yesterday's arrivals. During the first five days of the week 18 per cent sold to shippers against 13 per cent a week ago.

Cattle Market Higher.

The cattle market this week, as a whole, stands highest since last January, although the medium and commoner grades of steers have advanced the most in value. A narrower range of prices for beef carcasses on the wholesale trade tended to bring the range of steers closer together as the week progressed. Local houses are encountering plenty of competition from eastern packers. Buying on outside account is fully up to normal for this time of the year. During the five days 31 per cent of the total receipts sold to outside buyers, against 23 per cent a week ago when Jewish holidays curbed buying for eastern slaughter. Although yesterday's 1,000 cattle were hardly enough to make a market, more strength was accumulated for the few classes here.

Nothing choice arrived. The top sale of steers stopped at $6.85, while the bulk sold at $5.50@6.50. Butcher stock sold about steady again.

Lambs at $7.00.

The extreme top price for slaughter lambs has been at $7.00 every day this week. The rank and file fluctuated slightly in value, but best grades sold at the same prices all week. Yesterday's meager supply was hardly large enough to test prices, but the few sales indicated no change in the general position of prices. Signs of strength appeared late, however. City butchers paid up to $7.00 for closely sorted lambs, while packers bought again at $6.50 and below. Prevailing quotations are largely in line with the close of last week, but show losses of 50@75c, compared with the high spot last week.

Receipts at Chicago for today are estimated at 800 cattle, 5,000 hogs, and 6,000 sheep, against 415 cattle, 3,760 hogs, and 780 sheep the previous Saturday and 434 cattle, 7,259 hogs, and 3,115 sheep a year ago.

Probable receipts of hogs at Chicago for next Monday are estimated from 26,000 to 28,000. F. Knutzen marked 33,000, S. Lund 27,000, R. B. Ellis 25,000, A. G. Welbener and G. Brittain 22,000, H. S. Turner and H. Wolfe 22,000; F. M. Sherwood 21,000, R. Trullinger, W. Garrett, J. A. Bunyan, and M. J. Berkery 20,000, W. T. Reneker 29,000, W. Haskins and J. Berkery 28,000, J. M. Waters 27,000, and G. W. Chandler and T. Dower 26,000.
